UNCLE TOWSER TALKS.

By A. K. ICKER.

"Fine," said my friend Towser, closing the album containing my U. S. envelope collection—"certainly fine, my boy, but collecting of U. S. envelopes nowadays is tabooed—dead—a drug on the market. Too bad, too bad to think that one of the most interesting branches of U. S. Philately has been so neglected."

"Towser," I responded, "you old fraud, you don't mean a word of what you say, and you certainly should know better after having been in the stamp business for nigh forty years. Is it not true that for nearly thirty years after the appearance of the first adhesive postage stamps in the U. S., collectors of U. S. envelopes were among the most prominent philatelists? Now what have you to say to that, Towser?"

"A good deal, sonny, but won't my reminiscing tire you?" Thus saying, Towser lit his old meerschaum pipe, blew half a dozen smoke rings and commenced:—

"As you know the collection of U. S. envelopes started a few years after the issue of the first envelope in June of the year 1853. Apropos, an envelope, cancelled Boston, June 16, 1853—probably one of the first used, is or was in the superfine collection of Mr. Worthington of Cleveland. Suppose you wouldn't mind having it, eh? And what is its value expressed in greenbacks? What would a stamp collector pay for the first adhesive cancelled with the earliest date? Well, as I said, U. S. envelopes were collected with great gusto and as new dies appeared, they were sought eagerly. Adhesive and envelope stamps were on an equal footing and no one who laid claim to be a real collector would miss the envelopes. I recall that up to 1869 we had not what you may call a list of U. S. envelopes and collectors were left to struggle through a maze of conflicting data. In fact there was a wild confusion until Mr. Pemberton in July, 1869, if I remember correctly, made his first attempt to bring order out of chaos in which the envelopes of the U. S. were involved. Then came Mr. Willard K. Freeman of New York City, who was a real student and Mr. Coster who published some admirable papers on the Plimpton issues. At last in 1878, Dr. W. S. V. Horner, a professor of the Greek language in the Freehold Institute, cut the Gordian knot and published a systematic and entirely complete catalogue of the envelope issues of the U. S." Thus speaking, Towser walked over to his philatelic library, brought forth a gray covered pamphlet entitled "The Stamped Envelopes of the U. S." and read this line in the preface: "That there is but one way to collect envelopes, viz.: in an entire condition, we believe, is now generally admitted. It is in view of this, and of what the writer believes to be a growing interest in their collection throughout the country, that this essay is begun."

"Horner re-issued his original work in 1884. The next twenty years furnished ample proof that Dr. Horner had had a clear vision, for the collection of U. S. envelopes grew rapidly and became such an important branch of Philately that in 1884 the National Philatelic Society appointed two of the then most prominent stamp dealers, namely, Messrs. R. R. Bogert and Joseph Rechert, a committee to prepare a list of the stamped envelopes, newspaper wrappers, and letter sheets of the United States. While they were studying the subject, Mr. John K. Tiffany had also been preparing for publication a work on these issues of the United States as a companion to his 'History of the Adhesive Postage Stamp' of that country."

"At a conference of the three men at the Boston Convention of the American Philatelic Association of 1885 it was decided to combine efforts; and thus the collectors obtained at last a most comprehensive, nay, a monumental work on the envelope issues of the U. S. And that reminds me that I have never shown you yet the catalogue of Joseph Rechert, then doing business at 1201 Garden Street, Hoboken, N. J., which I prize as one of my choicest books. Here, you see, his own annotations and addenda and in red ink the corresponding numbers of Dr. Horner. Those were the heydays of U. S. envelope collectors and I recall Ackerman, Brook, Colket, Hanes, Harrison, Holton, La Tourette, Sanford, Tapling, Terrett, Van Derlip and Walker—a veritable galaxy of students of U. S. envelope issues. And thus this branch of Philately steadily gained in followers and the prices rose accordingly.

The work of Bogert and Rechert was later republished in a revised and extended form by another leader in the collecting of U. S. envelopes. I mean Geo. L. Toppan of the Scott Stamp and Coin Co., Ltd., then at 18 East 23rd St., New York City. Speaking of the Scott Co., brings to my mind that J. W. Scott, originally of 163 Fulton St., N. Y., through F. A. Nast, issued the first printed price-list of Entire U. S. Envelopes, which was published in about 1886. In the preface the author refers to the collection of entire U. S. envelopes "who have greatly increased in number during the past few years." It may also interest you to hear that the 3c die of 1853, known as 'K' die on a small-sized white envelope, called Note was valued at $100. What is it worth today? As the Post Office each three years made new contracts for the manufacture of stamped envelopes, and as a rule, introduced with each new contract, changes in denomination and dies, the number of entire envelopes continued growing and, of course, the old existing standard catalogues could not furnish the would-be collector the desired information. Recognizing this want, the J. M. Bartels Co. came into the field, first with a rather modest list in 1897, which was revised and enlarged in 1899, and then in 1904, and was finally entirely rewritten in 1911. Since then no complete list of U. S. entire envelopes has been published and I believe, sonny, that the absence of such complete data is one of the reasons for the decreased interest by collectors in the envelope issues of the U. S."

"Now you may ask, what are the other reasons that have contributed to this result? I think the fact that during a great number of years the Post-office, at the time of closing a new contract, did not change the dies of the previous period, but insisted upon a change of watermark in the paper. Thus, it came about that in an entire collection apparently the same envelope would appear three or four times or even more frequently with no other differentiation than the watermark which was only of value to the specialist. To the outsider, or general collector, the changing of the watermark in a paper but, leaving the same die meant merely a useless and expensive duplication, and thus his interest flagged, and the collection of U. S. envelopes was limited to very few specialists."

"Another, and perhaps the most important reason why comparatively few collectors are at present interested in the envelope issues of the U. S. is the fact that the arrangement in the Scott catalogue, the vade mecum of all budding collectors, when it comes to the listing of cut square envelopes is so involved, antiquated and confusing due to the many incongruities that a person will be deterred from collecting cut squares unless well versed in this subject. This confusion, is caused largely by the jumble of various dies, and the evident inconsistency of not recognizing distinct and well-known dies, leaving the collector absolutely helpless. For example, you prize highly the 2c rejected die of the 1915 issue, both on white and blue paper. Well, in the Scott catalogue, that and many other equally important dies are most conspicuously absent. And then, about the misleading statements you note in that catalogue. Well, even the 1923 issue, under the head of Wrappers says: "Cut square wrappers show the laid lines of the paper running horizontally instead of diagonally as in envelopes." And what about the wrappers of the 1864 issue with vertical lines and the present issue on wove paper. I guess what I have said will satisfy you that I was not romancing when I charged that one of the most potent reasons why cut square envelopes are not more generally in demand is the Scott catalogue." Here Towser stopped to relight his old meerschaum which he had laid aside as he had warmed up to his subject.

"Well," he continued, "don't think I was talking for the purpose of discouraging you in your hobby, because I have long felt that the present condition of affairs could be remedied if the people who issue catalogues would adopt a new and simplified scheme of listing U. S. envelopes. Do you want to know my proposition? If you think well of it, why, sonny. I suggest you write an article, and get the general consensus of opinion, and then ask some wide-awake, progressive publisher to get out that kind of a list.

"Here, then, is my idea in a nutshell:—Instead of giving—as heretofore—a separate number to each envelope and thus making it obligatory for the collector to have a specimen in his collection, list only the die, the size, shape—or knife and paper in all colors, but wherever the same die is found with various watermarks, use but one number and place behind it the watermark with which the envelopes exist. Thus, none but a specialist would be obliged to get a lot of envelopes, apparently the same, and only distinguished by the watermark in the paper. By doing this an envelope collection would not only be greatly reduced in specimens, with a subsequent saving in money, but it would also materially gain in appearance, as there is no repetition of dies. And that is my suggestion."

"Towser," I replied, "that looks good to me and with your permission I will write down our conversation and ask those who are interested in this subject to let me know how your suggestion strikes them."

Portuguese Colony Collection!

We Offer at an EXCEPTIONALLY LOW PRICE One of the Best and Most Complete Collections of Portuguese Colonies which has ever passed through our hands.

This collection was included in the stock of a large foreign dealer recently purchased by us. We are not retail dealers, and it is our desire to offer the collection intact at a price low enough to draw an immediate purchaser. It is impossible to do full justice in describing this offering, and we shall endeavor only to give the most important details:

The collection contains exactly 3,075 different stamps—every one a distinct major variety. 20th century issues are practically complete FOR ALL OF THE COLONIES. Among the gems are Angola Nos. 116, 134-151, Cape Verde 136 & 8, Mozambique 164a, 184-8, Congo 119, 119a, 122a, 123, Portuguese India 262-396, St. Thomas 116-166, and the scarce No. 129b in superb condition. Unused stamps are in the majority, but used copies are lightly cancelled in most cases. Condition throughout is practically perfect, great care having evidently been taken by the former owner in the selection of fine copies.

The Catalogue Value is Approximately $3,000.00

Prices on Portuguese Colonies have been settled and stabilized for many years and there are not the market fluctuations often found in New European issues and other stamps of that class. At the recent sale of a large Boston auction firm scarce colonials averaged over 40% of catalogue with sharp and active bidding. Collectors and dealers all over the country are beginning to realize the great popularity and value of these stamps and many of the rarities, now underpriced, will increase in value with the passing of time.

We do not believe our collection could be replaced—stamp for stamp—at less than $1,500.00. As a straight dyed-in-the-wool investment for collector or dealer, it has our highest recommendation. For immediate clearance we offer the collection intact for

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited, as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Spokane, Wash., has a new advertising cancellation reading:—"Make 50,000 Farm Homes. Irrigate Columbia Basin." This supplements a marking previously chronicled:—"Irrigate 2,000,000 Acres Columbia Basin Project." In connection with this latter E. J. Newcomer writes:—"It advertises an enormous proposed irrigation project covering an area just west of Spokane and which may be put over by the government."

—S. R. Sheldon of Shanghai informs us of the death of Mr. Charles Piens, Shanghai's leading philatelist. Mr. Piens has conducted weekly auctions which have greatly increased the local interest in philately and his collection of Chinese stamps is one of the finest in the world.

—Wendover Neefus is sending out his 1923 pricelist of U. S. and Colonies. It is a handsome booklet of 44 pages and covers in a very thorough manner the stamps indicated. The price of the book is 10c but a refund slip of that amount is redeemable with a purchase of $1 or over from the list.

—We have received from Dr. A. F. Twogood a page from the Memphis Commercial Appeal, which contains a very interesting six-column article dealing with philately. The article is by George M. Moreland and is freely illustrated. It is a commendable piece of publicity.

—Three weeks ago we published the advertisement of one E. Van der Wee, Buenos Ayres, Argentine Republic. Complaint was at once entered with us against this party upon the grounds that no replies can be obtained from letters sent him. Have any of our readers had similar experiences? We have no desire to injure Mr. Van der Wee's reputation, and developments will be published in the WEEKLY.

—A proposal has been made that the new 50 centime stamp which France is about to issue in compliance with the Madrid Postal Convention shall bear the portrait of Louis Pasteur, the celebrated French chemist and microscopist.

THE EXCHANGE OF STAMPS.

By GEO. H. HAKES.

(So far as our publication is concerned, we are perfectly willing to accept advertising dealing with the exchange of stamps, though we are compelled to have it understood that we cannot be held responsible for unsatisfactory relations. We do exercise editorial discretion in the matter of exchange advertising that comes from Europe, due to the length of time necessary to adjust details of correspondence. Our department of Adlets furnishes a good opportunity for publicity for those who wish to engage in the pleasures of exchange.—W. O. W.)

I have been a reader of your paper for the past few years and I have often wondered why there are not more exchange ads in your paper; to me part of the pleasure in collecting stamps is the exchanging of duplicates with other collectors. Perhaps some dealers would object to a paper that encouraged exchanging of stamps, but in the long run dealers would sell as many stamps.

I started to collect stamps in 1888 and in 1889 published a stamp paper, but like most boys, gave up collecting. I took up collecting again this year and I am frank to say that I have several businessmen like myself who are only too pleased to exchange duplicates with me, and we have added a great deal of pleasure to the "hobby" and my only regret is that your paper does not cater to the party who has duplicates to exchange, so I could get in touch with other collectors who have duplicates to exchange. I realize that there are chances of fraud, etc., if a person starts to exchange with others without using proper judgment, but a person with little business experience can avoid this hazard.

I believe I am voicing the words of many of your readers when I ask you to cater to the collector who would like to exchange stamps with other honest collectors.

EX-ENEMY WAR ISSUES.

Our Christmas number is a fitting one in which to announce the reversal of a decision which has been the cause of considerable bitterness of feeling. We refer to our pronouncement, made during the war, that we did not propose to list or deal in the war-time issues of the then enemy Central Powers of Europe.

At the time when this decision was announced, we were forbidden by law to deal in these stamps, but a list of them could easily have been published. Our decision was welcomed as fairly representing the feeling of philatelists in the Allied countries at that time, and was copied by many other dealers and philatelic publishers. After the Armistice, however, opinions changed rapidly. The French stamp trade, whose members might be supposed to have as good reason as any for continuing the war-time ban, were the first to raise it and to list and deal in the ex-enemy war issues. In our own country the change was not so rapid as regards the cataloguing of them, though dealing started at an early date, but we believe we are right in saying that we are now the only British catalogue publishers who have not yet announced their intention of raising the ban.

This announcement we now make, knowing that the vast majority of the users of our catalogue would prefer to have it complete, as in pre-war days. The next edition of Part II will, therefore, contain carefully compiled lists of all the war stamps of the Central European powers, priced according to their current market values, and fully illustrated.

We do not think there will be many to cavil at this decision, but, if there should be one or two, we would remind them that many things were said in the heat of war which have not been maintained in the calmer atmosphere of peace. We feel that it is wiser to admit that our original position is no longer tenable, than to persist in an attitude which sacrifices part of the value of our catalogue as a work of reference, against the wishes of the majority of those who use it.

Our present stock of the stamps concerned could probably be purchased for a five-pound note, and we have no particular desire to increase it. What stamps of ex-enemy states we have, or may acquire from time to time in collections, etc., we shall sell in the ordinary way, but we have no intention of handling these stamps with any vigour.

As regards business with ex-enemy subjects, exchange conditions in Central Europe form an effective barrier against this, but we shall be glad to receive copies of German and Austrian journals in exchange for the M.C. and to review any catalogues and handbooks sent us for the purpose.

We feel that in reversing our previous attitude to this question we are taking a long step towards the re-establishment of the pre-war condition of things, when Philately knew no frontiers. The bitterness of a great war cannot be altogether eliminated in a few years, but there is no need to prolong it unnecessarily by artificial means, and it seems futile to attempt to make our catalogue the perpetual symbol of ill-will between nations, when the feeling itself is, year by year, growing rapidly less.—Stanley Gibbons Monthly Circular.

A REHABILITATED ERROR.

More than ordinary courage of conviction is required to pay a sum of £2,000 for a stamp that some experts have condemned unanimously as a forgery—yet that is what Mr. Hugo Griebert did when he purchased the 2 reales blue error of Spain at the last Ferrari sale. It was first discovered by the late W. A. G. Westoby in 1868, but Moens and Dr. Legrand both declared it to be a postmarked proof. In 1899 a second copy turned up in Barcelona se tenant with a normal 6 reales stamp, subsequently finding its way into the Ferrari collection. Mr. Griebert, who was himself sceptical of the bona-fides of this error at one time, has apparently satisfied himself that it is all that it was represented to be, since he secured it in the face of keen competition.—Philatelic Magazine.

EDITORIAL.

The mended stamp masquerading as a sound one, so far as the absence of any marking on its blank side is considered, must go. Mr. Fennell has voiced a resolution to that effect, which is heartily seconded. Surely, there is only one side to the argument against the mended specimen and it will soon be necessary to formulate a plan for general adoption that will scotch the interlopers before they can work their woe and worry on the disillusioned collector. Latterly, the abuse of cleverly restored stamps has been so unchecked that it must be met squarely. A good many stamps come from abroad that are skilfully mended and the consignors of them do not in many cases give any clue to the defects of the stamps; and the result is that we must assimilate the mass, as it is in the aggregate. It is known that certain European sources must be watched closely and it is probable that action will be taken to send the careless sellers to Coventry. In a recent interview with Mr. Warren H. Colson, whose attendance at the Ferrari sales and extensive travels through the stamp domains of Europe have added to his ripe experience, he says that he is decidedly shocked at the quantity of mended stuff that is met with in his travels in this country, it having been some years since he has made a philatelic pilgrimage here. He favors unequivocally a war to the finish on the frauds and a general cleansing of the philatelic household. He is right, and it becomes the serious duty of all those who have philatelic investments, to protect them from all underhanded aggressions. There are the American Philatelic Society and the American Stamp Dealers' Association to speak for the collectors and the dealers, respectively; and we are sure that as soon as the matter is presented to them, these organizations will give their support to the reform. Mended stamps must be marked in the name of commercial fairness and the reputable stamp dealers must see that the branding is done. Rules for universal adoption based on the suggestions made by Mr. Fennell and copied by us last week, will be submitted in due course. In the meantime, a popular resentment must be worked up against the pretenders that no dealer, whatever his secret beliefs, will have the hardihood to oppose. The fight is not against the torn stamp as such but against it when it tries to hide its faults and pose as a stamp that is not impaired.

SCOTT STAMP AND COIN COMPANY
AUCTION DEPARTMENT
33 West 44th Street NEW YORK, N. Y.

Through the courtesy of Dr. Lister Tuholske, we are enabled to present the following statement of a correspondent in Antigua relative to the early distribution of the Barbuda stamps: "The reason why the Barbuda stamps were in the hands of dealers so quickly is that the Crown Agents in England have the selling of these stamps in charge and as Barbuda was indebted to Antigua for some four thousand odd pounds, they had to sell the stamps to try to repay this amount; and so far, over two thousand pounds' worth have been sold in England and other places." Thus, through the magic of the stamp collector do postage stamps become trasmuted into coin of the realm.

Snooping through the contents of a stampless cover dated Pinckneyville, Ill., Aug. 21st, 1845, and addressed to Joliet, Ill., we find the following paragraph: "This letter when it reached me was broken open and badly torn. It was so badly soiled that I could scarcely read it having been apparently thoroughly soaked in water. There was a note written on the outside by the postmaster at Springfield, stating that it was broken open by mail robbers between Springfield and Hillsboro and that it lay out in the prairie a long time before being found."

The artist who is responsible for the comic strip, "Jerry on the Job," which is so widely syndicated, employs a stamp album to good advantage in a recent cartoon. Jerry, the little lad, hears so much gab from the boss about Saving Stamps that he wishes to help him with "the greatest thing in the world for saving stamps," if the brainy boss will leave him off a while. The employer grants permission, his giant intellect working to the effect that sometimes the young idea, if untrammeled, may solve problems that floor "us older guys." Then Jerry brings in a large volume, marked "stamp album" in huge letters, whereupon the boss comports himself in the manner beloved by the newspaper artist, by diving headlong into the comfortable confines of his desk.

A critic uses his new fountain pen to indite us for not having attempted to place the "dealer who calls himself a collector in order to the better foist his goods on the unsuspicious." He does not stop with these words, but proceeds to illustrate his point that the stamp seller should not sail under his true colors, be he dealer or collector. We remember that when E. B. Sterling issued his last revenue catalogue in 1888, he said in the preface: "I have given up the idea of trying to call myself a collector, which, for years, I have adhered to, and I now realize that my line is one that would be termed a dealer. I still collect but not in the sense of old. I now cater to the stamp collecting trade; before, I catered to the collection of E. B. S." It is not always easy to draw the line betweeen dealer and collector. A few successful dealers do not devote their whole time to the stamp business and they do as much as some of the dealers who give their undivided attention to stamp selling. We have heard dealers say that all the money that they made out of their business was invested in their own collections. The subject has so many sides that it is not worth the time to consider them all but the more deeply one goes into it, the more intermingled collecting and dealing currents become. The line of demarcation between the two is a meandering one and we do not pretend to chart it. As time goes on, the tendency will be greater to segregate the collector and the dealer in a commercial sense; and we shall now dodge the issue, if there be one. We do not see why the buyer should be much perturbed over the trade classification of the stamp seller as his concern is with the stamps and the prices, together with the lesser details that may be included under the term, service.

We have received holiday greetings from many of our readers at home and abroad and some of the cards from other countries were nicely timed as to their arrival here. It is pleasant to be remembered and to all of those who have wished us the compliments of the season, we pause to pay our devoirs. A list of those who have addressed us includes names both great and small in a philatelic sense and each one is held in kind remembrance. To our foreign friends we give the assurance that their missives were cherished not alone for the striking stamp combinations that prepaid their letters, although, of course, it is not to be gainsaid that the letters were all the more fascinating for that reason.

PACIFIC SEA POST-OFFICES.

The first "sea post-office," established under United States government direction on the trans-Pacific run from Seattle to Oriental ports and return, arrived at Yokohama recently on the Admiral Line steamer President Jackson, thus marking a distinct innovation in accelerating the movement and delivery of mail from the United States to the Orient and vice versa. A United States postal clerk has been regularly detailed to the "sea post-office" by the Federal government and henceforth will accompany each Admiral Line boat from Seattle to the Orient and return.

The installation of post-offices on fast liners assigned to the trans-Pacific run will facilitate the handling and dispatch of mail. The postal clerk in charge will receive mail direct from the mail trains at Seattle and will sort it during the voyage, thus eliminating delay occasioned by sorting in the Seattle post-office. In the same way, mail arriving at Seattle from an Admiral Line steamer will be taken direct to mail trains and will not go through the Seattle post-office, except in isolated cases or when mail matter contains dutiable matter. Mail addressed to ports in the Orient will be sorted on the steamers, but will be sent to the post-offices for distribution. The new plan will save from one to two days at the postal terminii, it is said.—Tokyo, Japan, Advertiser.

ANNOUNCING — THE MANHATTAN CONGLOMERATION — $1.02

Last summer we created "The Moonshine Creation" which had " . . . neither ancestors nor posterity." But as Eve was created from a rib of ADAM—so THE MANHATTAN CONGLOMERATION has been created by the same genius which produced The Moonshine Creation.

The wise and mighty dealers of this metropolis said we could not do it and the learned exponents of our hobby at the Springfield A.P.S. Convention said that our plans were "impractical" in a tone of voice which meant "impossible." For months we have been working on this Conglomeration to make it the best bargain ever offered by any dealer.

As our first offer in the New Year we announce THE MANHATTAN CONGLOMERATION. 250 Diff. stamps in fine condition. Cat. value at least $10. Almost entirely new and recent issues, very few of which are mint New Europe. BUT—there are 100 or more varieties of CENTRAL AND SOUTH AMERICAN NEW AND RECENT ISSUES POSTALLY USED! These are worth more than the price of the entire Conglomeration —$1.02.

We suggest that the pessimists and the skeptics better get in on this. The buyers of The Moonshine Creation will need no second invitation. The MANHATTAN CONGLOMERATION—$1.02.

THE HOME OF THE POSTAGE STAMP, 510 W. 113TH ST., NEW YORK CITY

ALLEN'S PRECANCEL PARAGRAPHS.

By FREDERICK W. ALLEN.

Warren, Mass, steps into the fold bearing U-28 on its stamps. The 1c, 2c, 3c, 4c, 5c reading up and down, the 12c up, and 50c nor., inv., up and down, are the only varieties seen up to date.

There is a Winchester in Tennessee, as well as Massachusetts. Its claim to fame is not quite as tangible, perhaps, but it certainly deserves recognition for it has appeared in that handsome electro, U-18. The 1c surface print was an item which caught my eye.

A Peru in Indiana, a Paris in Kentucky, a Louisiana in Missouri, and now we know there's a Mexico, issuing precancels, which lies north of the Rio Grande. That "show me" state "Muhzoo" has demonstrated that their little Mexico is not so backward. For in pretty red block type between lines, I note MEXICO, MO., on the 6c, 8c and 10c of the current issue.

Lincoln, Neb., copies after Hastings and comes out with the same type of "electro." So far I have seen but the 1c perf. 10 in this type, but probably the whole series will be out soon. I understand that several sheets of the one-dollar value followed the 1c through the press. Lincoln has never used the dollar value before so we have something to look for before long.

Caldwell, Idaho, is the latest in U-18. A fine 30c caught my eye on a package and I copied it without delay.

Waterloo, Ia., and Elkhart, Ind., are both out in Universal 18. This type really has two distinct variations and so there should be a little more discrimination. Brooklyn may represent the one variety and Lincoln, Neb., or Hastings, the other. Waterloo resembles Brooklyn and Elkhart the latter type.

If you want several fine Peru, Ind., precancels in the handsome "electro" used there, order some stationery from the American Stationery Co. The stationery is well worth the money and the precancels received on your package will please you.

We now have another Lancaster added to the fold. The fifth member hails from the home of the Precancel Gazette, Minnesota. A handsome handstamp, with fancy caps is used, Lancaster being in lower case letters with Minn. in upper.

Marshall, Mich., is using the same type as Lancaster, Minn. The 8c and 10c are all that I have seen.

More dope on the new Lincoln, Neb.! Six sheets of the dollar value were precancelled and it is not expected that any more of this denomination in the present issue will be overprinted. All other values except the 13c were precancelled, also the 2c due. Nothing but normals have so far shown up, save a 5c inverted.

Brother Fans! How many of you have the McCook, Neb., spelled NcCook? This error occurs once every twenty-five stamps and is one to be on the lookout for.

Newman Grove, Nebr., is a new one to pop up. A 6c perf. 10 was discovered by my friend, John L. Parker, Sec, of the I. P. C. The type used was similar to U-6. That Mr. Parker has a rare stamp, I believe we shall all agree.

OUR REVIEW.

About fifteen years ago, M. Maury's exhaustive work on the postage stamps of France was published in Paris; and since that time, we have been awaiting a monograph on these popular stamps that would meet the demands of the student who was not proficient in the use of French. It may now be said happily that what has seemed to be a void has now been filled, as we have received a copy of the "Postage Stamps of France," by Sir James R. Andrew Clark, Bart., C. B., C.M.G., F.R.P.S.L., from the publishers, Frank Godden, Ltd., London, England.

This work of well on to one hundred pages carries a most engaging introduction in its typographical appearance. The four pages of half-tones are superb examples of the illustrative art and the cover is embellished with a large Liberty head. Our attention is arrested by the preface to the work in which the author gives a sketch of the historical and philatelical features of France, which is an admirable example of condensed and essential information. Beginning with the 1849 issue, the writer takes the stamps comprising the set and subjects them to close scrutiny and in this way he works down to date. The subject matter of the book is such as to make it a popular handbook, indeed, as on its pages every disposition is shown to explain and expound questions that confront the average collector who delves under the surface of the issues of France. Over half the book is allotted to the issues preceding the Ceres' type, so-called, of 1890; and of these earlier issues about everything is said that the collector wants to know. The Bordeaux issue is given very full attention and the three types of the first Bordeaux production, the 20 centimes blue, are described. What we commend particularly is a chapter, "Colonial General Issues," in which the author speaks of the imperforate French Colonial stamps that were issued to the colonies before distinctive colonial stamps were used. He says: "Their chief interest lies in the possibility, I might almost say probability, of their being mistaken for the corresponding imperforate issues of France, reprints, re-impressions or others." The points by which the several issues may be classified are presented carefully and the descriptions will remove a puzzling phase of the study of the stamps of France. A few pages are devoted to the essays, some of which are well known to many collectors. The price of the handbook is five shillings and six pence, post free and there is a de luxe edition of fifty copies, signed by the author, at 15s 9d, post free. Publishers: Frank Godden, Ltd., 359 Strand, London, W. C., England.

[illegible]at is what I would like to be able to [illegible]fter closing the year 1923. I can do [illegible]th your help. You have the stamps—[illegible]ave the money and clients. How can we get together is the point?

If you have fine United States I offer most any inducement to have you let them pass through my hands. Will buy for cash outright, will give excellent exchange or will sell on commission. Remember I not only want large properties but small ones as well, if attractive. Only postal adhesives at present—no envelopes or revenues. Especially desire mint early singles, pairs, strips and blocks, blocks of the higher values of the later issues, fine covers, rare earlies in fine used condition and the like. If you have one piece or a collection or a stock of duplicates, let's get together.

Stamps are a side issue with me—not my main business—carry them on as a pleasure, a recreation. No overhead, profit not the main consideration, so can pay handsome prices for handsome things. Should you desire I can furnish the best of bank, commercial or philatelic references. Been collecting nearly 30 years and selling on the side almost as long. Start the New Year right by dropping me a line. Let's get together—whether you sell or buy.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the addresses of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—Mr. H. W. Porter reports that rumors are current in Washington that the new 1c, 2c, 4c, 9c and 10c will be placed on sale in Washington at the office of the Philatelic Stamp Agent shortly after the first of the year. This is in line with information I received from the Department early in the month but at that time only the first three denominations mentioned would be ready. It is possible that the Bureau of Engraving and Printing is making considerable headway and is bettering the expectations of the Post Office Department. These will no doubt be followed closely by the others for they expect to have the entire series on sale before the end of February. As mentioned before, none of the plates of the old series will be cancelled until they become unfit for use.

During the last week I acquired a cover of most unusual interest and one worthy of mention for I believe its early use antedates any of the other recorded covers where the stamp is attached to the cover by cancellation. I refer to a cover showing a magnificent early printing of the 5c 1847 with every line sharp and, with large margins, used on July the 16th, 1847. The stamp is in the upper right corner, cancelled with two of the red square New York grid cancellations which clearly fall on both the cover and stamp. On the cover we find the red circular postmark reading "New York, 16 July—5 cts". The letter is dated New York, July 16, 1847, and addressed to Messrs. Corcoran & Riggs at Washington. On the outside of the cover they have made a further notation as to the date they received the letter.

The letter itself is in regards to a draft on G. W. Walker, dated Havana, June 30, 1847, and drawn by one Second Lieut. James H. Jones of the Marine Corp.

Dr. Chase in the Philatelic Gazette, Vol. VI, page 169, mentions July 31st as the earliest cover he knows where the stamp is actually tied to the cover by cancellation. He speaks of covers dated July 5th and July 7th but in both cases the stamps are uncancelled. To the best of my knowledge, although I may be in error, none are known used earlier and if any of our readers are aware of covers of earlier use where the stamp is actually cancelled on the cover we would like to be advised.

Mr. L. A. Boone sends for inspection something new in the way of late cancellations, namely a Georgetown, Texas, reading "1873 Golden Jubilee 1923—Southwestern University". While as a rule we do not endeavor to list the many cancellations now being used throughout the country this seems to be unusual in that it is the first University postmark in recent years that has come to my attention. I recall that the "University of Virginia" had a postmark in the eighties but I believe that was used by a post-office actually established within the University.

In my Chronicle for November 18th mention was made of two denominations of a new series of "Cigarett Tax" stamps issued by the State of Iowa. Mr. Charles Mueller kindly sends an unchronicled value, namely, the 2c in red.

BELGIUM.—We have just received from Mr. Henry Hooreman the following additional values in the new series: 35c brown and 40c crimson. Also in the type of A58 the 75c scarlet, 2frs green and 10frs red lilac.

BERMUDA.—Mr. Benedict Preith in a recent letter advised that he has been informed by a correspondent in the colony that the 1d and 2½d have also appeared on the new script paper.

BRITISH GUIANA.—In advising us of the appearance of the 6c blue script watermark, Mr. L. Meister adds that he is informed that it will take many months yet before the 48c script can be obtained in the colony.

BR. HONDURAS.—This Colony is to have Postage Due stamps, if official information does not mislead us. 2c and 4c values are being printed, 2c stamps in the "Nyasaland" type are also in preparation.—Stanley Gibbons Monthly Circular.

BR. SOLOMON ISLES.—The 1d has bee printed on Script paper, but there's man a slip 'twixt the "print" and the "issue" in these distant places. The 3d is expected to appear in the "POSTAGE" "REVENUE" type, but they may decid to change the colour to blue and scra the supply in yellow. One never knows —Stanley Gibbons Monthly Circular.

HUNGARY.—Mr. G. Stanley Haine sends us the 5kr brown in the ne series of official stamps. Mr. Haine also adds that he has also 50 and 100k which are identical with the 5kr value except that "Hivatalos" and value are i carmine.

IRISH FREE STATE.—Mr. Michael Francis O'Donnell forwards to us a copy o the new issue of the 2d value of th permanent design. In the center is th outline of the country with the word "ERIN" above in a curved frame. I each lower corner is the figure of valu with the native words between. Th color is green and our corresponden adds that its advent marks a new e for Ireland and augurs well for th future.

KEDAH.—Mr. R. Roberts reports th 1c black on script watermarked paper.

MOZAMBIQUE.—1922, New colour General type of Portuguese Colonie 1913, inscribed "MOCAMBIQUE": 15c re brown, 60c deep blue, 80c rose, 2 esc dos deep lilac.—West End Philatelis

NEW ZEALAND.—The Australian Stan Journal confirms that the new 5d bl is available perf. 14 x 14½ in comple sheets, as well as 14 x 13½.—Stamp Co lecting.

NICARAGUA.—Mr. A. A. Wasserscheid and the Economist Stamp Co. call our attention to two new surcharges that have recently appeared. The 10c orange yellow of the 1914 series has been overprinted "Vale 0.02 de cordoba" in two lines in black. The other stamp is a lilac shade with the surcharge "Nicaragua" across the top, "R. de C." in the centre and "Vale un Cent." at the base. The printing is in blue.

ONE-DAY AIR MAIL SERVICE TO COLOMBIA

A Colombian air mail service has been organized, and its advantages are offered to American business men by L. Vasquez Greiff & Co., 508 South Dearborn street, who are agents for the line and will supply details as to rates and routes. The owner is the Sociedad Colombo-Alemana de Transports Aereos (Colombian-German Aerial Transport Company). Mail forwarded from Barranquilla, Colombia, on Tuesdays and Fridays will reach Bogota on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Contrasted to this one-day service is the eight-to-ten days' service offered by government boats. Sometimes rivers are so low that the journey takes twelve to fifteen days. —Chicago Journal of Commerce.

SPOKANE, WASH., ORGANIZES.

The Spokane Philatelic society was organized December 12, by a dozen stamp collectors, meeting in the assembly hall of the Chamber of Commerce. Officers were chosen, a constitution and by-laws adopted and an entertainment committee appointed. The following officers were elected:—

H. Coburn Jones, president.
Thomas de V. Harper, vice president.
E. Van Auken, secretary-treasurer.
F. O. Spoor, director-at-large.

President Jones is a member of the American Philatelic Society. All members of the newly organized society have made a life study of stamps. There are about 25 adult stamp collectors in the city. President Jones says:—"We want to get all of them to join. Our meetings will be held once a month."

My Prices on Old U. S. Outrageous—

because I have a large stock; nothing of the kind. It is the little fellow who only handles a copy occasionally of the rare items, such as 5c N. Y., 10c 1847, 5c 1851, 5c brick red, 5c buff, 90c of 1857, 1868 or 1869, that thinks he has a gold mine. because so few copies pass thru his hands.

I have these rare U. S. by the dozens, some of them by hundreds. No, they were not given to me, I paid out good money, but I bought them when they were not quite as high as they are now, so if you wish to take advantage of my foresight, and buy these scarce U. S. right, give me your want list. I have superb, ordinary or slightly defective copies, which will you inspect? Your pocket-book must be your guide.

Don't forget the little old reference, as I am not taking any chances on this class of goods.

MAIL FOR U. S. NAVAL VESSELS, U. S. MARINE CORPS ORGANIZATIONS AND FOR THE AMERICAN FORCES IN GERMANY.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12, 1922.

Effective Tuesday, December 19, 1922, mail for United States naval vessels and United States Marine Corps organizations, addressed "Care Postmaster, New York, N. Y."; also mail for the American forces in Germany, will be handled at the foreign station instead of at the Foreign Station Annex, New York City, as at present. Postmasters and railway postal clerks are hereby directed to continue making up packages of letters under labels reading "New York, N. Y. —Naval Mail," or "New York, N. Y.—American forces in Germany," as the case may be, and to include such packages of letters, on and after December 19, 1922, in the pouches made up for the Foreign Station, New York, N. Y.; that is, in the pouches labeled "New York, N. Y.—Foreign." Papers and parcel-post packages will be included in separate sacks labeled "New York, N. Y.—Foreign (Naval Mail)." Registered articles will be included in the "New York, N. Y.—Foreign" registered mails.

The instructions published under caption "Naval mails," on page 156 of the annual Postal Guide for 1922, are modified accordingly.

PAUL HENDERSON,
Second Assistant Postmaster General.

NEW ISSUE NOTES.

Lithuania.—In addition to the five provisional stamps chronicled last month, we have received another value, "1 litas" surcharged on 100 auksinai. From this it would appear that "litas" is singular as well as plural.

A set of twelve so-called "stamps" each bearing a different portrait of some Lithuanian notable, has been issued to commemorate the admission of Lithuania into the League of Nations. Our agent informs us that these labels were not issued for postal use, but merely as souvenirs, and are sold only in sets, which now realize fancy prices locally. These are of no philatelic interest and we shall neither deal in them nor include them in our catalogue

Mauritius.—The 12c grey (King's head) stamps have now been superseded by a new stamp of the same design, but printed in carmine, and even this will very shortly become obsolete, as a new 12c stamp of the "Arms" type is being printed.

Roumania.—We have had many inquiries for the recently issued Coronation stamps, but all our efforts to obtain them at a reasonable price or in sufficient quantity for our New Issue Service have proved unsuccessful. We are informed that only one set to each applicant was allowed to be sold at the Post Offices, that the supply was quickly exhausted and the stamps are now fetching high prices.—Whitfield King & Co.'s Monthly List.

SOVIET STATES JOIN RUSSIA.

(Cecil F. Blogg of Seattle sends us the following newspaper clipping and calls our attention to the fact that when this contemplated union of independent states with Russia occurs and their stamps disappear, collectors who neglected these issues will be sorry. It is an interesting bit of news.—W. O. W.)

Moscow, Monday, Dec. 18.—The disappearance of the Ukrainian, Georgian, Armenian and Azerbaijanian republics as independent states through a merger with Russia, thereby ending a long period of loose federation and inaugurating instead a real peace in Russia became certain today when the largest republic—Ukraine—whose Parliament is in session at Kharkov, unanimously adopted such resolutions.

"We hope the other states will do likewise," says a telegram addressed to Nikolai Lenine, "and hope to see you shortly heading a united all-soviet republic."

The reasons given for putting an end to the present system are the necessity for industrial co-operation, pooling economic resources and making united Russia stronger.

FROM GERMANY.

A policy-holder of the Bankers Life of Des Moines, who is now living in Germany, feeling that he could not rely on the value of the mark, recently sent the company 2,000 one-cent United States postage stamps to cover his premium. The stamps arrived in good order and were of course accepted by the company. Along the same line, a Vienna insurance journal tells of a widow who traveled from Meidling to that city by train to collect a 3,000 kronen policy claim. Her traveling expenses were 2,000 kronen. An industrial policy claimant mailed a policy and death certificate to a Vienna company and the paper and envelope, postage and registration cost 340k, while the insurance was 216k. A twenty-year endowment policy matured for 10,000k. The holder turned the proceeds over to her daughter, who could not purchase a handkerchief with it. A German policy-holder sent 100k as a premium to Vienna, the registration stamp costing 6 marks or 300k. And some Americans think it is difficult to pay life insurance premiums.—Weekly Underwriter.

ST. KITTS-NEVIS, 1890-1922.

By HARRY E. HUBER.

XV. War Tax Stamps, 1916-18.

Canada was the first of the British dominions to levy a war tax on correspondence, and to issue special stamps for its prepayment. Effective 1st March, 1915, every letter and post card posted in Canada was taxed 1 cent, and for this a special 1c WAR TAX stamp was issued. New Zealand followed later in the same year, and in 1916, Jamaica, the Windwards, and several of the Leewards came into line. This war tax was imposed as a means to raise revenue to meet the increased expenses incident to local defense measures, and the sending of contingents to the front.

In Antigua, St. Kitts-Nevis, and Dominica of the Leewards, an Order-in-Council, made on the 9th August, 1916, levied a tax of ½d on certain letters, to become effective 1st September. Locally, and between the Presidencies, the letter-rate remained 1d.

"RULE

In addition to the postage now chargeable on letters posted in the Presidencies of Antigua, St. Kitts-Nevis, and Dominica, and addressed to any place in the United Kingdom, or in any other part of the British Empire, outside of the Colony of the Leeward Islands, there shall be charged on every such letter the following additional postage:

On every such letter..........................½d

This rule shall come into effect on the 1st September, 1916, and shall remain in force until the 31st day of March, 1917.

Made by the Governor-in-Council under the authority of section 6, of Leeward Islands Act No. 9 of 1909, this 9th day of August, 1916.

E. D'A. TIBBITS,
Clerk of the Council."

In St. Kitts-Nevis, the following notice was issued by the G. P. O. at Basseterre:—

"POST OFFICE NOTICE.

On and after 1st September all Letters posted to places in the British Empire (except Antigua, Montserrat, Dominica and the Virgin Islands) must bear an extra ½d stamp, in addition to the usual postage. ½d stamps surcharged 'WAR STAMP' will shortly be on sale for this purpose. Until these are ready ordinary stamps can be used."

The tax became effective September 1st, 1916, and as the special stamps were not yet available, ordinary ½d stamps were used to denote the extra postage paid. In October, 1916, the overprinted stamps were received and issued, being a printing of the ½d, 1903 design, overprinted in black WAR TAX, 11x3 mm., in a single line of sans serif capitals. The overprint was applied in London, by De La Rue & Co., Ltd., to complete sheets of 120 stamps, from the same plate used for the London overprinted War Tax stamps of St. Lucia and Grenada, issued in September, 1916.

The Post Office Notice refers to the special stamps as being surcharged WAR STAMP, but the issued stamp bears the overprint WAR TAX.

The first printing was on thin paper, blue green in color, but subsequent printings were on medium paper.

The use of the overprinted stamps was not compulsory as in some Colonies, providing sufficient ordinary stamps were used, nor was the use of the War Tax stamp restricted. That is, it was permissible to use all ordinary, or all War Tax stamps, for postage, war tax, and registration fees.

By the Order-in-Council of 9th August, 1916, the ½d war tax was made applicable only to the United Kingdom and the British Empire, beyond the Colony. This tax was later made effective, on and after 1st February, 1917, on letters to the United States of America, by an Order-in-Council of 19th December, 1916.

"RULE.

In addition to the postage now chargeable on letters posted in the Presidencies of Antigua, St. Kitts-Nevis, and Dominica, and addressed to any place in the United States of America, there shall be charged on every such letter the following additional postage.

On every such letter..........................½d

This rule shall come into effect on the 1st February, 1917.

ward Islands Act No. 9 of 1909, this 29th day of December, 1916.

E. D'A. Tibbits,
Clerk of the Council."

Before the terms of the order of August 9, 1916, expired, a further Order-in-Council, made the 12th February, 1917, extended the time limit indefinitely.

"Rule

In addition to the postage now chargeable on letters posted in the Presidencies of Antigua, St. Kitts-Nevis, and Dominica, and addressed to any place in the United Kingdom or in any part of the British Empire, outside of the Colony of the Leeward Islands, there shall be charged on every such letter the following additional postage:

On every such letter........................½d

This rule shall come into effect on the 1st April, 1917, and shall remain in force until rescinded.

Made by the Governor-in-Council under the authority of section 6 of Leeward Islands Act No. 9 of 1909, this 12th day of February, 1917.

E. D'A. Tibbits,
Clerk of the Council."

There being no 1½d stamp in the Presidency series for the prepayment of combined postage and war tax, a border plate with this denomination was made up, for use with the St. Kitts seal vignette plate. This stamp, printed in orange, on thin paper, with watermark showing transparently, and overprinted WAR STAMP, in small thin caps, 12x2 mm., in full sheets of 120 stamps, was issued at Basseterre July 24th, 1918. There is a plate variety with the letters of WAR STAMP in slightly smaller type, on stamps 55 and 56 of the right pane. The stamp does not exist without the WAR STAMP overprint. The official notice relating to the issues of this 1½d stamp is dated July 26th, 1918.

"Administrator's Office,
St. Kitts-Nevis,
26th July, 1918.

It is hereby notified for general information that the postage to all parts of the Empire (outside of this Colony), to the United States of America, and to certain other places being now 1½d per ounce. a St. Kitts-Nevis Postage and Revenue stamp of this value, overprinted WAR STAMP, has, for public convenience, been introduced.

These stamps are now on sale at the several Post Offices in the Presidency.

George H. King,
Postmaster."

The first printing of the 1½d WAR STAMP was exhausted by October; a further lot was received in December, 1918.

The formal Order-in-Council authorising the issue of a 1½d stamp was not made until February 21st, 1919, being published in the Leeward Islands Gazette of the 27th February.

"Order-in-Council

Whereas by section 3 of the Leeward Islands General Stamp Act, 1890, as amended by the Leeward Islands Stamp Act, 1902, it is enacted that 'there shall be a uniform stamp or stamps for use throughout the Colony whereby all Postage Rates and Stamp Duties may be respectively denoted or expressed and such stamps shall be adhesive or embossed or impressed or otherwise as the Governor may by Order-in-Council from time to time direct—provided that the Governor may from time to time by Order-in-Council direct that a special stamp or stamps may be used in each or any Presidency concurrently with such uniform stamp or stamps as aforesaid"—

And whereas by section 4 of the Leeward Islands General Stamp Act, 1890, it is enacted that the Governor from time to time shall by Orders-in-Council fix the design or designs and the mode in which each design shall be used and the several values of the stamp or stamps to be used in accordance with said Act:

And whereas it is desirable that there should be special stamps of the denomination of one and a half penny for use in the Presidencies of Antigua and St. Kitts-Nevis concurrently with the stamps of the Colony;

Now therefore, the Governor-in-Council doth hereby order and direct—

(1) that there shall be special stamps of the denomination of one and a half penny for use in the Presidencies of Antigua and St. Kitts-Nevis, concurrently with the stamps of the Colony;

(2) that the said special stamp for use in the Presidency of Antigua shall be adhesive, and shall be of the same design as the special stamps now in use in the said Presidency;

(3) that the said special stamp for use in the Presidency of St. Kitts-Nevis shall be adhesive, and shall be of the same design as the special stamps now in use in the said Presidency.

Made by the Governor-in-Council this twenty-first day of February, 1919.

E. D'A. Tibbits,
Clerk of the Council."

As many printings were made numerous shade varieties exist of both the ½d and 1½d war tax stamps. (The fourth printing of the 1½d was dispatched in March, 1919.) In November, 1919, both values were exhausted at Basseterre, but the 1½d was still to be had at Charleston, Nevis, early in 1920. On November 2nd, 1917, the letter rate in the United States was raised to 3 cents per ounce, and this naturally applied to all foreign letters taking the domestic rate, including of course, the Leeward Islands. The 2c rate was restored July 1st, 1919.

1916-18, Presidency series, overprinted in black, in one line of sans serif caps WAR TAX, 11x3 mm. (for ½d) or WAR STAMP, 12x2 mm. (for 1½d), in London, by De La Rue & Co., Ltd. Watermarked multiple Crown CA. Comb Perf. 14. Plate 1.

a. WAR STAMP in smaller letters, Nos. 55 and 56 on right pane.

XVI. Federation Series, King George V. Plates 5, 6, 8, 1916-20.

Plate 5, a 120 set plate, was made up at the same time (1915) as plates 3 and 4 (both 120 sets), but with the plate number four times on sheets of 120 stamps, in the usual positions, in the upper and lower margins. It differs, too, in that the upper and lower marginal lines continue across the narrow gutter separating the panes, instead of simply enclosing the panes. This plate was used for printings of the Federation stamps, ¼d, ½d, 1d, 3d on lemon yellow, 6d and 5s on lemon yellow sent out in 1916; the 2d in 1917, and the 1s and 5s on yellow in 1919.

Plate 5 becoming worn it was replaced in 1918 by plate 6, also 120 set, producing sheets with the plate number positioned as for plate 5. The ¼d and 1d of the Federation series were printed from this plate in 1919.

When plate 3 was discarded in 1918, another 120 set plate (with plate numbers in upper margin only) was made up, numbered 7, to work with plate 4 (with plate numbers in lower margin only), thus making a 240 set printing plate. Plate 4 becoming worn, it was replaced in 1920 by plate 9 (with plate numbers in lower margin only), also 120 set. However, plates 4, 7 and 9 were never used in printing stamp supplies for the Federation.

Late in 1919, plate 6 was superseded by plate 8, 120 set, with plate numbers (four) in the usual positions, and this was used for supplies of the ½d, 1d, 2d, 2½d, 3d, 6d and 5s stamps sent out to the Colony in 1920.

Plate 5. 1916, ¼d, ½d, 1d, 3d, 6d, 5s.
1917, 2d.
1919, 1s and 5s.
Plate 6. 1919, ¼d and 1d.
Plate 8. 1920, ½d, 1d, 2d, 2½d, 3d, 6d, 5s.

After 1915-16, the operations of the Federation Post Offices showed the usual annual profit.

COLOMBIAN REP. AIR MAIL STAMPS.

Through the kindness of Joseph V. K. Wells of the Home of the Postage Stamp we are able to give this information concerning the Colombian Republic air mail service. Mr. Wells writes us as follows with a sample cover as an exhibit:—

"There seem to be two varieties of the 10c, one is a greenish blue of the same type as the 30c herewith and the other is big yellow label 50 mm. wide (on a horizontal plane) and 33 mm. long. It shows an airplane in flight over the ocean and in the border, on each side, is a female figure wildly waving her arms. The 20c and 50c are the same type as the 30c herewith. They are red and indigo blue respectively. We have not seen the other values."

We also quote from a letter of Gonzalo Mejia, addressed to Mr. Wells, the following:—

"I take pleasure in sending you herewith circular giving complete details regarding the Colombian Air Mail Service. I, however, wish to add that since this circular was issued, quite sometime ago, the service has been so successful and of such great benefit to all those who have occasion to use it that it has been augmented to two trips a week, thus making connections with all incoming and outgoing steamers at Barranquilla, Cartagena and Santa Marta.

This service is not controlled nor operated by the Colombian Government. However, the Sociedad Colombo-Alemana de Transportes Aereos, is an entity recognized by the Colombian Government as a mail carrier, being permitted to act in this capacity by virtue of a contract entered into by and between these two parties.

At Barranquilla, Cartagena and Santa Marta the mail is delivered by the Colombian Government to the Sociedad Colombo-Alemana de Transportes Aereos. It is then taken by the company to the various cities named in the circular and left with the offices of the National Postal Department in those districts. In other words, the Government assumes responsibility up to the time the mail is delivered to the Aeroplane Company and after its subsequent surrender at the National Post Office Stations. This relieves the Government of all responsibility for the mail for the period of time during which it is handled by the Aeroplane Company.

Naturally, only such mail as is properly stamped and addressed for transmission by this service, in accordance with the directions set forth in the circular, is forwarded by aeroplane.

The special stamps have been issued in various denominations of 5c, 10c, 20c, 30c, 50c, $1.00, $2.00 and $3.00, also 15c. They are sold at face value and can be obtained at this office, or will be sent to those who wish to purchase them upon receipt of a remittance to cover their value.

The foregoing, I think, covers all the important features of this service, but if there is any additional data which you are desirous of obtaining, I shall be pleased to furnish you with same, upon request.

If you wish to, you might mention my name in conjunction with this service, as I am the duly authorized representative in this country of the Sociedad Colombo-Alemana de Transportes Aereos."

THE SPECIAL OF JANUARY 20

The special number of the WEEKLY for Jan. 20, will no doubt go into the mails somewhat late. It will be larger than usual and we think it best to let our subscribers know the situation.

In this connection we may add that the Christmas season resulted in many delays in the delivery of our paper, and a great deal of dissatisfaction has been expressed. Of course it is impossible for us to regulate the delivery of the WEEKLY. We do our best to get it in the mails regularly each week, but subscribers must remember that second-class matter is never permitted to have the right of way.

ECONOMICAL BRITISH COLONIALS.

(In this new series an independent collector of modern British Colonials gives readers of the M.C. the fruits of his considerable experience of the market in these stamps. While we are naturally not in all cases in agreement with his views, we have left him free to state his own opinions, believing that readers will welcome an absolutely independent commentary of this nature.—Ed. M.C.)

Br. Honduras.—1913-21. Although at time of writing most of this issue is still current, new values on Script are appearing from time to time, some of them in a new design. Owing doubtless to the high exchange, with an almost certain fall, many dealers and others have refrained from purchasing this issue to a large extent. I have no doubt that as a result of this policy most of these stamps will rise considerably as soon as they become obsolete and their real scarcity is realized. The dollar values have always been hard to get, especially used, and should be good. The $2, which was the first to become obsolete, will probably prove the best of these. With regard to the paper varieties of the 25c, I prefer the olive paper, particularly so on what I might call the sub-variety "pale" green back, but it seems highly probable that as the emerald has had a very short life, it having already appeared in the new (Nyasaland) type, it may well prove to be the best of the lot by a long way.

1921-22. Script CA. Such values as have appeared are all in the old colours; the 5-cent is also in the new design, so that colour changes may be expected in the low values. As these do not seem to be at all plentiful it would be as well to get them while they are still current.

Br. Solomon Is.—1913. The ½d and 1d are not common, but as they have already risen considerably in price, no very rapid further rise is probable. The 3d and 11d are still current, I believe, but the latter is not a common stamp. The 3d on provisional paper is fairly scarce, and, I think, should prove a good purchase at any reasonable price.

1914-17. While none of this issue is particularly common, the shilling values are fairly scarce, and the 5s and upwards are quite uncommon. I certainly think that the high values are worth getting while they are still current.

Br. Somaliland. 1912-19. As the whole of this set has now been obsolete for some months, it ought to be far easier to say which are the scarcest. Although all have risen in price, the 2a and 3r would seem to be the best. With regard to this and other issues in rupee currency, it should not be forgotten that the rupee was worth over 2s not so very long ago, and was, in fact, standardized at that figure. Today it is worth a little under 1s 4d, its pre-war parity value. The fact is that a number of these stamps must have been bought at the high value of the rupee, and this will help to keep prices up.

1921-22. Script CA. The low values, being in old colours, may quite possibly be changed, so that it would be as well to get these.

Brunei.—1908-16. The bicoloured 5c and 8c are not common, but they have settled down in value now. Of the others, the 10c white back, 50c on green, and the dollar values are fairly scarce, and when they become obsolete the last named should be fairly good.

Canada.—1912-18. Used copies are so plentiful that no appreciable rise in price is likely.

1921-22. New Colours, etc. The same remark applies.

Cayman Is.—1912-16. Although obsolete the majority are still obtainable at reasonable prices. However, the 3d, 1s, 5s, and 10s all rose appreciably almost as soon as they went out of issue. The best of the set is probably the 5s, followed by the 3d and 10s. Personally, I rather like the 2s and 3s, and I do not believe they are nearly as plentiful as is often thought. With regard to the coloured papers, the white-backs are not, I should say, as good as was at one time believed, although the 10s is a nice stamp. The best of the 3d is, I think, the new yellow paper, and the original green is the best of the 10s, unless, of course, you differentiate between the olive and pale green papers, in which case I will add that the former is easily the scarcest of the lot, and the other is the commonest.

1921-22. New Design. The 3d exists on both original and new yellow papers, the latter being quite scarce. At one time it was believed that only a small quantity of the 2½d had been printed, and that the next printing was to be in a different colour. The price consequently soared, but as the rumour appeared groundless the price fell back again to normal, and beyond the fact that, in common with the other low values, it is due for a change in colour, there seems nothing special about it.

Ceylon.—1912-20. Here, again, the quantity of used copies keeps the price down, and consequently large rises in value should not be expected. The white-backs do not seem to be nearly as good as their catalogue price should indicate.

1921-22. Script CA. Some of these will undoubtedly have a very short life, as colour changes are imminent, even if they have not already taken place. The quantity of used copies is not likely to affect the values of these to anything like the same extent as it does the previous issue, so that these should be got before the price jumps.

China.—1917-21. The closing down of these offices has drawn attention to this issue, so that it is perhaps unnecessary for me to say much about it. Used copies are fairly plentiful, and generally speaking cheap, except perhaps for nice copies of the high values, for which there seems to be a better market on the Continent. Both the 50c emeralds should prove good, although at the moment the first seems far scarcer than the second.

1922. Script CA. Should all prove quite good.

Cyprus.—1912. All the low values are fairly plentiful, but the high values are scarce, particularly the 45 pi.

1922. Script CA. Some of the low values in the old colours are already obsolete and scarce at time of writing, and by the time this is printed I suppose some of the others will be too. The shortness of the time in issue should be a sufficient indication to most collectors to go after these quickly. I should say they are quite scarce enough to rise considerably in price almost at once.

Dominica.—1903-19. This is quite a nice set, with the 2s6d by far the best of the lot, the next best being the 6d and the 2s. The reason for the scarcity of the 2s6d is easily found in its very short life. The 5s is still current, but not at all common, though I doubt if its scar-

SLOGAN CANCELLATIONS.

By A. H. PIKE and Associates.

A Check List of "Slogan Cancellations" (Advertising Marks) of the United States, corrected to Oct. 1st (1922) was published in the "Collectors' Digest" No. 10. Each slogan was given a distinctive number and allowances made for new issues. As announced on page 556 of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY, dated Nov. 11th, a chronicle of new issues and additions will appear under the above heading in this periodical from time to time. We must ask the assistance of readers in order to locate varieties as early as possible. Instead of forwarding this information to the WEEKLY office, please address the writer at 80 Grant St., Buffalo, N. Y.

EXPLANATION.—Each manufacturer of cancelling machines uses a distinctive design of postal marking and for this reason it is necessary to distinguish them by a Type letter. In the following list ITT means "International Type T", UTO means "Universal Type O", etc. Die numbers are usually found within the postmark circle. Where no die number is shown we designate them as Die O. Each machine in a post office has its own die number. Occasionally there will be more than one variety of a die of the same number. Those of our readers who use the "Digest" Check List will find it to their advantage to add the following new numbers in ink or pencil to their list and refer to this list for the new varieties:

EDITORIAL.

The collector of postal trophies testifying to the prowess or persistence of the post-office department has another specimen for his file. The rubber-stamped inscription that follows, appears on mail that was carried on the lost airplane concerning whose whereabouts so much speculation was indulged in by the press: "Delayed by forced landing Air ail Plane, Porcupine Ridge, Utah, Dec. , 1922. Recovered Dec. 27, 1922."

Recently, Mr. G. C. Rheinfrank of Chicago, paid a charge of $1.30 on a parcel post package from Austria, which was delivered through the intermediary of a foreign freight contractor in New York City. The addressee wrote to the forwarders asking for an explanation of their connection with the postal service and for information as to the basis for the charges that did not accrue to the postal account. The letter from Messrs. T. D. Downing follows: "We are in receipt of your communication in reference to package which we sent you via COD Parcel Post, and we would advise you that the charges as collected by the post-office department for our account cover our charge for making entry and for delivery from the Government warehouse to the Post-Office. The postage from New York to Chicago was prepaid by the shipper." From several experiences that have come to our notice, we think that some confusion exists in the minds of the occasional importer as to the private and postal status of a package of this kind, and we wish that some reader would briefly describe to us the two means that combine to handle the parcel.

The mended stamp is running to cover; and it seems as though all that was needed was a few pot shots at him. His guilty conscience makes him flee without a fight. One dealer asks us to make it plain that the mended stamp, as such, is not attacked, but we think that it is not necessary to enlarge on this point as that proposition is self-evident. The question of the manner to be adopted by American dealers comes up for discussion and suggestions other than that proposed by Mr. Fennell that "a small 'R' surrounded by a circle would be an inoffensive but unmistakable sign" may be submitted to his paper or to us.

The Turkey Trot cancellation of Cuero, Texas, which was illustrated in our paper of December 9th, 1922, prompted those of our readers who give eye to advertising cancellations to write to the postmaster at Cuero for impressions of the marking. In view of the increasing number of collectors of the special postmarks, the post-office department has been gracious enough to anticipate and encourage this collecting off-shoot by issuing the following instructions to postmasters, under date of the 28th of December, 1922: "From reports received from time to time it is apparent that the department's philatelic stamp agency is serving to make the Postal Service popular with philatelists and others who follow the practice of collecting the various issues of postage stamped paper. For the purpose of increasing this popularity the department desires to accommodate these patrons and other good citizens engaged in the practice of collecting impressions of postmarks, and to accomplish this end postmasters are requested to comply with applications for copies of impressions of postmarks of their offices in all cases, when such applications are accompanied with return postage.—W. Irving Glover, Third Assistant Postmaster General."

A. Leon Adutt, J. P., Margate, England, president of the Isle of Thanet Philatelic Society, allows no opportunity for philatelic promotion to be wasted and moreover he is not only a theorist in his support of the pursuit; he gives his time and his talents with great goodwill. Mr. Adutt says: "It may be of interest to you to know that I have this week given a Lantern Lecture written by Fred. J. Melville and illustrated by sixty slides entitled 'Postage Stamps with a history' to the pupils of Margate College, numbering over 350 boarders. The principal of the college is W. Leach Lewis, Esq., J. P., and is at present Mayor of Margate. The lecture was naturally much appreciated, more particularly as the Principal drew the boys' attention to the fact that I was one of their number thirty-five years ago and have since occupied the Civic chair. I am pleased to report that there are a very large number of collectors at the College, budding philatelists, generally, and the principals recognise that the collecting of stamps undoubtedly materially helps the scholars with their knowledge of geography and history generally, both important subjects being acquired naturally in an interesting manner."

Mr. Carl Krug of Cincinnati, Ohio, is cruel enough to bring up the past in the form of Volume I, Number 1, of the Philatelist, Denver, April, 1893, published by the notorious Lewis Bishop, whose name for many years has been anathema in philatelic circles. Mr. Krug marks our article "A Comparison That Is Not Odious" in order that it may not escape our eye! The less said about that article, the better; nor will it be mentioned that it is illustrated by a small halftone of the "author" in his age of innocence. We find over a page of notes from Chicago, headed delectably, "Philatelic Tid Bits," as a second contribution. Lewis Bishop was a Mephistopheles, indeed, as not alone did he not pay his contributors but he induced them to help finance his monthly. The fact is that Bishop was so plausible in his letters and seemingly so naive in some respects that he succeeded in enlisting the good-will of some of the big-hearted stamp folks in this country and England. In the Philatelist, Henry Ades Fowler, Toronto, Canada, was advertising his forthcoming Canadian Journal of Philately at three dollars a year and the Scott Stamp and Coin Co., L'd, was offering the 53rd edition of the catalogue. In the "Notes from Missouri," we find the following by Lieut. Powell Coleman: "I saw quite a curiosity in the stamp line belonging to a visitor in Salisbury. For a watch charm, he wore a small golden frame with glass sides. Incased in this frame were the 90 cent stamps of 1868 and 1869, one of which could be seen from either side; neither of the stamps was used and they furnished quite a beautiful appearance. Upon being asked, he said that he was no stamp collector but that he was one-year-old when on Jan. 1st, 1870, they were given to him as a birthday present by a stamp collecting uncle. He values them at $50, aye, I dare say they will not be sold for quite a number of years." We hope that the lieutenant is not drawing the long bow in his wish to entertain,—but here, we have just paid well over $50 for an unused ninety cent of 1869. Still, the years from 1893 to 1923 may be "quite a number," although it seems to us that it was only a short time since we received this first and last number of the Philatelist from the hand of Bishop, himself. We want to think that Bishop meant well and who knows that but in his simplicity, he thought that editing a stamp paper in the way he had in mind was a short cut to riches and that in a short time he could distribute largesse from his golden throne.

The next discontinuance of subscriptions will concern all subscribers whose wrappers bear the numbers 1672 to 1675 inclusive. Just glance at your wrapper immediately in order to make sure that your subscription is paid up. You have ample time in which to renew and be saved the inconvenience of a discontinuance. Moreover, under our new system we are making no plans for furnishing back numbers and subscribers must not expect that we can supply back numbers when we have made every effort to notify them.

We are satisfied that the system we have inaugurated is the only one under which a newspaper can do business these days, and subscribers must understand that free copies of the WEEKLY will not be sent to those who are in arrears.

PANAMA BOOK JUST ISSUED.

It is with a no small sense of satisfaction that our book on Panama by F. E. Heydon comes from the press. It is a specialized work that will no doubt be the premier book for many years to come on the stamps of this country. It has seventy pages and is very freely illustrated, and we heartily commend this book to all our readers. It has a handsome cover and may really be considered a fine specimen of the printer's art. Price 50c. Address, Beverly or Portland.

THE MANHATTAN CONGLOMERATION - - - $1.02

When we speak of The Manhattan Conglomeration, we feel that it is well named and that it is a worthy product of Manhattan Island. Ever since Peter Minuit bought the whole place for $24 worth of gewgaws, people have come here looking for bargains. We'll gamble our last year's Scott's Cat. against any other cat alive or otherwise that you never expected so much from any packet as you will obtain from The Manhattan Conglomeration.

Had the Indians been stamp dealers, they might not have given Peter such a bargain. Few stamp dealers have the nerve to offer 250 vars., cataloging $10, most of them being new or recent issues, and at least 100 of them from South and Central America. All this for $1.02. It takes real nerve, and an infinite supply of stamps, not to mention a superhuman office force to deliver the goods—we have all three of these necessities.

HOW TO COLLECT STAMP JOURNALS.

By ALBERT H. HARRIS.

Since the introduction of the Library Supplement we have received many enquiries on the subject of collecting stamp journals, and we are gratified to know that, as a result of this Supplement, many stamp collectors are giving serious attention to the literature of the hobby, in which, for want of a proper guide, they have hitherto taken but a passing interest.

Just as the non-collector is amazed to learn how widespread the collecting of stamps has become, so is the collector of stamp literature often at first astonished at the remarkably diverse assortment of periodicals published during the eighty-two years since the issue of the first stamp.

Like stamps, many of these journals were short-lived and are scarce. A large number died at birth. Some have survived a few months longer. Numerous others have "married," continuing a joint existence under a single name, and the more successful have produced offsprings in the form of supplements such as the one in which we write. To gather examples of all of them would be an impossible task, so the collector must be content with a representative selection.

Be a General Collector.—As a matter of interest the collector of stamp literature should be a general collector; that is to say, all should be fish to his net, and he should take stamp journals of all the world without regard to whether he understands the language in which they are printed. He will find this not only the cheapest way to get a collection together, but most interesting, for his general knowledge of stamps with the smallest smattering of foreign words will, with the illustrations, usually enable him to form some idea of the contents. Lists of stamps in the text, and in the advertisements, are easily understandable in anything but hieroglyphics, and the perusal of them will teach the collector a whole lot of the international ramifications of philately.

Arrangement.—Let us here confess that many who have attempted to collect stamp journals have got into a hopeless mess through want of a little forethought or guidance. Yet this is most easily avoided, and it is quite possible with a little method to keep such a collection quite orderly in a small space, and to know, or to turn to, what one has at a moment's notice.

To keep stamp journals orderly—and economically—the first essential is a good deep shelf, cupboard, or box. The next, some stout pieces of mill-board, foolscap size (or rather wider for preference). To begin with, label the cards at the top with the name of each country represented in the collected literature, arrange them vertically on the shelf or in the box, and merely drop each country's journals behind the proper card. Make no attempt to alphabetise all the world's stamp journals together. This is the common error that leads inevitably to confusion with all but the most painstakingly methodical. For practical purposes, classification by country is the most satisfactory and gives the owner a far better mental grip of his collection. Stored compactly in this way, with no space wasted, it is surprising how much a few feet of shelving will accommodate.

What is a Stamp Journal?—An early difficulty will be to decide the dividing line between a stamp journal and a price list. Many price lists appear periodically and contain much useful information, although not regularly. The character of most publications will be obvious, but there are nevertheless many "on the border." No definite line can be drawn, and the best plan is to drop everything that is not a fly-leaf behind its proper card until several issues accumulate and a considered decision can be made. Never destroy hastily.

Keeping the Files.—As the files accumulate, the numbers of each journal should be sorted and tied with tape or string—preferably tape. Be careful that the smaller journals do not get crumpled. Quarto "bag shaped" envelopes may conveniently be used to cover small publications of which one has only a few issues, and the envelopes, with the name of the journal on the top margin, may then be run in with the rest without risk of damage. Weed out your duplicates, keep them apart, and exchange or sell them as opportunities occur. You will find many opportunities by corresponding with fellow-collectors. Watch first and last numbers of volumes for title-pages and indexes issued with some journals. Take these and keep them apart in a large envelope or box-file to be referred to when volumes are completed. Many journals, however, do not issue this appendage.

Errors.—There are plenty of errors in stamp literature, though none that can be described as "made for collectors." Issue numbers are known "skipped" and "repeated"; volume numbers, especially when in Roman figures, are sometimes wrong. Few journals with a long life are entirely immune, and unless the collector is on the watch for them, such slips are apt to be confusing. It is presumed, however, that the intelligent collector will do more than look at the covers of his possessions, and so long as he is alive to the possibility of these errors occurring they are not likely to cause him any serious difficulty. Since errors in literature are seldom corrected, if at all, except by a note in an ensuing issue or in the index, it follows that no particular value attaches to most of them. While space forbids dealing further, we shall be glad to record in later numbers all such errors of which readers notify us.

Bargain Hunting.—Although rapidly increasing, the collecting of stamp literature has not yet attained such proportions that bargains cannot be found. There are in fact probably more small untapped sources of philatelic literature than there are of stamps, and the sport of hunting them out is just as attractive. Nearly every stamp collector of your acquaintance will have just a few odd journals put away, and if he does not propose to pay attention to them, he should be induced to part. It is possible that many scarce publications may be unearthed in this way; even that hitherto unknown journals may be discovered, although the researches of Mr. E. D. Bacon and others have rendered this possibility somewhat remote.

Want Lists.—Careful notes should be taken of volumes nearing completion, and it is then that odd numbers to complete should be specially sought, by exchange of duplicates or by purchase. We will gladly advertise subscribers' wants in The Library Supplement free of charge. You will soon discover that, from a variety of causes, many odd issues are strangely elusive. There is the vandal who mutilates any journal that momentarily interests him for the selfish purpose of a "Cutting Book"—a short-sighted habit that recoils on its keeper by leaving him devoid of anything to refer to as soon as his interest changes. In many cases this is mere thoughtlessness, and every true collector should use his influence to stop it. First issues are seldom scarce, often being widely distributed by over-sanguine publishers whose waning enthusiasm may render subsequent issues less numerous. Complete first volumes are often difficult to secure on that account.

Binding.—The perfect library would, of course, be perfectly bound, but since to bind a library in the making is mere patchwork, the collector of limited means will be well advised to ignore the question of binding at least until his collection is well advanced. Opportunities sometimes occur to purchase ready bound volumes at a cost very little in excess of loose parts, and when the binding is of good quality it will be a good investment to take advantage of such opportunities and transfer the loose parts to one's duplicates. Every philatelic library we know, however, remains to a large extent unbound, but no less accessible on that account, and the collector who follows the scheme we have outlined will find his neatly-taped volumes as great a pleasure as the most expensive calf or morocco covers.—Philatelic Magazine.

That is what I would like to be able to say after closing the year 1923. I can do it with your help. You have the stamps—I have the money and clients. How can we get together is the point?

If you have fine United States I offer most any inducement to have you let them pass through my hands. Will buy for cash outright, will give excellent exchange or will sell on commission. Remember I not only want large properties but small ones as well, if attractive. Only postal adhesives at present—no envelopes or revenues. Especially desire mint early singles, pairs, strips and blocks, blocks of the higher values of the later issues, fine covers, rare earlies in fine used condition and the like. If you have one piece or a collection or a stock of duplicates, let's get together.

Stamps are a side issue with me—not my main business—carry them on as a pleasure, a recreation. No overhead, profit not the main consideration, so can pay handsome prices for handsome things. Should you desire I can furnish the best of bank, commercial or philatelic references. Been collecting nearly 30 years and selling on the side almost as long. Start the New Year right by dropping me a line. Let's get together—whether you sell or buy.

My Prices on Old U. S. Outrageous—

because I have a large stock; nothing of the kind. It is the little fellow who only handles a copy occasionally of the rare items, such as 5c N. Y., 10c 1847, 5c 1851, 5c brick red, 5c buff, 90c of 1857, 1868 or 1869, that thinks he has a gold mine, because so few copies pass thru his hands.

I have these rare U. S. by the dozens, some of them by hundreds. No, they were not given to me, I paid out good money, but I bought them when they were not quite as high as they are now, so if you wish to take advantage of my foresight, and buy these scarce U. S. right, give me your want list. I have superb, ordinary or slightly defective copies, which will you inspect? Your pocket-book must be your guide.

Don't forget the little old reference, as I am not taking any chances on this class of goods.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the addresses of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—I am officially informed that the new 2c Washington, 4c Martha Washington, 9c Jefferson and 10c Monroe will be placed on sale on Monday, January 15, 1923, at the Post-Office at Washington and at the Philatelic Stamp Agency in the same city, so that those readers located at other points may obtain their requirements.

The new 1c Franklin will go to press on Wednesday, January 3, 1923, and the Postmaster General, Hubert Work, has signified his intention of visiting the Bureau of Engraving and Printing to witness the first printing of these stamps. Benjamin Franklin having been the first Postmaster General and the "Father of Thrift," it is proposed to place this stamp on sale on his birthday anniversary January 17th, and as a special tribute during thrift week. The first stamps will be placed on sale at the home of Franklin, Philadelphia, Pa., and at the Philatelic Stamp Agency. The number, however, available at the Philadelphia Post-Office cannot be given at this time, as the printing will be very limited. Other values are expected to follow in short order.

Mr. B. K. Miller has shown me little slips of paper, about the size of a stamp, reading in five lines in red "U. S. Postage Prepaid By the Quarter." These were possibly used in the early days and took the place of the notation we find on many covers of that time "Charge to Box —." Mr. Miller can learn nothing about them nor do we ever recall seeing the sticker before. Perhaps some of our readers can throw light upon the subject?

A dealer informs me that the Secret Service has recently located counterfeit $1 green documentary stamps in use in New York City. The variety may be readily told from the original as it is produced by a photographic method and looks much in color and method of production like the former 1c offset printed postage stamp. It is perforated 12. The genuine of course is line engraved and perforated 11. A collector would recognize the counterfeit immediately.

Through the courtesy of Messrs. H. Clay Reed, A. F. Gamber and others, I am able to add four new overprinted provisional envelopes to the list of known varieties.

BR. GUIANA.—The colour of the 2c is to be changed to what the authorities call "blue-purple." This shade, which is being used by many Colonies now, is something between a purple and a violet, being often more of a very bright mauve than either.—Stanley Gibbons Monthly Circular.

CEYLON.—Mr. R. Roberts sends us the 20c blue, script watermark. These are in sheets of 240, four panes of 50 each.

CHINA ON HONG KONG.—Mr. R. Roberts advises that the 8c grey has been issued on script watermarked paper.

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC.—The Economist Stamp Co. send us a copy of the 1c in green and 2c in red in the type of A23.

EGYPT.—Mr. Arthur E. Wellington advises of the following stamps of Egypt surcharged "O. H. R. M. S." with two lines of native letters: 1m brown, 2m red, 3m orange, 4m green, 5m pink, 15m blue, 50m maroon. Also postage due "D.5." Crown and two lines of native letters, inverted: 2m vermilion, 4m green and 19m lake.

GERMANY.—The Economist Stamp Co. send us a copy of a new 12 mark stamp in a shade of red. It is the type of the Reaper in the 1921 design.

GOLD COAST.—The "Postage Due" craze is spreading throughout the Empire, but we do not think the various Governments will find these stamps so profitable as postage stamps. Gold Coast is to have ½d, 1d, 2d and 3d Dues on Script.—Stanley Gibbons Monthly Circular.

IRAQ.—Mr. R. Roberts reports the following on State Service stamps: 6a green, 12a purple and 2r olive.

IRELAND.—Mr. Michael Francis O'Donnell writes to us as follows: "Owing to the unavoidable delay in the permanent issue of the Irish Free State Stamps—one of which, the 2d value (Map of Ireland), appeared on December 6—the Post-Office, to meet the exigency of the service decided to change the overprint on the British stamps from 'Rialtas Sealadac na hEireann 1922' to 'Saorstat 'Eireann 1922' (Irish Free State.)" (It will be observed from the specimen on cover enclosed that the new overprint is in three lines, and that the full stop is omitted.) "The stamp has been overprinted by Messrs. Thom & Co., and though unofficially announced, it was on sale, for the first time in some of the Dublin Post-Offices today."

I understand that the 2s6d, 5sh and 10sh designs of the permanent issue will not make their appearance for a long time to come.

LATVIA.—Mr. Karl Koslowski informs us that No. 107 now comes perforated 10x11½ (10 on top and bottom and 11½ on sides.) No. 110 is listed in Scott's as being perforated 11½, contrary to the stock on hand which is perf. 10 on all sides. If Scott's contentions are righ the former is a rare stamp as none a

DOUBLE YOUR COLLECTION WITHOUT COST

Only by knowing all there is to know about the stamps of a particular country or issue can you make your collection a satisfactory one.

The Edwardian and Georgian issues of Great Britain are an extremely interesting field for study, but until you know what to look for, your collection cannot expand.

Our handbook THE STAMPS OF GREAT BRITAIN, 1911-21, by Stanley Phillips, does for these British issues what your writers have done for recent U. S. It tells what exists, shows what to look for, and puts you on the track of the rarities in shade, watermark, and control.

A collector whose showing of these stamps before reading this book ran to only 12 pages, now has a 40-page display, the additions being made from what he thought were duplicates.

city will be really appreciated until it becomes obsolete.

1921-22. Script CA. Once again we find the colour-changing fiend has not yet molested the issue under consideration, but I do not think he will be long denied as regards the low values.

East Africa and Uganda.—1912-21. Here, again, the exchange question is one which has a very considerable influence on the value of the stamps. Most of this set were issued when the rupee was worth about 1s4d, although I have no idea what the rate was when most of them were bought. Although the rupee was standardized everywhere at 2s, the East African currency was afterwards changed to a florin (and later still to shillings and cents of a shilling), so that in this instance there has been no fall in face value due to exchange, such as has been experienced by all other stamps (except, of course, G. E. A.'s) with values in rupees or fractions of a rupee. When considering the probable increase in value of these stamps, we must, of course, not lose sight of the fact that most of them started their existence with a considerably lower face value than they finished it with. I think they will all rise steadily, if not very rapidly, in value, and the 4r is a stamp not very often seen. Of the two 20r stamps, the first, on red paper, fetches a good price, and is often considered far better than the second, on blue paper. With this I do not agree, and it must not be overlooked that while the first was available when the rupee was in the neighbourhood of 1s4d, the second never was. Of the coloured papers, we have the great rarity 75c first emerald, and the probably still rare 75c, on olive (not on pale green, as this is quite common). The 75c second emerald is fairly hard to get, and when the new set comes along should prove quite good. The same applies to he 1r, emerald. The best of the 25c s probably the lemon paper.

1921-22. Script CA. Not at all likely o have a long life, in fact the new set was expected to have been issued a long while back.

G.E.A.—1917-22. Are all obsolete and ave, consequently, risen slightly in price. By far the best are the emeralds, which hould prove good. The 4r is again not common.

1921-22. Script CA. These I fully xpect to rise quite a lot before very ong, the price being still very reasonable. With regard to the 1c and 10c locals, from an absurdly high price these have ow fallen to an equally absurdly low ne. This is not likely to last very long s the stocks of them must be very mited.—Stanley Gibbons Monthly ircular.

EARLY CANADIANS

Many collectors have searched for years for the big shift, or "re-entry", line through Three Pence, on Laid paper. We have a beautiful, full margined copy, at $100.00

A fine pair of the bright reddish purple shade of the 6d, with good margins, on nice cover; a scarce item $150.00

The 5c Beaver re-entry with double ring for $35.00

A fine lot of shades, cancellations, etc., on the 3d, 6d, 7½d and 10d Canadas, and many attractive items in the 1859 and 1868 issues, on approval to those we know or who furnish references.

INTERESTING OTHERS.

By L. H. BRIGHAM.

Many more people could be made to take an active interest in the collecting of postage stamps if those who are already collectors would do a little efficient missionary work in the cause of their hobby.

Collecting stamps is not a pastime that one need be ashamed of. In fact, one should be proud to be known as a persistent and enthusiastic collector. Seriously following up stamps denotes a certain amount of perseverance and a desire for knowledge regarding things out of the ordinary, that is certainly commendable, especially in the young person.

Just stop and think; if you had one or two other friends and acquaintances who were collectors, how much more fun you could have buying, selling, and exchanging stamps with them—and best of all, entering into friendly competition with them as to who should eventually have the largest and finest-appearing collection. This last is the real goal to strive for. A friend may have a larger collection but there is no reason why it should in any way excel yours in either arrangement or neatness of appearance—neither of these qualities being dependent upon size. It should always be kept in mind that appearance is everything. Get some of your older friends interested and you will always have those at hand who will continuously encourage your pursuit of these fascinating little pieces of colored paper from the many corners of the world.

Now the big question is, how to arouse this interest in one who has, perhaps, never before been inoculated with the serum of philately. What interests or appeals to one person may utterly fail to arouse even the slightest enthusiasm in another. However, let us consider the following:

Stamps represent very fine engravings of a thousand and one subjects, done in miniature but complete in every detail, for all of that. They are printed in a great variety of colors upon different sized and shaped pieces of paper, coming from almost every known corner of the world's surface. Some people have an eye or weakness for fine, rich shades and colors, beautiful blendings, and color contrasts. Stamps can certainly show these in abundance. Others are interested in photography, drawing, painting, fine engravings, views of other lands, etc. Here again postage stamps can supply lovers of these subjects with an endless amount of material for consideration, study, and research.

The scholar, reader, thinker, and he of the unsettled disposition can be attracted from the geographical and historical point of view. The postmarks; the various languages and forms of currency depicted upon the stamps; the heads of former and present kings, queens, and other rulers; fine monuments and public buildings; historical events of national importance, famous cities, by-gone heroes and martyrs, and a score of other subjects vividly representative of these peoples from other lands all have an appeal which is hard to resist if they can but be forcibly brought to the attention of the non-collector. Much valuable information can be gleaned from the study of stamps that can be obtained in no other manner and is not found in books.

In spite of the individual appeal that stamps may have for one, there is nothing like an entire collection with its pages of beautifully arranged stamps to arouse whole-hearted and genuine enthusiasm. One can but be impressed by the neatness of arrangement and the great variety of colors and designs.

One should also acquire all of the interesting information possible on their stamps, especially regarding those of exceptional beauty and unusual appearance. A stamp that attracts one, interests one. It naturally follows that when one becomes interested in a certain thing he wants to know more about it. What will your friends think if, after arousing their interest, you are unable to tell them the very things they want to know about stamps? If you are unable to do this, do not expect them to take up the hobby with any degree of seriousness or enthusiasm—because they won't.

When you have at last succeeded in inducing a friend to take up collecting, one-half of the battle is won. It is one thing to start a collector and another to keep him at it until he, of his own accord, becomes so interested that it is no longer necessary to keep encouraging him. This desired result can never be attained in another if one allows one's own interest and enthusiasm to lag for a single moment.

A collector who is a collector in the truest sense of the word, and one really worthy of the name, is continually going after stamps and not waiting for them to come to him. This is the only way to make a collection grow.

As one's collection grows, so does one's knowledge of stamps and all things philatelic.—The Haversack.

GLEANINGS

—The Buckey Stamp Co., Dayton, O., has just issued its Special Price list No. 10, and it will be sent to anyone who may ask for it.

—F. H. Vallancey, publisher of Stamp Collecting, 89 Farringdon St., London, Eng., wishes the following back numbers of the WEEKLY:—Whole Numbers, 53, 60, 81, 170, 176, 650, 744, 974, 1149, 1150, 1152, 1154, 1155, 1157, 1158, 1160, 1161, 1165, 1167 and 1365. Will any subscriber who can furnish some of these advise this office? The papers are desired to complete a personal file of our publication.

—A. A. Leve of Syracuse, N. Y., sends out Leve's Lively Little List, to all who ask for it. Mr. Leve is sufficiently enthusiastic to list stamp publications that he is willing to accept subscriptions for.

—The Christmas number of Stamp Collecting is a bumper number of 72 pages and a remarkable feat in philatelic journalism. We congratulate Messrs. Vallancey and Ingram upon the enterprise manifested.

—Thomas Nixon, a Calgary subscriber, informs us that his prize collection of Canadian stamps was recently stolen at a fair held in that city. It had been placed upon exhibition and had attracted much favorable comment because of its completeness. Any information that will lead to the locating of this collection of Canada may be sent to the WEEKLY.

—H. A. W.—We do not know of any dealer who has advertising cancellations for sale.

—The Syracuse Stamp Club has elected the following officers for 1923: Pres., Harry A. Dunsmoor; Vice Pres., George H. Heindorf; Sec'y and Treas., R. C. Sabin. Directors, Messrs. McClusky, Fryer, Fulmer, Leve and Cox. Meetings are held 1st and 3rd Fridays of each month at 311 Montgomery St., Syracuse, N. Y.

—"The Metropolitan Art Museum collects and exhibits works of art and history only, and the directors of this Museum are very particular in their selections. A picture pasted together from 250,000 cancelled stamps, even if done very cleverly, can never be a work of art. The best it can be called is a curiosity on which probably valuable postage stamps have been ruined forever."—K. BAUMANN.

The Stamp Follies of 1923

"A little foolishment now and then, is relished by the best of Philatelists."

VOL. I, No. 3. CONDUCTED BY SILAS WEATHERBY, PH. P. JAN. 13, 1923.

Editorial.

Contributions to this dept. are now in order, so if you can shake a humorous self filler don't be backward about coming forward with your best efforts, either prose or poetry as you may elect.

They say, that he who can grow a smile where a smile never grew before deserves credit, therefore, as we want to grow miles of smiles, we must have lots of credit-ors.

Tickling the funny-bone has been the means of putting many big things over, and it will help to make Philately more attractive and boost our hobby, so please remember this—

If you can't be a pine on the top of the hill,
Be a scrub in the valley—but be
The best little scrub by the side of the rill;
Be a bush, if you can't be a tree.
If you can't be a sun, be a star—
Be the best little booster whatever you are.

A FELLOW asked me.
"WHY DO YOU collect stamps?"
SO I asked him:
"WHY DO YOU collect your salary
EVERY Saturday night?"
AND HE SAID—that's—different—
I COLLECT my salary because IT PROVIDES food for MY stomach.
I SAID—I collect stamps because STAMP collecting provides FOOD FOR my brain,
BUT YOU wont miss anything
BY FAILING to adopt THE HOBBY.
HE MUFFED it.
I WAS afraid he would.
THERE ARE two kinds of men.
ONE KIND runs to STOMACH and
THE OTHER kind runs
TO HEAD.
THIS BIRD runs
TO stomach.
WHICH BRINGS me to a subject
THAT I HAVE been intending to get OFF MY CHEST for a long time.
IT IS this;
OCCASIONALLY, I read in a
STAMP publication, apologetical
STATEMENTS in which the writer seeks TO JUSTIFY stamp collecting.
I NEVER try to justify my INTEREST IN the hobby.
I COLLECT stamps because I WANT to. That's all
THE justification I need.
I LIKE TO travel, and I have DONE A lot of it. I have covered the WHOLE ROUTE from Baffins Bay
TO Panama; From Amsterdam to HONG KONG; from the most northern POINT IN Siberia to Jerusalem and BAGDAD and I've doubled back to PERSIA and Afghanistan.
I HAVE sauntered in on MORROCCO and have braved the BURNING SANDS of the SAHARA desert, and washed my throat
AT A THOUSAND youth-giving springs
THAT LIE between the Cameroon
AND CAPE of Good HOPE.
AND MY purse has not been that of A ROCKEFELLER, either.
MY GOOD ships have been the maps
THAT LIE before me.
MY COMPASS and my guide have been
THE VOLUMNES of History upon the SHELVES OF my little den.
BUT WHEN man travels happily,
MAN MUST have a goal,
STAMPS HAVE been my goal and I HAVE searched the WIDE WORLD for them, and I have FOUND A few—just a few, but WHAT I have, I prize.
FOR PURSUIT of them has led me
THRU A thousand alluring paths.
THEY WERE imaginations paths, 'tis true.
BUT GOD pity the man who has no
IMAGINATION and who, in his STAMP COLLECTING, cannot close
HIS EYES and enjoy the SEA BREEZE as his ship goes
FROM PORT to port.
JUSTIFICATION for STAMP collecting
JUSTIFICATION.

J. W. F., Ohio.

News Item—A new 11c postage stamp, Peacock blue, with a portrait of Rutherford B. Hayes, will be placed on sale Oct. 4th, at Fremont, Ohio.

PEACOCK BLUE.

An eleven cent stamp hez cum tew town,
  Peacock Blue.
Portrayin' a man of grate re-noun,
  Peacock Blue.
It couldn't look worse in ultra-marine
Than it duz in thet thare dirty green,
It's the durndest stamp I've evur seen,
  Peacock Blue. My wurd;—How absurd.

It's a bird, thare iz no doubt,
  Peacock Blue.
Yew'll hear lots of things sed about
  Peacock Blue.
It makes yew creep, it makes yew shiver,
It gets right in an shimmys yure liver;
Yew'll all admit thet it's a flivver,
  Peacock Blue. My wurd;—How absurd.

Why not print it in blue—syn-thet-ic?
  Peacock Blue.
Instead of this horrid shade—pa-thet-ic
  Peacock Blue.
S'nuff tew make Hayes turn in hiz grave,
But jest lissen tew th stamp fans rave
About this grate man who didn't shave,
  Peacock Blue. My wurd;—How absurd.

This 'leven center iz sure sum sticker,
  Peacock Blue.
Hayes looks like he'd bin drinkin licker,
  Peacock Blue.
Volsteads a dead one down in old D. C.,
Must be th reasun for this a-troc-i-tee,
But this 'leven center looks like Volstead tew me,
  Peacock Blue. My wurd;—How absurd.

PREC. NEWS FROM NEBRASKA.

By JOHN L. PARKER.

The 13c is now coming from Omaha in Type VI, that odd looking mimeograph. The Special Delivery double cancellation and 1c rotary, triple, came to hand the other day.

Valley has at last precancelled higher values than the 1c and 2c. The 12, 15, 20, 30c normal and inverted, Special normal and 1c Due Inverted have appeared in red ink. The 1c double inv. and 2c Due are new items in the black ink varieties. Without doubt Valley will use all values this coming Xmas season, so keep your eyes open for the elusive 13 cent.

Several unlisted Nebraska which repose in my collection are Omaha Type I 15c 1908, Type I 2c perf. 11 double, and Lincoln Type III 15c 1908 double.

STAMPS OF THE IRISH FREE STATE.

By F. R. A. M'Cormick.

Dublin.

As I write this article, we are in the midst of a postal strike in this country, and all the postal and telegraph services are suspended, but I am getting this letter posted by a friend of mine who is going across to England in the morning, and I hope that it arrives all right.

Since I sent my last lot of notes, all values have appeared with the new overprint by Thom's—at least, I should say, all the values up to the 1sh; please goodness they will leave the high values alone, as it's bad enough to try and get a collection of all the present stamps anything like complete. But as a matter of fact I expect that we shall see these high values also in time, as Dollards are gone out of the limelight, and if the present supplies get short I expect they will be done by Thoms.

The ½d, 5d and 10d values were issued quickly after the 9d and other values which I recorded in my last notes, and last week the 2½d and 4d appeared in red like the 9d.

The Dollard printings are almost all sold out now, and are getting harder to lay hands on every day, in my opinion the 10d will be the best of these printings, especially in used state, and the control of the same value will be even better. I expect that there were fewer of this than any other of the low values overprinted.

With regard to the controls of the new printings, I can add the following to my previous lists:—

½d, T22, perf. and imperf.
1d, S22, perf. and imperf. T22, perf.
2½d, red opt. T22, imperf.
4d, red opt. T22, perf.
5d, T22, imperf.
10d, S22, perf.
1sh, T22, perf.

Some of the first of these new overprints were very faint, especially noticeable on the ½d and 3d values. These sheets were printed from the old Thom plates and showed some of the old R/S, etc., varieties, but the later printings and the ones that are now appearing are very much heavier, somewhat like the Harrison opts., and show some new varieties, at least the varieties are still of a similar kind to the old ones but occur in different positions on the sheets. It appears that there are at least two new plates in use, as also are the old plates. I will call the two new plates for the present, plates 3 and 4.

The more important varieties on these new plates may be classified as follows:—

Plate 3:
Row 6. Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4 show the R over Se variety.
Row 9. Nos. 5 and 6 show the R over Se and E over 1 variety.

Plate 4:
Row 1. No. 9 has no bottom to the S of Sealadac.
Row 6. No. 1 has the R and i of Rialtas joined.
Row 9. Nos. 5 and 6 show the word Sealadac shifted to the left (in the R/S it shifts to the right) so that the "R" is nearly over the "ea," and also it is almost an "E" over "1" variety.
Row 17. No. 8 shows broken "s" in Rialtas.
No. 9 shows broken "1" in same word.
No. 12 shows the bottom of the "s" in the word Rialtas gone.

There are a few other minor varieties that I have found on both plates, but as yet I am not quite sure if they are constant.

The two plates can also be recognised on the controls, if in strips of three, as follows:—

Plate 3: On the first stamp, the first "a" in Sealadac has a small dot on the inside of the right limb near the top, and the measurement from the "S" in the first stamp to the "S" in the second stamp is 20¾ mms.

Plate 4: The measurement of the overprint as above is only 20 mms. instead of 20¾ mms., showing that the spacing of the overprint varies in the two plates on the first two stamps.

THEODORE CHAMPION

With regard to postmarks, which I think will make interesting collecting—especially if one gets the new Irish postmark and the corresponding old one in English—I can add the following to my previous notes:—

Cluain Eois—Clones.
Dun Dealgan—Dundalk.
Gaillinh—Galway.
Luimneach—Limerick.
Caislean Riabhach—Castlerea.
Guaire—Gorey.
Ceanannus Mor—Kells.
Corcaigh—Cork.

The Dublin machine postmark now lacks the note re the Tailtean Games, as also does the Cork postmark, as a matter of fact I have several entires lately from Cork showing the old postmark, but with evidence of spaces having been put in where the words "Tailtean Games August" once appeared.

I have seen part of a sheet of the new 3d Thom overprint with inverted and reversed watermark. It was discovered by a friend of mine who has the control—T22, imperf—and also the R/Se and E/1 varieties, it is printed off the plate that I have called plate 3.

I might add a few notes here about the proposed definite issue. These stamps are to be printed by a Governmental printing works to be erected in Dublin Castle, where, by the way, the Irish Treasury notes will also be printed. The dies are, I believe, being made by an English firm, and the paper has been, or is in the process of being manufactured by an Irish firm, and the Government is supplying them with the "Dandy Roll" for the watermark.

I have seen some used copies of the 2d, Die II, with the Harrison overprint, and also managed to get a short strip of them unused. They are in the delivery top-end-first make-up, but, unfortunately, if one required to get a roll of them, one might buy half the stock of the G. P. O. before you chanced to hit on a roll of Die II as they can only be bought wrapped up and sealed in complete rolls.

The stamps in roll form seem to be used in many of the larger Dublin Houses now, especially the 1d and 2d values, but one does not find many used copies of the ½d or 1½d, and even the 1d and 2d values, when you do get them used, they are generally perforated with the firms initials, which makes them useless from the philatelist's point of view.

I might also note that a few sheets of the last printings by Dollard on the 4d value were in "carmine" ink, instead of the usual vermilion ink.—Philatelic Magazine.

FROM AN OLD TIMER

Read every word, or you may miss a Lot. 45 years or more ago, I met Mr. Scott the Veteran Stamp Dealer. I was but a young fellow then, but was interested in stamps, and from Mr. Scott I purchased the first stamps I had ever bought: 100 varieties for a dime, and also an album for a quarter. This was my start. My first sale of stamps was to Mr. Scott, shortly after: A sheet of 100 Boyd's Locals, originals, for which he paid me $1.00. This was a good sale, as the stamps cost me nothing. During the years that have passed since then I did a great amount of business with Mr. Scott, and as is well known, eventually bought his entire business. Mr. Scott is gone, but it gives me pleasure to have his last photo appear in this ad. I have bought out many dealers, and have purchased and sold many fine rare items, and if space would permit I might tell you of such. I will just mention:—A fine Hawaiian Missionary, sold to Mr. G. B. Calman for $6.00. Many fine old U. S. and Confederate Locals, on covers; Plenty of 1847 5c U. S. on and off covers have poured from my hands at from 10c to 25c each. And, oh! that barrel of old U. S. high and low values, from way back. It makes one's mouth water. If you read my book, you will learn more. Say, why not order a copy today? Address—

READ MY LIFE STORY CONDENSED
"LOOKING BACKWARD"
or "Fragments From a Checkered Life."

Fresh from the press, and of interest particularly to stamp dealers and stamp collectors. Read it and you will learn why I became interested in stamps and became a stamp dealer way back in the seventies. How I bought big lots of old U. S. and other stamps, and how eventually I became the sole owner of the J. W. Scott Co., Inc. You will learn about my ocean voyages, also about the little paper I published more than 45 years ago at Smithtown Branch, N. Y. Then I sold 1847, 5c U. S. stamps at 10 cts. each. The book tells of my early struggles, and of my later successes.

The book is nicely printed on fine paper, and is well and nicely bound. Contains over 325 pages and more than 40 fine engravings, from original photographs, including two of Mr. Scott, as well as one or more of the writer. The book has cost a large sum, and the edition is limited.

Prices prepaid, Imitation leather, 2 colors .... $3.00; Cloth $2.25

A large illustrated circular describing the book more fully sent on request.

All profits will be given to the Church, Temperance and Charity. Address,

J. E. HANDSHAW, 79 Nassau St., NEW YORK

A Little Present For You

On the receipt of your first order, I will send free a block of 4 10ct unused imperf. Salvador stamps of 1896.

LET US GET ACQUAINTED.

AND HERE IS A RARITY

Among recent purchases, I have secured several packs of old playing cards, imported from England in 1863, each pack with a 1c U. S. Playing Card stamp on it. The cards are in the original package. The stamps are in nice, clean condition. Certainly a rarity. There are but few packs. The price, cards and stamp, is $5.00 each pack.

Selections for Approval Sheets

Both used and unused.

These stamps are in partly filled approval books, which I imported some time ago. They contain both used and unused stamps, but little or nothing in New Europe. You will find good value, and I specially urge you to try at least a sample.

If you are interested in very large lots of stamps, cheap varieties for packets, &c, I can supply such in lots from 1000 to 25,000 or more. Many large items at very low prices. I carry probably the finest and perhaps the largest wholesale stock of 20th Century stamps, including British Colonies, French Colonies, &c, in the U. S., and I desire to become better acquainted with the various dealers throughout the country. I am sure I have the goods.

Approval selections will gladly be mailed to dealers ordering such, but a deposit or good references must be sent me with order.

Of course Uneed Approval Books. I have had made to order a book to hold 100 or 120 stamps if placed on one side of the leaf, or if on both sides, double the number. The books are made of good, strong, unruled paper, with strong cardboard covers, assorted colors. The book is 4x6½ inches. A nice convenient book. Give it a trial.

10 books, 25cts 100 books, $1.75 or 1000, $15.00 All prepaid. Sample 4cts.

On receipt of your first order, with $1.00 or more, I will send you

FREE A BLOCK OR SHEET

All bids should be in not later than Feb. 15th, after which each successful bidder will be notified, and on receipt of amount bid, plus postage, the lot or lots will be promptly sent.

Gibbons Stamp Circular

This snappy little publication is mailed free for nothing—not even postage—once a month unless the editor goes fishing or yachting. This season of the year therefore is a good time to write for a copy. This circular is not mailed to substitutors, kid collectors, send-em-back-unregistered fiends and such like. Postcards also go straight into the waste paper basket. Serious and interested collectors would do well to send for a copy and get on the list free before we close the offer with the ten thousandth name. [H

THE WEEKS COME AND GO.

By C. E. Severn.

A new generation of stamp collectors has arisen since the first number of the Weekly appeared on January 7th, 1891; and to the collector of to-day who does not concern himself with philately's past, it seems as though the paper has always existed. When the first number of the Weekly was distributed, one thousand, six hundred and seventy-two weeks ago, it was hailed as a daring and novel venture by the C. H. Mekeel Stamp and Publishing Company of St. Louis, a large corporation, but the projectors of the enterprise had every confidence in its ultimate success and expended in the aggregate thousands of dollars in firmly establishing the paper. Naturally, there were many predictions by the more conservative collectors that a weekly stamp publication could not attain permanency under conditions as they prevailed thirty-two years ago, but it was not long before all philatelists were impressed by the intelligent perseverance that was manifest in the management of the paper and the general disposition was to regard the Weekly as a fixture.

The editor of the Weekly was I. A. Mekeel whose genius later had its fruition in the general publishing field; and at the time of his death in February, 1913, Mr. Mekeel had attained a national eminence as a publisher and successful business man. One of the early contributors to the Weekly was C. E. Severn of Chicago, and in 1894, he became the paper's Chicago correspondent. In those days, a column or so of notes each week from the different stamp centers was a feature of the paper. Several years later, business vicissitudes were encountered by the corporation that published the Weekly that made a readjustment of its business necessary; and by an order of court, I. A. Mekeel became the buyer and owner of the Weekly. Soon, Mr. Mekeel's acumen led him to measure the advertising possibilities of the paper and he determined to launch a campaign that would thoroughly test them. He proposed to Mr. Severn that he become editor and part owner of the Weekly and early in 1898, Mr. Severn's alliance with the Weekly as editor and partner was made. The paper was edited from Chicago, but published from St. Louis, and Mr. Mekeel, free to give his undivided attention to the business department, found a congenial occupation in expanding the advertising prestige of the Weekly.

For several years the paper flourished under these conditions, but it was not long before Scott F. Redfield of Smethport, Pennsylvania, who was publishing a weekly stamp paper at that period, merged his paper into the Weekly and became a part owner of the corporation which had been formed under the laws of the State of New York to conduct the Weekly. For a time the Weekly was printed at the plant of Mr. Redfield at Smethport, Pa., published by Mr. Mekeel in New York and edited by Mr. Severn in Chicago. At this period, the Boston correspondent of the Weekly was Willard O. Wylie of Beverly, Mass., and so capably did he discharge his duties that he was recommended to the notice of the owners. After Mr. Wylie had proved his ability further by planning special issues from start to finish, he was invited to become one of the corporation. In the meantime, the Weekly had purchased W. W. Jewett's Weekly Philatelic Era, an excellent publication that almost divided with the Weekly the regard of the collecting public and Mr. Wylie was placed in charge of the Era as a separate publication. By his conduct of the Weekly Philatelic Era, Mr. Wylie further emphasized his fitness for philatelic newspaper work, and when the Era was consolidated with the Weekly, Mr. Wylie, who had bought a tenth interest in the company, was made managing editor.

The interests of Mr. Mekeel in a general publishing sense were becoming more and more important and such were the demands made upon his time by affairs of magnitude that he could not give freely of his services to the corporation, although the paper continued to hold its warm place in his affections. It was advisable to re-incorporate the company under Massachusetts laws and publish the Weekly from Boston under Mr. Wylie's direction; and it was at this time, or in 1904, that W. W. Jewett entered into a contract with the publishers of the Weekly whereby he was to print the paper in his plant at Portland, Maine.

At the death of I. A. Mekeel in 1913, the controlling interest in the company became vested in the estate of I. A. Mekeel and two years later, the two-hundred and fifty-one shares were acquired by Messrs. Severn, Wylie and Jewett.

Willard O. Wylie, who has distinguished himself as managing editor of the Weekly for nearly twenty years has a greater enthusiasm than ever before in his work. His faithful performance of the duties of his office is eloquent testimony to his belief in and preference for his task. Mr. Wylie sticks close to his work, but he is known to fame in the political field and on the golf links. He ran just a few votes behind the successful candidate for the mayoralty of Beverly a short time ago and it is remembered that he made a smashing campaign for the governorship of Massachusetts on the prohibition ticket.

Mr. Jewett's ability as a "boss printer" is shown by the record for typographical cleanliness that he has established in the Weekly and his art shows forth in the two-score books, including the Dictionary that the company has published from his shop, one of Portland's best, it is needless to say. The Weekly demands a great share of Mr. Jewett's attention, indeed.

Charles E. Severn has grown up with the Weekly and knows it in every phase. His long service in the Weekly's cause in itself is proof that it is something of a labor of love for him to devote the most of his time to the paper's welfare.

Incidentally, he is president of the Rogers' Park Republican Club; ex-president of the Business Men's Prosperity Club; treasurer of Williams, Barker and Severn Co.; president of the Chicago Philatelic Society; president of the A. S. D. A.; a Fellow of the Royal Philatelic Society, London, and on the Roll of Distinguished Philatelists.

CHARLES J. PHILLIPS.

Mr. Charles J. Phillips in taking up his residence in New York, stole a march upon the philatelic forces of Great Britain. Stamp Collecting in announcing the step taken acknowledges the fact that in this instance it was compelled to go to an American paper to find a bit of home news. The English press has given utterance to expressions of regret which must be sincere when Mr. Phillips' great work for philately is considered.

The United States welcomes him with open arms and with the many good things coming to our shores he can be assured none are more welcome than the enthusiasm, energy and philatelic learning that he has brought. On another page will be found a picture of Mr. Phillips recently taken, and we give him a place of honor in recognition of the great service that he has rendered philately.

Mr. Phillips was born May 15, 1863, and started stamp collecting ten years later. In 1890, he purchased the stamp business of E. Stanley Gibbons, the purchase price being 25,000 pounds. He was the founder of the Birmingham Philatelic Society in 1886 and was Honorary Secretary until he left that city. Later he formed the Philatelic Protection Association and acted also as Honorary Secretary for a number of years.

As editor of Stanley Gibbons' Monthly Journal and Gibbons' Stamp Weekly, he holds a secure fame as editor, while his books on Fiji and Paraguay and his specialized studies contributed to various publications mark him as an erudite philatelic writer. From the standpoint of dealer it can truthfully be said that he has a knowledge of stamps surpassed by few if any and a mere enumeration of the collections that he has purchased would fill a large amount of our space.

We welcome Mr. Phillips to the United States. The welcome is a hearty one and we look to him as a valuable accession in the placing of American philately upon a firmer basis than it has ever been before.

SUPERB EARLY U. S.

The recent purchase of three collections of United States has enabled us to re-make our books of specialized issues, particularly those of 1847 to 1879.

Almost every stamp possible of specialization in those issues is to be found in considerable quantity in these books.

Of the 5c and 10c '47s there are some 60 odd fine copies, as well as a book of unusual covers. Some pairs, shifts, etc.

Of the 1851 issue the 1c is offered in singles, pairs and strips, with center lines, all varieties of recut, shifts, etc. The 3c '51s fill several approval books, with extra line varieties, shifts, cancellations, pairs, strips and covers. The 10c and 12c include about 100 picked copies, including a few very fine recut 10s. Not so many of the 5c, but they are superb.

The 1c 1857 make a particularly good showing, including all types mint and used, the scarce shifts in various plates, the minor plate varieties, rare cancellations, etc. The 3c, 5c, 10c, 12c, 24c and 30c are in sufficient numbers to each fill one or more booklets.

Of the 1861 issues there are booklets filled with cancellations on the 1c, 2c, 3c, with unusually nice offerings of the 5c in the buff, chocolate, black brown printings. Of the 10c there are a couple of hundred fine copies, a fine lot of shades of the 24c, and some good cancellations on the 12c, 15c, 30c and 90c.

There are no all-over grilles, but a number of double and multiple grilles, and many extra fine copies in almost all values of the 1867-68 issues.

The 1869 issue is represented chiefly by interesting cancellations, with a few covers and fancy pieces.

There are quantities of the bank-note issues, hundreds of fancy and colored cancellations on 3c greens, and a dozen to a hundred copies of each of the other values.

Bargains For General Collectors

SILK SHOW GETS FREE ADVERTISING.

The silk industry has been enjoying the privilege of having about 10,000,000 letters every business day in the week carry a message about an exposition that is to hold in New York during the month of February.

This message is given in a cancellation mark made on the face of envelopes passing through New York City, and it reads as follows:

"International Silk Exposition, Grand Central Palace, February 5 to 15, 1923."

It was on December 1 that mail canceled in the New York post-office first carried this advertising. Fourth Assistant Postmaster General H. H. Billany informs Printers' Ink that it is planned to use this same cancellation mark until February 15, 1923, at the New York post-office.

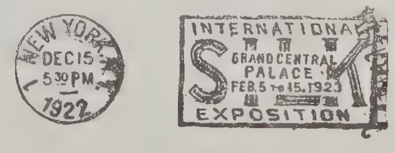
In an endeavor to ascertain why the silk industry should be so seemingly favored in having the mail of great numbers of people and businesses carry its advertising, Printers' Ink made inquiry through the Postmaster General. H. H. Billany, fourth assistant postmaster general, made the following answer to that inquiry:

"I beg to advise you that in May, 1922, a special Act was passed by Congress, authorizing the Postmaster General to grant permission for use in first and second-class post-offices of special dies to operate on canceling machines, under such rules and regulations as he may prescribe, for advertising purposes.

"Since the passage of the Act, as liberal a policy as possible under its terms has been pursued, authority for special dies advertising various projects having been granted upon application, if the legends desired were appropriate and not in conflict with the intent of the law.

"Mr. Charles H. Green, manager of the Second International Silk Exposition, requested some time ago the privilege of operating dies in the New York City office advertising the Silk Exposition, which request was granted.

"It may be stated further for your information that all special dies operating on canceling machines throughout the postal service are paid for by the organizations interested. Dies bearing some legend in the interest of the postal service are, of course, paid for out of an appropriation under the control of the Post-Office Department.



ONE OF THE ADVERTISEMENTS FOR THE SILK EXPOSITION

"It has not been the policy of the department to extend the privilege for the use of special dies to one industry or organization to the exclusion of others, no application having been denied if the legend suggested was suitable, and the machines at the office at which the dies were desired to operate were free to perform that service.

"Upon the expiration of the period for which permission has been granted to operate special dies now in use or for which permission has been granted, including the dies advertising the International Silk Exposition, further authority will be withheld for the use of special dies on canceling machines until the department sees fit to remove those, which it has recently purchased, bearing the legend 'Register or Insure Valuable Mail.'

"It is hoped that this explanation will make clear to you the conditions under which special dies are permitted to operate on Government owned canceling machines advertising various projects."

REMOVAL NOTICE OF R. RORERTS.

R. Roberts, the well-known London dealer in new issues, takes goodly space in this number to announce a removal. In the future he will be found at 430 Strand. The change is due to the widening scheme that has been under consideration for a long time and which has now been brought to a head rather suddenly, owing to the policy adopted by the British government of providing as much work as possible for the unemployed. We are assured that the new quarters are superior to the old in every respect, and we congratulate this well-known dealer who not only gets the new issues, but delivers them to his subscribers.

RUSSIAN NEW ISSUES CONTAIN A SET OF SEVEN SUSPICIOUS CHARACTERS.

There seems to be much philatelic activity in this country. Nearly every month we have something to chronicle or to write about. Unfortunately, many of these new things appear in the market or are reported in the philatelic press without any reliable information as to their antecedents. This month we chronicle a set of seven stamps which we have received from a prominent European dealer. We do not doubt that he believes these stamps to be genuine and officially issued, but we cannot overcome a feeling of distrust of them. They are so inferior in design and execution to all Russian stamps that we have previously known that it does not seem probable that they are a government issue. We present them in our chronicle with the hope that attention may be attracted to them and information elicited. It does not seem possible that these crude labels can be part of the promised issue to commemorate the five years of Soviet rule in Russia. In addition to that issue it is reported that another series of fourteen stamps, with designs by prominent Russian artists is being prepared. We also hear of a further issue of charity stamps for the benefit of the famine victims. This issue will show various methods of transporting the mails in Russia.

In April of this year four famine relief stamps were designed and printed in Rostov-on-Don and used there and in several other cities of South Russia. They are said to have depicted the Soviet arms, peasants, etc. The stamps were printed by lithography, the four values on one sheet, made up of 54 stamps of 2,000r green, 28 stamps of 6,000r green, 27 stamps of 2,000r rose and 24 stamps of 4,000r rose. The total value of a sheet was 426,000 rubles and 740 sheets (98,420 stamps) were printed. We have these details from the Berner Briefmarken Zeitung. The Philatelic Magazine also describes this issue and states that it was made by order of the Commissary of Posts and Telegraphs for South Eastern Russia. Apparently the issue was not sanctioned by the Government at Moscow, by whose order it was withdrawn, after it had been in circulation for a fortnight and about 14,000 copies of all values had been sold.

In the September Journal we referred to a set of stamps which were being sent out from Italy with the claim that they were famine relief stamps issued in Odessa. We then gave reasons for doubting that this was an official issue. Our suspicions are now confirmed by L'Echo de la Timbrologie, from which we translate a declaration published by the "Central Official Bureau of the Government of the Soviets for the sale of Russian stamps," from its office at Mannheim:

"Large quantities of so-called 'famine stamps of Odessa' are now being offered. We are authorized, in the name of the Government of the Soviets, to denounce these stamps as common forgeries.

"They are not of Russian origin and have not been issued or authorized in any part of Russia. They are bad pictures (waste paper) without any postal value. Made by speculators without scruples, who discount the sympathies of the philatelic world for the Federal Socialist Republic of the Soviets, they merely serve to take without shame money from the pockets of collectors.

The only 'famine stamps' that exist at present are:

"1. The 6 provisional stamps on the Kerensky issue;

"2. The 4 stamps for the famine in the Volga;

"3. The famine stamps of Rostov.

"On the 19th of August, 1922, there was added to these another series intended to aid the famished. Those are the stamps of 1, 2, 3, 5 and 10 kopeks which bear a black surcharge in four lines which reads 'R. S. F. S. R., Day of the Philatelist, 19-8-22.' These stamps were issued on that day in small numbers (the value attributed to each kopek was 10,000 rubles) in behalf of works of succor for the famished and for children.

"Other famine stamps do not exist."

ARGENTINE 16c ORANGE.

By H. H. HALL.

A member of our club recently attended an auction in the west, of stamps of the above country. Many stamps were sold at decent prices, but he found only four mint of the 16c orange, 1899, and states "he has never seen a genuinely used copy;" and, as it is a country he is interested in, I take his statement as being worth something. This stamp is catalogued by Stanley Gibbons 5s either way, but could they supply a good used copy? Have they many mint? I may be wrong; but, judging by fruitless efforts I made about twelve months since to obtain one, mint or postally used, I doubt if half-a-dozen copies could be bought in London. It would be very interesting, I think, if inquiries could be made generally, and so find out the real scarcity of this stamp; and for a comparatively recent issue, and, one might say, an ordinary stamp, I should think it one of the most glaring cases of mistake in catalogue prices—if, as I think is the case, £5 would be nearer its value.

Just by chance, at the time I was busy trying to get a copy, a City friend, on my pointing out its rarity, obtained two used copies, and I possess one, and also a mint copy.

I wish I could interest you in this stamp, and so get information—viz., number of this stamp issued and why so scarce, and where they are; then perhaps we should get, at a later date, the real value of this "16c orange."—Stamp Collecting.

AN UNSOLICITED TESTIMONIAL.

The C. S. Watson Co. during the past year advertised under a 5,000-line contract, but used much more space than the contract called for. At the beginning of the year we wrote the firm asking for a renewal of contract for 1923. It is not our practise to publish the many communications that come to us week by week, commending the WEEKLY as an advertising medium, but we feel warranted to publish the reply that Mr. Watson made us. We quote his entire letter:—

"Acknowledging your letter of the 29th, I wish to state that I have considered my contract as binding until you were otherwise advised; therefore, automatically, you will renew our 5,000-line contract from year to year, and at any time you are prepared to quote special rates on even larger contracts, we are in the market. We believe last year our advertising totaled nearer 10,000 lines, than 5,000, and this during a year when six months were rather meagre. Now that things are booming in old-time style, I see no reason why the stamp business in general should not warrant the support of every dealer through your medium, if not through others."

PHILATELIC NOTES FROM FRANCE.

By Lowell J. Ragatz.

Years ago, in the days of my philatelic infancy, I chanced upon a Richard Harding Davis story which spoke of the open-air stamp market of Paris. This struck my romantic fancy, and in order to learn more of it, I wrote to the editor of the stamp department of St. Nicholas, which was at that time my sole medium for gaining information regarding postage stamps.

I can well remember the joy I felt upon receiving a personal instead of the expected information-column reply, in which the editor then, whose name I have, alas, forgotten, gave me in a more than a page closely written letter, a detailed account of a visit he had himself once made to the bourse. Then and there I made up my mind that when I came to Paris, I should myself see it, and though years have intervened, when I came to make out my schedule upon taking up my residence in the metropolis three months ago, I placed the stamp bourse high up on the list. Since then I have visited it a score of times, and continue to find it of unfailing interest.

All collectors have, of course, read accounts of Paris' stamp bourse at one time or another, but I do not believe that there has been one in the Weekly in recent years, and as younger collectors are continually joining the ranks of readers, and as the nature of the bourse is said to have considerably changed since the war, I think that a description of it as it exists today will not be without interest.

It is commonly said that the bourse is held on the Champs Élysées. This is not quite correct and may have led others, like myself, to walk the whole length of the Champs Élysées from the Place de la Concorde to the Étoile, searching in vain for anything, even faintly resembling a congregation of fellow-collectors.

The exact location is the corner of the Rue Gabriel and Avenue Marigny. This is one block to the right of the Grand and Petit Palaises, when walking up the Champs Élysées. First one passes the Folies Marigny, then a children's Punch and Judy show and the children's goat and donkey "riding academies." The vacant corner, shaded by a dozen large trees, is given over to members of the great order of philately.

There, under the trees, are arranged according to the hour, from ten to forty collapsible tables, displaying as many stocks. Sessions are held on Sundays and on Thursday afternoons. Sunday mornings are comparatively dull, but in the afternoon, and on Thursday, the national school vacation day, there is a throng of buyers, numbering as high as three hundred at a time. The merchants are chiefly old men and women who have no connection with down-town stamp shops. The customers range from children, accompanied by nurses, through the schoolboy and schoolgirl age to old men who hobble along at a slow pace supporting themselves on canes.

The average stock consists of very cheap stamps. Enormous cards are mounted with stamps at 5, 10 and 25 centimes each and sets at from 25 centimes to 5 francs. Each merchant is generally supplied with a counterbook containing from 5,000 to 10,000 varieties, and with a pocket-stockbook containing a miscellaneous lot of better quality items. Each generally also has a large pasteboard box containing stamps at 5 centimes a copy and another at 10 centimes each. Most of these are unused low values war issues and postally used current stamps with a sprinkling of higher-priced damaged ones. Hinges are generally available, and, in a few cases, tongs, glasses and catalogues can also be purchased.

Most of the businesss is conducted on a small basis. Customers are given fibre trays and such stamps as they choose are placed on these. The average sale seems to run below a franc. Of course, buyers are numerous and for the majority of the goods sold from the cards and boxes, the percentage profit is rather high. French colonials and Neurope are reigning favorites, and greatly please the young collectors who are delighted to be able to get twenty or perhaps even thirty brightly coloured stamps, often unused, for a franc.

One wholesaler seems to supply a considerable number of the merchants with their unused Neurope and the like. I have seen this individual on many a Sunday morning before the rush has begun, opening two bulky suitcases full of sheets of German, Austrian, Jugo-Slovakian, Czecho-Slovakian, Polish, Lithuanian, Latvian, German occupation of Belgium, Ukranian, Hungarian stamps and Seebeck issues and dispose of say 50 varieties in half sheets here and another similar lot there. Another individual supplies the merchants from literally bales of low-value French colonials at 15% over face.

The counter-book stamps are of the quality found in the average small stamp shop. The prices are half or less of catalogue, and it is here that the older collectors do much of their buying. As always in France, French and French colonial stamps are in great demand and bring the best prices. British colonials seldom are priced at over half of Yvert's, which results that to the dollar purchaser, many come at face or actually below. This of course, applies chiefly to current issues.

It is from the pocket-stockbook goods, however, that the advanced collector is able to make the most profitable purchases. Prices here average about 50% of catalogue, excepting only France and colonies. Superb American and British North American issues and other British colonials can be picked up almost regularly at half list. I have found any number of bargains in United States stamps from the 1847 issue through the classic period.

It is interesting to note that if a person approaches the bourse carrying a portfolio, as I generally do, he is met by merchants' scouts who inquire whether or not a collection is to be offered for sale, and if so, they assure one that their employer pays the highest prices at all times.

Paris stamp auctions are held in the Hotel Drouot, the public sales building for the city. It is located in the heart of the fashionable shopping section, a minute off the Boulevard des Italians and but a block from Theodore Champion's office. By law, public sales are required to be held there, and its numerous halls, filled with antique furniture, old books, lace, furs, jewels, tapestries, Venetian glass, statues, paintings, and a million more, it seems, objects, which are either on display for examination before an impending sale or are actually under the hammer, never fail to attract the lovers of the beautiful who crowd the building by thousands from morning to night.

Incoming lots of any kind are invoiced, catalogued, advertised and displayed, and are finally placed on actual sale. Thus the visitor will find some half a dozen rooms of display goods and five or six sales going on in other rooms on any day. Goods are changed throughout the establishment in the course of about ten days, hence one can visit it repeatedly and never fail to find new and interesting things. Most goods are bought by the hundreds of antique shop dealers, whose shops are found scattered throughout the city, but many tourists would not think a visit to Paris complete without being able to carry away with them some choice item secured by them at public sale in the Hotel Drouot.

I have attended, I suppose, thirty sales since coming here. Among them were nine stamp sales, and as WEEKLY readers are primarily interested in things philatelic, I will try to give them some idea of what French stamp auctions are like.

The stamp sales I have attended so far have all been held in Halls 8 and 9, on the second floor. Both rooms are rather small, and cannot comfortably accommodate more than about 100 persons, both seated and standing. Three long tables are arranged so as to complete a hollow rectangle with one of the side walls. Bidders' chairs are placed the length of these tables.

In the center of the square are the auction stand, the clerk's and cashier's desk, and a table on which lots to be disposed of during the sale are placed. So far as I have been able to learn, there are no night sales. Those I have attended have begun at two and at four. The average sale contains from 700 to 800 lots, and runs less than three hours.

Auction methods in the Hotel Drouot are wholly different from those which the auction buyer in Philadelphia or New York is acccustomed to. A lot number is called, an assistant walks the length of the tables displaying it, and meanwhile the bids are being received. There is almost no speaking. When an initial bid is received, as say 10 francs, the auctioneer questions "Ten fifty?" The bidder of this amount merely raises his hand, and the process is continued until the lot is sold. The auctioneer does about one-third of the talking of an American auctioneer, and few bidders make direct offer bids as such.

Once a lot is sold, the purchaser gives his name to the clerk, and is given the lot, for which he must settle on the spot, plus the government war tax. So while a lot is being sold, the one or two sold previous to it are being paid for. This results in endless confusion. There is a hurrying back and forth from buyers to the cashier on the part of assistants. There is a chronic shortage of proper change after fifteen minutes, buyers engaged in the strenuous endeavor to get a lot just purchased paid for frequently miss out in getting the next one, there is inter-borrowing of proper amounts among buyers themselves, and then there is always the question of tips, for securers of lots are in every case supposed to remember the assistants who bring them to them and collect. The resulting chaos seems rather ridiculous to one accustomed to the orderly conduct of American sales. Particularly preposterous does it seem that constant buyers, who constitute the great majority of those present, should be forced to go through the process of making perhaps as many as fifty separate payments a sale with the invariable scramble for change to cover each individual lot.

Prices are quite low, averaging less than a half of catalogue except in the case of France and colonies. What United States stamps are offered are normally procurable at what we from America consider a song. An exception to the low prices is, of course, to be found in the case of exceptionally rare items of all countries. Still sometimes even they do not bring what might be expected. For example, a week ago an 81p blue Moldavia 1858, listed at 40,000 francs, brought only 18,000.

A new crop of 24 varieties of provisionals, covering eight colonies, has been placed on sale at the colonial stamp bureau. To provide temporary supplies of 1, 2, 4 and 5 centime stamps, current 15 centime ones have been surcharged as follows:—Haute Volta on Haut Senegal and Niger, 1, 2 and 5 centimes on 15; Somali Coast, 1, 2, 4, 5 centimes on 15; Senegal, 1, 2, 4, 5 centimes on 15; Martinique, 1 and 2 centimes on 15; French Guiana, 1, 2, 4, 5 centimes on 15; Establishments in India, 1, 2, 5 centimes on 15; Wallis and Futuna Islands on New Caledonia, 1, 2, 4 centimes on 15; New Caledonia, 5 centimes on 15. No restrictions have been placed on their sale, though I found that purchasers were expected to purchase at least a moderate supply of ordinary colonial stamps as well. The set of 24 varieties is being retailed at from 1 franc to 1 franc 50 centimes, that is, from seven to ten cents. Further varieties are looked for.

French philatelic journals have been somewhat rather hard hit by having their postage rate for France and colonies raised from 2 to 5 centimes a copy.

DAOUST STAMP CO.
282 Ste. Catherine East, Montreal, Canada

This adds from 1500 to 3000 francs to mailing bills, an item of some consequence for many of them. Enterprising German publishers are offering to print French stamp papers in Germany, and to mail them there at the equivalent of 1½ centimes postage each. So far I have not heard of the offer having been accepted here, but one Italian stamp paper is now appearing from a German press.

It may be stated that German printing establishments are bidding on much catalogue work throughout the world. Catalogues from three American book companies have been received in my mail within recent month, all bearing a Leipzig mailing address. At Nice some months ago I met the representative of a Berlin printing house, who had come from the Orient but a few weeks ago with enormous orders covering pricelists of export houses in Japan and China.

Because of the relatively lower postage rate of France, all League of Nations mail is being transported across the Swiss border and mailed under French stamps. The Swiss postal administration has entered a formal protest.

Swiss stamps of the current issue are being liberally offered with the "Societe des Nations" overprint. They are available only in cancelled to order shape and would be invalid for postage if unused. No one seems to be able to explain what their exact status is.

Crude lithographed labels of the general design of the last German colonial series are being offered in a variety of colours covering all the colonies at about 5 cents the complete series wholesale. I have noted them in increasing numbers on the outside of packets made up for the boy trade and on sale at tobacco shops and kiosks. They will doubtless appear on cheap sheets in America in due course if they have not already done so. They are of German origin. Sample sets have come to me from Weimar and Berlin.

Buying for the American market in any line has been unusually exciting during the past month by reason of the great variation in exchange. Following the payment of a series of interest coupons by England in French francs to save the position of the pound, the franc tumbled to 12 to 16.50, quote with payments at 16.25, in four days. There was a rush of buy cables from America, and the franc has since gone back to 13. Thousands profited by the momentary depression. The French government has started criminal action against a number of foreign bankers for complicity in England's action. A considerable natural drop is expected about the first, when France herself meets a heavy foreign held bond issue. A little knowledge regarding impending payments of this kind and keeping an eye on the money market will often enable the holder of dollars to save 20% on the actual cost price to him. This is, of course, clear profit.

An important trade change took place four weeks ago when Emile Pavoille, the proprietor of a stamp shop on the rue de Rennes, purchased the well-known and long-established business of A. Forbin on the rue Saint-Lazare and amalgamated the two firms with headquarters at the old Forbin stand. The old Pavoille shop will be closed shortly.

The new 1 franc Monaco stamp of the promontory city of Monaco type, was put on sale late in December. At the time I secured my supply, it was available only at Monte Carlo. The stamp is issued in sheets of 25, and in its dark color against tinted background, is the most beautiful stamp issued in many months.

Considerable speculation is taking place with the 25 centime Prince Albert Monaco stamp which was suppressed after having been on sale for two weeks. The stamp was issued from a special plate of 25 subjects and comes with

SOLD ON RETURN OF DUPLICATE PLAN

Two Well-worth Packets

SOLD AT REMARKABLE BARGAIN PRICES

Both sold on a "Return of Duplicate Plan," originated by us, whereby you purchase any size packet, go over it at your leisure, adding all stamps desired to your collection and return balance (in even thousands) for immediate cash refund, or 10% more where other stamps are taken from approvals or our general lists.

Our prices are NET CASH WITH ORDER ONLY—NO DISCOUNTS—and are based on supplying same without delay. Our best selling talk is "Money back, at once, if goods fail to please you." This guarantee and the fact that we have been in business since 1891 protects every sale we make.

Study the proportionate cost of stamps in these two packets and order to-day, it will prove distinctly worth while.

3,000 VARIETIES "A GEM" AT $16.00
(Mounted $17.00)

Collectors having less than 6-7,000 stamps will find this packet of great help in building up their collection. Buying 1,000 stamps from this packet would cost but $9.35, less than 1c each. Lots of 19th Century stamps included and a real bargain.

This is how it works on our return plan:

3,000 Varieties at $16.00
1,000 Stamps would cost $ 9.35 or an average of 9/10c each
1,500 Stamps would cost $11.90 or an average of ¾c each

NEATLY MOUNTED

This is the real heart of all packets, our favorite seller for many "past" years, and a packet that will please the most "exacting" packet purchaser. Hundreds of real fine stamps and 19th Century included. A wonderful packet for one just starting a collection or for any collector with less than 14,000 stamps in his collection.

On our return plan you buy as follows:

10,000 VARIETIES AT $175.00
2,000 Stamps would cost $ 92.50 or an average of 4⅗c each.
3,000 Stamps would cost $110.25 or an average of 3⅔c each.
4,000 Stamps would cost $133.75 or an average of 3⅓c each.
5,000 Stamps would cost $145.00 or an average of 3c each.

SCOTT STAMP & COIN CO.

A VETERAN DEALER.

The fine large advertisement of J. E. Handshaw in this issue will attract the attention of every reader. Mr. Handshaw is indeed a veteran dealer, for his interest in stamps dates back over two decades. The first stamps that he purchased were bought from the well-known dealer J. W. Scott, who died a few years ago.

His interest in stamps increased and a little later he found a box in which were stowed away in the back of his father's carpenter shop bundles of old letters upon which were stamps as early as the 1847 issue. There were also locals and other stamps that would be valuable today. The stamps were sold for about $25, which was a lot of money for a boy to have in those days. It is worthy of mention that young Handshaw took $5 from the amount received and settled an outlawed bill owed by one of the family to an old storekeeper living in Smithtown. Mr. Handshaw's sense of honesty compelled him to meet the obligation though the bill was outlawed.

Mr. Handshaw says:—"I remember going over barrels of old letters and papers that were stowed away in the upper room in an old store. They cost me nothing and their sale to Durbin, Sterling, Brown, Mercer, Scott, Gambs and others brought me quite a bit of spending money. Soon I began the publication of a little paper called the Monthly Press and my interest grew to that extent that I became a full-fledged stamp dealer. Here and there I invested a little money, which often brought in good returns, but my first really large deal was the purchase from Mr. J. W. Scott of over one million unused assorted Cuban stamps. I had to raise the money from a friend to put this through. Mr. Pinkham, who at the time published the Eastern Philatelist, secured a large number of these stamps and used them for premiums.

The first dealer of note that I bought out was Mr. Knudson, who owned the Columbian Stamp Co., doing business on E. 23rd St., N. Y. City. After this as time passed, I bought out various other dealers, including Calman and the Empire Stamp Co. The purchase of the entire stock and goodwill of the J. W. Scott Co. is of so recent occurence as to be well known to most of the WEEKLY readers, but other stocks purchased included those of S. M. Bixby & Co., and Stanley Gibbons 20th Century, and now the old stock of the late George J. Carter."

When the Holton Stamp Co., of Boston, was in the public eye as one of the great stamp concerns of the country, Mr. Handshaw purchased a large slice of the stock of that firm. The Managing Editor recalls the visits that Mr. Handshaw used to make to the Hub and during the seven years in which he dealt in stamps he patronized Mr. Handshaw whenever he visited Boston and found him a very satisfactory man to do business with.

Probably no man in the stamp business has worked harder than Mr. Handshaw. He has played the game honestly and his business life has been successful. In connection with his business he has made several trips to Europe and we take pleasure in publishing this brief sketch of his career in this special number of the WEEKLY, which has during its lifetime covered so large a part of Mr. Handshaw's dealing activities.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—Miss Marion C. Deane of Tacoma, Wash., and a shut-in to whom many of our readers sent tangible Christmas greetings, acknowledges the courtesies received. She writes: "You gave me a very merry Christmas, indeed, and philatelists are the very nicest people in the world. I would like everyone to know what a very happy Christmas I had and how very grateful I am for the many kindnesses. It isn't half bad to be a shut-in when so many letters come from all over the country wishing one a Merry Christmas."

—J. T. E.—We answer your question publicly, as being of more than ordinary interest, but suggest that where a personal reply to a question is desired a stamped envelope should accompany the query. We are unable to single out the advertisers in our publication who are "especially well calculated to fill want-lists." We only suggest that you try them all out, when you can easily decide this matter.

—Wholesale and Retail Price-List No. 66 has just been issued by the Marks Stamp Co., Toronto, Can. The number of the list speaks well for the stability of the firm, but coupled with this their membership in the A. P. S., A. S. D. A. and Paris and Berlin stamp dealers' associations is added proof. The list before us seems more pretentious than any of the previous ones. A large variety of stamps is priced per 1, 10, 100 and 1,000, while there is a profusion of packets and mixtures to accommodate dealers. A fine line of accessories is also offered.

—U. S. collectors will be interested in the establishment of the Galbraith new issue service. In keeping with the progress that this country is making in all branches of philatelic endeavor, it is eminently fitting that the furnishing of new issues should not be left to British dealers. Mr. Galbraith will supply these stamps at 10% over face value to regular customers and 30c to the shilling to transients and upon occasional orders. The margin of profit in the conduct of a business of this kind is so small that any dealer who may attempt it may well be regarded as a benefactor to the hobby.

—An advertising cancellation is being used at Kingston, Jamaica, reading as follows:—"Come to Jamaica, W. I., The Ideal Tourist Resort." Specimen from A. A. Wasserscheid.

—Edward E. Goodchild, of Montreal, is receiving the congratulations on his appointment as commissioner of the Supreme Court for the district of Montreal, Can. Mr. Goodchild believes that Class M, Section 5, in the coming International Stamp Exhibition "Objects of postal and philatelic interest" was established for his benefit. It is his intention to exhibit his already famous collection of covers of Soviet Russia.

—Will the party residing at 102 W. 134 St., N. Y. City, who ordered Barbados stamps from W. F. Ferguson and omitted to sign his name please forward the same to Mr. Ferguson? His order will then be filled.

—Keene, N. H., has a philatelic mayor in the person of R. T. Kingsbury and we are indebted to L. H. Haselton of that city for an account of the mayor's career. Mr. Kingsbury is a member of the A. P. S. and his collection consists of U. S. only. All his family are devoted philatelists. His sister, his wife and four children all have their collections, and in addition there is a general family collection. Mr. Kingsbury has the local Scott agency.

—Frank A. Goldsmith has shown us a new advertising cancellation from Manhattan, Kans., reading:—"Farm and Home Week, Manhattan, Feb. 5-10, 1923."

—Carl H. Morrill shows us a new advertising cancellation:—"Winter Carnival, Greenfield, Mass., Jan. 12-13-14."

—Joseph Gallant, Hempstead, N. Y., is sending out a wholesale and retail pricelist of stamps in sets and packets. The list is a very complete one and will be sent to anyone applying for the same. We note that Mr. Gallant gives a three months' subscription to the WEEKLY with every order, amounting to $5 or more.

—D. D. Sweetser, Box 764, Portland, Me., is sending out a very pretty calendar of a convenient size. It carries with it a philatelic flavor with a fine picture of a Cape triangular. A 2c stamp will probably secure a specimen.

J. O. MOORE, INC. TAKES 4000 LINES

We are pleased to state that J. O. Moore Inc., has contracted to use 4000 lines during the year 1923. Mr. Moore, the owner of this business, has been a regular advertiser in the WEEKLY for many months and the taking of this large amount of space is evidence that his business relations with the WEEKLY have been very satisfactory. He writes: "We find that in the majority of cases larger space gives us appreciably better returns than the ordinary space."

ROMANCES OF CHINA'S POST OFFICE.

(From The North-China Daily News, Shanghai, China.)

The annual report of the Chinese Post Office is indeed a unique publication and one which, if issued in a de luxe edition, might well be treasured in anyone's library. A snapshot reproduced on the stereotyped official cover is but an introduction to chapters of romance within. It presents a distinctly unpleasant-looking Mongol pirate—which is probably a gross libel—as untamed in appearance as the four-legged diminutive mass of hair which he bestrides, the caption being: "Mounted courier on day and night service through Gobi Desert." He and the pony are each but one of many extraordinary servants and means of transportation in probably the most amazing postal service in the world. The greatest single country in the world, and one with a past civilization rivalling anything achieved by the Egyptians, the Incas or the Aztecs, in the midst of civilization it is now, away from the coast, amongst the most backward and undeveloped countries. Yet, with such a handicap, a postal service is maintained to every corner of it—necessarily slow in parts, perhaps, but comparatively reliable. Mails are lost and robbed, but so they are even in New York.

The Post Office report is generously illustrated with photographs, and after inspecting them one wonders, although, of course, there are other countries using every means of transport here shown, whether there is any other using all of them. There are the mail trains, to begin with, then there are the Shanghai motor lorries and a company of cyclists, there are mail steamers and launches and there are aeroplanes, although probably the Post Office will not care to boast too much about the latter after the incident of the military lord of Tientsin who said he was not going to have the wretched things dropping letters down on him, for how was he to tell whether they had bombs in them or not! After that we come to the really romantic. While the hairy gentleman on the cover is careering across the Gobi Desert, camels are taking the heavy mail, post-junks are shooting the Yangtze rapids, a picturesque courier is hee-hawing through Kuangtung with mails slung on either end of a bamboo yoke and a jolting Peking cart with a pair of ponies harnessed as in a Moscow sleigh is making time through the swampy wilds of Sinkiang. In Anhui they are so primitive that the courier crosses rivers in what is no more than an enlarged edition of the homely washtub—only a slight advance on the ancient Briton's coracle. Shensi receives its heavy mails by a litter slung between two ponies or by bullock cart, but Honan, slow but fairly sure, gives a preference to the ubiquitous wheelbarrow.

Antedating even the washtub boat is the buffalo skin raft on which mails are taken across the Yellow River, and in Manchuria they are transported over the icefields on those quaint steel-shod rafts so popular on the Tientsin river, the man standing at the stern and punting with the pole between his legs. In Szechuan or Honan, a person fuming over a delayed letter might well spare a thought for the faithful courier in the former province who crosses a wide and deep gorge by a cable not even fitted with a breeches-buoy, or in the other for the "fast" postman who sticks at nothing to justify his claim to the title and so scales a city wall by means of a rope. One wonders why this latter performance is necessary, for surely the gates in Honan city walls are not so far apart that the Post Office people are compelled in their hurry to go creeping about the walls.

By such means, then, do we get our letters from the interior and in such ways does the Post Office, in default of the existence of the better means of transport available in the countries of the West, go on year by year assisting in developing China and building up its trade. There may be typhoons or floods, revolution or peace, Hsu, Li, Yuan or Sun, or any two or more of them in power, but, from mail train to washtub boat, from European Director-General to humble, half-civilized coolie of the interior, the work continues and the mails are delivered. If one thinks it out, considering all the obstacles that are successfully surmounted every day, even when only the most primitive means are at hand, and remembering that there are many competent men at the head, the Chinese Post Office will probably give us just as good a service as anything we have been having from the international offices. After all, it does the same and more work with the same people and its experience is much wider.

Amongst other features in the report there is an intensely interesting historical survey which is as good reading as many a modern novel and there is in it one sentence which very aptly describes the work of the Post Office and conveys a sense of appreciation which could scarcely be bettered:—

"When the last stage courier on the long line—the longest in the world (4,400 miles)—which connects Peking and Kalgan with Tihwa in Chinese Turkestan, arrives—

> ' . . . . the herald of a noisy world,
> News of all nations lumbering at his back', perchance it may occur to the dwellers in that far-off isolated community to regard him as an outward and visible sign of the happiest method of peaceful penetration." We in Shanghai might think the same.

The Directorate-General of Posts, in its report for last year, tells us that there was a time, in the early days of its career, when the Chinese name of the department, Yu Chêng-chü, was uttered in derision. We are not told why, and, not having learnt the Chinese subtle gift of scorn, such as enables one to call a person a tortoise and shrivel him to impotent shame or goad him to maniacal fury, we cannot understand the cause for such derision. However, the Post Office has long since lived down any cause for derision and the Chinese must, as foreigners do, look upon it as one of the very few honestly and capably controlled public services they have.

The service is making such rapid strides that during the year 4,184 additional places were provided with postal facilities, which again is a striking increase, considering that the year closed with 35,459 places so provided for. And all this has come about in 25 years, a record of which any country might well be proud, and it must not be forgotten that this period takes us back to before the Boxer trouble, when the development of the country was as nothing compared to even the poor condition of it now, and it carries on through all the turbulent years that have followed the First Revolution in 1911, since when there has not been one whole year of civil peace, whilst now, at a time when, candidly, the conditions seem worse than ever, the Post Office finds itself faced with daily improving records.

What seems the most amazing part of the story is the fact that this gigantic work is being carried through by a staff very little larger than the foreign population of Shanghai. At the end of last year there were but 115 foreigners all told in the service and 31,843 Chinese (as against 30,424 in 1920). The force scarcely seems to be sufficient to have dealt with the year's increase of itself, apart from the huge figures represented in the gross.

Philatelists will find the Post Office annual report a useful work to include in their libraries, for there is a generous section, with illustrations, giving notes on early and current specimens, overprints, surcharges, and so on, going back to 1878.

T. ALLEN, "Craigard", Blake Hall Rd., Wanstead, London, E. II, Eng.

A DAY ON THE ISLAND OF MALTA.

By W. E. HUGHES.

To wake up at half past six on a bright May morning and find one's self at anchor in Valletta Grand Harbour is a pleasant experience, and one I enjoyed last year. Our steamer carried explosives, so that we were placed far from the madding crowd and as near the head of the harbour as possible. Still, there were compensations, as near us were surrendered enemy undersea boats, tied up in rusty bundles, while close by was one of our own submarines which had made history beneath the six tiers of mines in the Dardanelles, winning the V. C. for its gallant commander and a niche in the temple of fame for itself. Over there, near a coal store, we could see a strange battered contraption, which turned out to be a stern-wheeled steamer, drawing about eighteen inches of water, which had been a hospital ship on the Tigris.

Malta is a beautiful place, and its history is still to be told. In the old days of small sailing craft, its fine natural harbour must often have been a refuge for Phœnician, Greek, Carthaginian, Roman, Norse and Venetian seamen as they voyaged from coast to coast, enjoying the trade winds. All these races, and many others, have helped to build up Malta, and each has left its impress. The forts, erected by the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem, give one a sense of power, and the Cathedral of St. John is one of the lesser known wonders of the world. The forts and Grand Harbour are shown on the old 4d stamp.

No mention of Malta is complete without reference to the shipwreck of St. Paul. It is true that the incident is said by some people to be merely a legend, but after one has been to Malta and studied the topography of the Mediterranean, one is less inclined to scoff at the story. The scene of the wreck is depicted on the old 10sh stamp.

Speaking generally, Malta is a poor country. It depends on the industry of its inhabitants, and without the British Fleet it would lose a large part of what prosperity it has. It is a rocky island, and it is said that all the soil has been brought from abroad. Certainly the islanders cultivate every inch of their fatherland. The Maltese think in farthings. They are compelled to do so by necessity. A large number of stamps are used for fiscal purposes. Every price list in a shop window has a stamp stuck on it.

The Colony or State of Malta includes also the island of Gozo, where much of the famous Maltese lace comes from. This island has also given its name to a special type of craft, called the Gozo fishing smack. It is to be seen on the old 5d stamp.

To take the lift that climbs the face of the rocky cliff between the Harbour and the town and to walk along the promenade which skirts the Upper Barracca Gardens, is to look upon one of the most wonderful views in the British Empire. Beneath us are the ancient forts, with their massive walls, which beat back the ravening Turk, while float on the water great battleships and cruisers, which from the height on which we stand look like toy boats. The White Ensign. It is a naval base of the first magnitude and a bright jewel in the diadem of Britain.

Malta is not now a Colony in the old sense, but a self-governing community among the peoples of the British Empire. It is likely to be a heavy burden for a people so few in numbers, and one can only wish them good luck.—Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly.

MICHIGAN STAMP CLUB.

By HERMAN W. BOERS.

The Michigan Stamp Club for several years held meetings at Fraternity Hall, Detroit, but hereafter all meetings will be held at G. A. R. Hall on Grand River and Cass, more centrally located, more convenient and a better locality.

At present the Club has a membership of 70. It is one of the big branches of the A. P. S. These meetings are held on the first and third Saturdays of the month, and any collector who should happen to be in Detroit is welcome to the meeting.

The meetings of this season have been unusually good, an average of 35 members have been present, and new members have been added. The Auction and Sales Departments have taken a new life, more enthusiasm is shown. The officers are trying to make this a good season, and the Publicity Department has had the daily papers give special notices of meetings and doings, all of which has helped to build up the society.

A SAMPLE LETTER.

Dear Mr. Fennell:

I do not think enough credit can be proffered you for the campaign you have launched on repaired stamps. Our views on this matter certainly coincide, and I want to tell you that for the past two years I have marked every repaired copy that has come into my possession not alone with the letter "R" but with the full word "Repaired."

Personally, I feel that a fine appearing repaired copy has a place in Philately. I will, in a great many instances, pay more for a superb-looking, expertly-repaired copy than I would for a perfectly sound, off centered, heavily cancelled one.

As I look upon it, the great trouble with repaired copies, even if sold as such without being marked, lies in the fact that a stamp might pass through several hands, acquire an accumulation of hinges, and upon being soaked by the purchaser, who is not adept enough to discover fine repairing, the stamp falls apart.

In lieu of this I have, for the past 60 or 90 days, been stamping all repaired copies that come into my hands with a small rubber stamp "Repaired—Do Not Soak" which I am showing you in the margin at the left.

I really feel that this movement should be taken up by the various Dealers' Associations and pushed to the limit. I can assure you that if I can be of any assistance to you in helping you foster such a campaign against that which seems to be a growing menace to our high-class hobby, I do not want you to hesitate to call upon me.

With Best Wishes for the New Year, I am

Very sincerely yours,
N. B. PAULSON.

THE LINN STATIONERY.

It is a rather unusual thing for a firm to take space in the WEEKLY to advertise anything other than stamps, but the fact is, the Linn Company has a rather unusual offer of stationery at a price ridiculously cheap. We have seen specimens and the stock and printing are both of the highest class. Note the attractive advertisement elsewhere in this issue.

TOPEKA HAS FIRST POSTAGE METER IN KANSAS.

When you get your telephone bill next month, look at the envelope. In the upper right hand corner you will see the work of a great labor-saving device which has been installed by the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., in Topeka. It is the print of the "postage meter," the first of its kind to be installed in Kansas.

The meter grabs the letter, prints a stamp, the post mark, and seals the envelope. When running at full speed it will prepare 20,000 letters an hour.

Altho the machine prints its own stamps, there is no possible way to cheat Uncle Sam out of the money he receives for selling stamps. He knows just exactly how many stamps are in the machine and when the supply is exhausted, the machine refuses to print any more stamps.

When the supply is exhausted, employes of the company will have to make a trip to the postoffice to see Charles Sessions, postmaster. He is the only person in the city who can make the machine print stamps again. When the company produces the cash for more stamps, he will set the machine accordingly.

The company sends out about 90,000 letters monthly. Ordinarily two days' time is spent in preparing the letters. The new machine will enable the company to put out the mail in less than five hours.

The meter was put on the market about nine months ago by the Pitney-Bowers Co., of Stamford, Conn. Meters already have been installed in many states, but the one installed last week is the first one in Kansas. The same canceling machine has been adopted by almost every country in the world, according to Wilbur R. Greenwood, of Kansas City, Mo., district manager of the company.—Topeka Daily Capital.

French Colonials

Phillips' Monthly Bulletin

for January is free to "live" collectors. 24 pages offering thousands of desirable stamps, new issue notes, special bargain offers, new issues, etc.

We offer you what we believe to be the finest line of French Colonials ever offered in America. Stamps that have a future. Just look up catalog prices several years ago if you think the majority of these are not a "good buy." For instance, we noticed in buying new stock of many French China Offices we were paying more for the stamps than we sold them for less than a year ago.

A few years will show there are more real bargains offered here than you'll ever pick up buying big discount stuff. Most of these stamps are really scarce and few dealers anywhere in the World can supply a good line of them. It has taken us years of hunting, and the expenditure of tens of thousands of dollars to make this offer possible. Take our tip and fill your Fr. Col. spaces, especially the 19th, and also Offices in China. Just remember, too, that most of this is not 50% stuff. These stamps as a rule come badly centered, but most of our stock is PICKED. Nearly all the unused are mint and not all nubbed, cracked, thinned, or the backs stuck up with hinges as is usually the case when taken from collections. This is surely an opportunity to fill Fr. Col. spaces. We have 90% of those not offered here, but space does not permit our offering more, and we have only four or five copies, too small a quantity to offer of a medium priced item. Let us have your want list.

FRENCH CHINA AND OFFICES

These have always been good stamps and advanced sharply in value during past few years. Few collectors have them, or few dealers any stock of them. Most of our unused items are mint and not pasted all over with hinges from collections, etc.

EDITORIAL.

The WEEKLY celebrates its thirty-second birthday by preening itself a bit and indulging in a self-approving hour. No undue sense of delicacy restrains the publishers of a newspaper from self-advertising when the record of the years is such that it may be referred to with some satisfaction; and it would ill become us to let others do the shouting for us as we might find that they had lost their voices.

On one point, we take pride. We have proven the permanency of philately. From 1891 to 1923, the WEEKLY has not missed an issue despite the interruptions of wars, financial upheavals and the contingencies that arose during this long period of time. Those who have to do with class publications know how crises have to be met occasionally, and on the printed pages there is no reflection of the inner turmoil. The fact that the WEEKLY has progressed all through these years shows that the support of readers has never been lacking and time has proved that the day of faltering steps in philately has been passed; and we congratulate all philatelists, as well as ourselves, that such is the case.

Now that our firm conviction that philately is in an unshakable condition has been established, we shall speak of the future. Plans for better service by the WEEKLY have been adopted and their application will be manifest as coming issues appear. It is our aim to cover the news of the world through arrangements that are being perfected and a number of loose ends that are flying about will be tied into a sustaining knot. The experience gathered through many years should show to better advantage and while developments may be slow in coming, they will not be lost sight of. Our book publishing department will be cultivated as we feel that the distribution of our books has a stabilizing effect on collecting. Every publication that is placed in the hands of a collector gives a little stability to philately as the book is not cast aside so easily as a newspaper. While the WEEKLY essentially is a mail-order proposition, we are about to experiment again after a lapse of years by placing the WEEKLY on a few newsstands in a large city to see if there is now any general demand for a philatelic newspaper. If there is any response to speak of, an opportunity for circulation increase will not be neglected.

The radio is to give its assistance in spreading the glad tidings of philately; and to the Burt McCann Company of Minneapolis, we credit the enterprise that will allow all and sundry to listen in on the night of January 19th; and though the notice of the first air advertising of collecting has been received too late for action this time, we expect to have further particulars of coming events of the kind. We are asked by the Burt McCann Company to "watch for W L A G Minneapolis broadcasting talk on stamps by a local member of the American Philatelic Society, January 19th, 6 to 7 P. M., East Central Time." Other radio talks on philately are on the tapis.

In the course of his letter, Mr. S. Hyman, Chicago, says: "Our concern, a prominent shoe house, sent a shipment to Mexico consisting of fifty cases, postage $109.00. For some reason, the goods were refused and the shipment returned. The postage due amounted to $109.00 and one of the shipping cases had 218 of the 50c postage due. I have removed a block of sixty for your inspection, showing the style of cancellation by roller stamp. As the fifty-cent postage due is used by the thousands here daily, I think that it catalogues too high, now." Some time ago we told how the fifty-cent postage due came to be used in sheets of one hundred stamps to cover the postage due arrears, in the aggregate, of the large mail-order houses, but Mr. Hyman's citation is interesting as putting on record about the largest straight postage due assessment that we have heard of, on a single consignment.

One of our readers, Mr. A. S. Yount, who is especially interested in the first stamp of Spain, the 6c, black, tried his hand at finding these Number Ones in the land that gave them birth. The following letter was received by Mr. Yount from the leading dealer of Spain: "Replying to your favor, dated Nov. 21st, I am very sorry to have to inform you that I am unable to quote prices for Spain No. 1, which you would like to buy because I hold no stock of these stamps that are particularly scarce, and in fact, quite difficult to be traced at all." From Paris, too, we have heard that Spain's first stamp has become much sought after, as well as "one of the lower priced U. S. of somewhat over fifty years ago."

Evidently, Turkey has cleaned out Thrace, judging from the slump that has been noticed in prices of Thracian stamps, under Greek occupation, of the evidences of the Grecian occupancy; and it is understood that correspondence only in Turkish or French is allowed in mail for Eastern Thrace. Many of the stamps of Thrace are now being marketed at concessions from the former prices.

We have been informed that the death of George Douglas Mekeel took place at Omaha, Nebraska, recently; and thus the third of the philatelically famous Mekeel brothers, who established the old C. H. Mekeel Stamp and Publishing Company has passed from the scene of earthly endeavors. G. D. Mekeel after leaving philately engaged in the insurance business and we saw him last in Minneapolis, Minn., about five years ago. He made a name for himself in the insurance world and we understand that he was singularly successful in his field. Mr. Mekeel had a personality that was engaging and while quiet and unassuming, he possessed a force that soon became apparent. Twenty-five years ago, Mr. Mekeel was sales superintendent of the American Philatelic Society, a position in which his aptitude for clerical work stood him in good stead. While perhaps G. D. Mekeel was not a thorough student of stamps, he understood them well in their commercial aspects and his faith in the market possibilities of stamps never wavered. Mr. Mekeel was somewhat over fifty years of age and his removal from our sphere is recorded with sincere regret.

An interesting letter has been received from a correspondent who is in a position to furnish us with material that could well be shared with our readers and we hope to hear from him again. He says: "Do you know that the government's stamp collection had its inception in 1891, when Postmaster-General Wanamaker asked from Congress an appropriation of $1,000 for 'miscellaneous expenditures' for a postal museum and for the sum of $1,200 'for a competent man to put in charge of it?' Mr. Wanamaker, with aid of postmasters generally, and with accumulations in the museum of the dead-letter office, collected a good bit of material for the collection which is now one of the philatelic sights of Washington. I understand that due to the canvas made by the department then, some rare old stamps were turned in by the Nasbys of the time."

MR. BECK RETIRES.

Max Beck has retired from the stamp business, after using the WEEKLY for many months. We take pleasure in quoting the letter written this office, which is self-explanatory:—

"I am sorry that the pressure of other business prevents me from longer continuing in the stamp business. You will therefore receive no further copy, as I am gradually winding up my affairs, and expect to have disposed of my entire stock by the end of January.

"I wish to express my appreciation of the very courteous and considerate treatment you have always accorded me, and also wish to say that the WEEKLY was the best advertising medium I could find, and I had tried practically all other philatelic periodicals that could be considered worthy of the name. I assure you that should I at any future date be able to again devote my time to stamps, the WEEKLY will certainly carry my ads."

WHO WAS WM. BROWN?

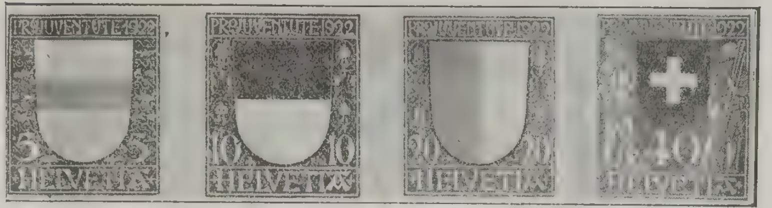
By EDGAR METZER.

n response to your request for in-cmation regarding one "W. Brown" vose portrait appears on the 20 Peso tnp of the issue of 1891 of the Ar-etine Republic, I am pleased to advise h some time ago I looked up the aious characters whose portraits ap-er on the stamps of the Argentine Re-lic. The information I was able to tin regarding W. Brown is rather gre and is as follows:—

William Brown was an Irish merchant aain but a fighting demon. During h Argentinian War for Independence ewas placed in command of a few hs at Buenos Aires and won a victory nhe sea for the Patriots."

THE YULE-TIDE STAMPS OF YOUTH.

By FRED. J. MELVILLE.



In December each year, the Swiss Postal Administration, in conjunction with the "Pro Juventute" foundation of the Société Suisse d'utilité publique, issue a small set of stamps in special designs "for the children." They come as heralds of Christmas, and betoken the spirit of charity, peace and goodwill, which pervades the season of Yule. The stamps are sold at a surtax of 5 centimes over their postal value, the supplementary sou being collected in aid of institutions for the protection and care of children.

This happy idea was originated in 1913, with a single stamp of the denomination 5 centimes in a design by the French stamp artist, Auguste Grasset, who designed the Swiss postal jubilee stamp of 1900, and the French Indo-Chine of 1904. The design shows a half-length female figure, emblematic of Helvetia, with the Matterhorn in the background. It was surface-printed in green on white wove paper, with unbleached red and blue silk fibres in its substance, watermarked cross, and perforated 12½x11½ (not 11½ by 11½ as given in the Zumstein catalogue).

The dates on the stamp indicate the period of their currency from December 1st, 1913, to February 28th, 1914.

For the specialist there are flaws to be found in the stamp, and a variety in which the letters "PRO" are thick.

At the Geneva Stamp Exhibition this year the "Pro Juventute" Foundation made an interesting exhibit in sheets of 100 of all issues, from which it appears that they issued labels the previous year, showing a group of children, with value and inscriptions expressed in three separate editions, "10 Rp.", "10 Cts." and "10 Cmi", and at the bottom "Viel Sonnenschein im neuen Jahr," "Soleil et santé a tous," and "Un anno di sole." The sale of these, which had no postal franking power, was undertaken by the Swiss post-office, and netted 127,000 francs (1,275,939 were printed), for the fund, which was devoted to the work of combating the ravages of tuberculosis among the young.

The 1913 stamp, illustrated above, was printed to the number of 3,314,060; it also sold for 10 centimes, of which half went to the Post Office for the postal service rendered, and the other half, 165,000 francs, was divided to give 4½c to the "Pro Juventute" fund, and ½ centime to the benefit of the Swiss postal employés. Thus the postal revenue was 165,703 francs, the proceeds for the postal employés fund, F. 16,570,30, while the "Pro Juventute" foundation netted F. 149,132,70, which was devoted to the fight against tuberculosis.

The following Christmas found the whole of Europe in the throes of the Great War, and the Pro Juventute stamps for that year (1914), were withheld on account of the financial stress occasioned by the war. But for Christmas, 1915, the plan was proceeded with, and on December 1st two stamps were issued in designs by Wilhelm Balmer, of Berne, engraved on steel, by J. Sprenger, of Bienne, were printed in Berne at the Federal Mint, on buff paper, perforated 11½. The buff paper for this and all the subsequent issues shows tiny fibres of unbleached silk in its substance. The designs show a lad of Appenzel and a maid of Lucerne.

10 (+ 5) centimes, red on buff.

The 5c was printed in the usual sheet form (35 000 sheets), and also with the tête-bêche arrangement adopted for the booklets (18,000 sheets).

2,895,951 of the stamps were sold (1,958,593 of the lower and 937,358 of the higher value) netting Frs. 145,000 for the fund, applied to general uses for child welfare. The actual printing of the 10c was 3,000,000.

In 1916 the plan was extended to a set of three denominations, 3, 5 and 10 centimes, in similar designs by Balmer, showing children of the Cantons, by the same engraver and printed at the Mint as in the previous year. On the 3c is a maid of Freiburg, on the 5c a Bernese boy, and on the 10c a vineyard girl of Vaud. The new denomination 3c was sold at 5c, the surtax being only 2c.

3 (+2) centimes, violet on buff.
5 (+5) centimes, green on buff.
10 (+5) centimes, red on buff.

There are some plate flaws, including a broken E in HELVETIA in the 3 and 5c.

The total sold of the three was 3,754,655, from which the net receipts for the fund were Frs. 154,000, which amount was devoted to the protection of the young from moral dangers. The figures for the separate values are 1,114,253 (3+2c), 1,754,910 (5+5c), and 885,502 (10+5c).

The period during which the stamps were valid for use in the mails was extended this time — and for subsequent years—to April 30th, though the actual sale at the post offices is still confined to the month of December.

Although chiefly reserved for postal matter circulating within Switzerland, by special agreement with the countries concerned, the stamps were valid for use on letters, etc., passing to Denmark, Italy, Hungary and Portugal.

In 1917 another three designs by Balmer, engraved by Sprenger and printed at the Mint, depict a girl of Valais (3c), a girl of Unterwald (5c), and a girl of Tessin (10c). As in the previous year, the 3c was sold at a supplement of 2c, the others at a supplement of 5 centimes.

3 (+2) centimes, violet on buff.
5 (+5) centimes, green on buff.
10 (+5) centimes, red on buff.

There are plate defects on all three values.

4,013,362 of the stamps were sold, yielding a net amount of Frs. 168,000 to the fund, which was devoted this time to the care of the mothers, nourishment, and holiday centres for the young. Totals for the separate values, 1,079,244 (3+2c), 1,727,433 (5+5c) and 1,206,685 (10+5c).

With the "Pro Juventute" series of Christmas, 1918, there was instituted a new artistic theme at the hands of the Bernese heraldic artist, Rudolf Münger. From this time onwards we get a succession of issues in beautiful heraldic designs of the arms of the Cantons, in their correct colours, forming a new and attractive link between Philately and Heraldry.

The two denominations issued in December, 1918, show the Arms of the Cantons of Uri (10+5c), and of Geneva (15+5c).

10 (+5) centimes, red, yellow, black, on buff.
15 (+5) centimes, violet, black, yellow and carmine on buff.

There are various plate flaws on each value.

3,888,004 stamps were sold, netting Frs. 169,000, which sum was applied to the general uses of the foundation.

In 1919 the heraldic series was supplemented by a set of three values, presenting the Arms of the Cantons of Nidwalden (7½+5c), Vaud (10+5c), and Obwalden (15+5c), by the same artist, and produced by multicoloured typography as before.

7½ (+5) centimes, red, black and grey on buff.
10 (+5) centimes, green, black and red on buff.
15 (+5) centimes, red, black and purple on buff.

2,400,000 of each were printed.

5,058,982 of the stamps were sold, representing a heavy advance on the previous years' sales, and netting Fr. 253,000, which was devoted to the welfare of motherhood and nourishment of the young. Of the separate values the figures were 1,650,601 (7½+5c), 1,491,793 (10+5c), 1,916,588 (15+5c).

Three more cantonal arms designs were added in 1920, the work of the same artist, and of the same printing establishment, and presenting on the lowest value (7½+5c), the heraldic device of Schwyz, one of the three original Cantons, and the one which gave its name to the country we now know as Switzerland. In the frame of the design is repeated the figure of a hand uplifted in the act of taking the oath, symbolising the lead this canton took in the struggle for independence. On the 10+5c is the blue and argent shield of Zurich within a frame decorated with cogwheels, emblematic of the industrial importance of this canton. The third of this group, 15+5c, has the shield of Tessin in a frame in which are numerous bricks symbolical of the architectural skill of the Tessinois.

10 (+5) centimes, red, blue and black on buff.
15 (+5) centimes, violet, red and blue on buff.

There are plate flaws of all three, including F for P in PRO (7½+5c).

5,289,665 of the stamps were sold, yielding Frs. 264,000, which was applied to the protection of youth of school age. Of the separate values the sales were 1,613,057 (7½+5c), 1,674,251 (10+5c), and 2,002,357 (15+5c).

The Congress of the Universal Postal Union at Madrid, in 1921, agreed to the recognition of the validity of the "Pro Juventute" stamps in the international mails, and from the issue of December, 1921, the stamps were valid for postage on letters, etc., originating in Switzerland and destined for any country in the Union. Three values again added three more subjects to the heraldic series. On the 10+5c, the artist presents the Arms of Valois, on the 20+5c of Berne, and on the 40+5c, the federal arms of Switzerland. In his original drawing for the 40+5c, M. Münger took some artistic licence with the federal cross, representing it with long and narrow arms, but the more familiar cross was substituted in the engraving of the stamp.

10 (+5) centimes, green, red and black on buff.
20 (+5) centimes, violet, red, orange and black on buff.
40 (+5), blue and red on buff.

5,143,921 stamps were sold, yieldin Frs. 291,000, which was devoted to th protection of youth of the after-schoo age.

The total number of stamps sold sinc the initiation of the enterprise up to an including the 1921 issue is 34,000,00 from which the Pro Juventute foundation has received Frs. 1,736,000.

Issued on December 1st, this year, th latest set comprises four stamps, by th same artist, and continuing the heraldi theme. On the 10 centimes are the arm of Zug, on the 10 centimes the arms o Freiburg, 20 centimes, the arms of Lucerne, and on the 40 centimes the federa arms, similar to the preceding 40c stamp

5 (+5) centimes, red, blue and black o buff.

FOREIGN COVERS WE ARE SELLING an extra special packet of them, guaranteed to be all different and to catalog more than $1.00 7 FOR .50

Do you know, a dealer friend of ours came in the other day and said, "Say, what do you mean by offering 100 vars. of current and recent South and Central Americans and 150 vars. of other foreign stamps, a lot that catalogs $10, for $1.02?" We replied very sweetly, "We mean that we are selling lots of them." Says the dealer, "Is it like the 'Moonshine Creation'?" We had to laugh. "It's as much better than the 'Moonshine Creation' as the modern Eve thinks she is superior to the modern Adam." We call it a "Conglomeration" because we have mixed the proud plutocrates of South America with the best Europe can offer. It is a democratic and a cosmopolitan lot—really it's worth $1.02 to see them mixed together, 250 individuals!

To those who doubt—we announce The Manhattan Conglomeration—$1.02.

THE STAMP MARKET.

By the time these lines are in print the new Gibbons Part I will be in the hands of our readers. After a lapse of two years it will be interesting to see whether the general anticipation of a sharp upward tendency in the prices of many recent issues has been realized.

Many stamps that have been on sale and obsolete again since 1920 are listed for the first time. An interesting case in point is in the last issue of Batoum, in British Occupation. The set of from 1-50 roubles when first issued was sold at very high prices of from £2 to £3. Later it was offered at a special bargain at 10sh, the 7sh6p, and recently as low as 3sh6d.

Statistics of numbers of numbers issued show that this set is better than the previous one, and once Continental stocks are absorbed, a considerable appreciation should occur from the present low prices. It is a pity that the early imperfs. were not issued with the same amount of spacing as occurs in these and other modern imperforate issues! Superb copies of the early classics would then be quite frequent, and they would have been within the reach of a much larger circle of collectors. As it is, more and more are turning their attention to that really fascinating group of stamps of the same degree of financial soundness, that we discuss here from time to time—20th Century Colonial Issues—at present prices a sound investment, on which no Income Tax is payable, could not be imagined.

The overprinted Irish series has remained in use much longer than was expected, and used copies of most values are getting comparatively common, a large number being preserved, a still further reduction in market prices appears likely. Of course the overprints on the 2½d and 4d in the old first colours are now getting scarce and the high values are not often met with yet, but it is understood that those used on telegraph forms are to be sold later to the trade, instead of being defaced and destroyed as is the usual practice in this country, and if so they will become much commoner than at present.

A fair number of inverted Free State provisionals have been on the market lately, and the prices asked have been decidedly stiff, as more than one sheet of some exist and have been bought up. As a comparison, of the Turks Is. War stamp with inverted overprint only 120 were printed, and it sells for about 30sh. So buyers of the Irish varieties at boom prices may find they have not such a good thing as was thought.

Quite a fair number of the high values of Togo on Gold Coast have been on the market lately in used condition, so that prices have been low and they are well worth picking up at recent figures, as they have been obsolete some time. The high values of the current Gold Coast series itself keep up their prices, as not many come on the market. The 10sh is one of the best, as several quite marked shades occur. The variety with pale olive back will probably turn out one of the best, the emerald being current but still very scarce used, as is also the new 15sh duty, but both will get commoner when they have been in use for a time.

If Egypt had remained a British Protectorate it is probable that some of the recent issues would be fetching a higher price than is the case. With its tranferance to Part II. of Gibbons', a certain number of collectors ceased to take much interest in or collect its new issues. The 10c Postage Due, new type, in blue, created a stir when first issued, but prices have now eased considerably. The pictorial set was always a good seller, and the new overprinted set may produce some scarce varieties.

One of the most popular of the Pacific Island Dependencies is that of the British Solomon Islands. Used copies of any of the issues are worth more than mint, as the postmarking to order scandal which prevailed in the New Hebrides group at one time did not exist here. The first series of 1907, of course, is much the best, as very small numbers were issued, particularly of the 6d and 1sh, and the remainders were all destroyed. The quaint design and crude lithographic production with its minor varieties makes them very attractive to the erudite philatelist, and these are particularly hard to get in well-centered state.

The small ship type is on the up-grade again, and of the 1st K. George issue the 1d Postage-Postage is a good little stamp.

A distinctly healthy tone has been evinced in the London stamp market, where prices are brightening up again. It is noteworthy, however, that the number of dealers who go in for the better class trade has increased enormously in the last ten years. This has tended to make competition keener and prices and profits lower, which is a good thing for the collector, but until their number and buying capacity has increased in the same ratio there are bound to be some grumblers of bad trade! There was, probably, never more money being spent in this country on postage stamps than at the present time, unless during the boom War years, but is much more scattered than in pre-War times.—Philatelic Magazine.

THE HOUSE OF CHAMPION.

It has been the privilege of the Managing Editor of the WEEKLY to make two visits to the great Champion establishment in Paris. Indeed, two years ago when visiting that city I had a rather unique experience in connection with this firm's place of business. Reaching Paris at a late hour in the evening I said to the driver of a cab, "Give me a good hotel somewhere near Rue Drouot," with the result that I was taken to a very homelike hotel within a stone's throw of the shop and upon the very street upon which the firm is located.

On the following morning a visit to the store was in order. One can hardly describe the beauty of the entrance hall and staircase of this establishment. It is very high and built in the olden style which gives it a refined and distinctive appearance. The whole suite of rooms through which I was conducted caused me to think that it was some old residence which had been converted into a place of merchandise.

Theodore Champion, the head of the firm, is by no means a figure-head. I met him in his private office, where he greeted me very courteously and cordially, and I was made to feel at home immediately. Later the manager accompanied me through all the rooms and I was made acquainted with the ramifications of the business that was being done.

It was in 1902 that Mr. Champion founded the firm which bears his name, and there is doubtless no stamp business in the world on a better financial footing. He has created a Monthly Bulletin that takes first place for early and correct information, and only recently we reviewed his latest production, an air mail catalog. Then, too, Mr. Champion has a leading part in the pricings made in the Yvert-Tellier Champion Catalog, a work which is justifiably popular. It is interesting to note that this catalog has appeared regularly since 1897, no break being made necessary by the devastation of war.

I was surprised at the large number of employees carried by the firm. Some twenty men and more than that number of young ladies were found scattered through the rooms engaged in making packets and approval sheets, while others were busily arranging huge accumulations for stock.

Mr. Champion is himself an active collector, possessing a great many good things in stamps. In May, 1920, he purchased a mint 2d blue Post Office at a Paris auction for what was then a record price, 116,000 francs exclusive of the French Government tax. Correspondence is conducted in every European language and it is interesting to note that the major portion of the staff, both male and female, have been in the employ of the firm for over fifteen years.

Some months ago a brochure was issued by the firm and mention of it was made in the WEEKLY. We are using one of the cuts shown in that number in connection with this article, and another will be reproduced later on. It will pay the subscriber to write the firm for a copy of this booklet, which will be gladly sent. Among other things it pictures the fine reference library open to all dealers and collectors who may wish to avail themselves of its privileges. Another room is the reception room, elegantly furnished in every respect. It will readily be seen that words are wanting in paying proper tribute to this great business. It requires a visit in order to appreciate the splendid equipment.

Mr. Champion has advertised in the WEEKLY for many, many years, and all through the world war kept his name before the public as an active dealer. Even when the German forces were close on Paris, there was no suspension of the Champion publicity and it is a fitting tribute to the energy and personality which has established and developed so wonderful a business.

NOTES FROM FRANCE.

enormous sheet margins. If the stamp is to be re-issued, it will be in the customary sized sheet, divided into panes of 25. In that event, the 25 subject sheets will be in the same category as are the small sized sheets of the 50 centime Albert of Belgium issue of two years ago. Such 25c Monaco sheets as are being offered are sold at from 50 to 75 francs a sheet. There was no restriction placed on the sale of this stamp during the first few days of its use at least. I secured 40 sheets at face, and could doubtless have secured as many more. The present speculative price seems quite excessive.

The Ferrari philatelic library is now on sale in a number of the Paris stamp shops. The prices are exceedingly low, and I secured a number of interesting items during December. Unfortunately, there is no bookplate, and the purchaser must content himself with having the dealer inscribe the copies he selects, "from the Ferrari library." It is interesting to note that a number of the catalogues, as those of telegraph stamps and envelopes, are checked against the collection itself.

The value of stamp collecting as a hobby for an invalid is well illustrated by the case of a young Englishman, John Vincent Hanrette, a patient in the Alexian Brothers' Hospital at Kraiburg, Bavaria. This young man, in his early twenties, was born in South Africa and was educated in a Catholic college in Ireland. He has long suffered from congenital heart trouble, and has for months past been seeking relief in the quiet little brotherhood hospital in its out-of-the-way corner of Germany. The problem of how to pass the time became a serious one as he was obliged to remain quiet and could not, of course, study all of the time. He turned to stamp collecting and through the purchase of packets and the kindly aid of members of the order, he has built up an attractive and very interesting little collection, which gives him much pleasure.

DEATH OF CLARENCE H. EAGLE.

The sad news reaches us of the death of Clarence H. Eagle of New York, but we are unable to give any of the particulars. No doubt in our next number the facts can be given.

Mr. Eagle was the owner of one of the finest collections of United States revenue stamps in existence and has also devoted himself to U. S. adhesives. At the New York exhibition in 1913 he won high honors for his exhibits.

ATLAS STAMP CO. (P. C. Smith)
W. Somerville, 44, Mass.

Sales Exceed $60,000.00

That is what I would like to be able to say after closing the year 1923. I can do it with your help. You have the stamps—I have the money and clients. How can we get together is the point?

If you have fine United States I offer most any inducement to have you let them pass through my hands. Will buy for cash outright, will give excellent exchange or will sell on commission. Remember I not only want large properties but small ones as well, if attractive. Only postal adhesives at present—no envelopes or revenues. Especially desire mint early singles, pairs, strips and blocks, blocks of the higher values of the later issues, fine covers, rare earlies in fine used condition and the like. If you have one piece or a collection or a stock of duplicates, let's get together.

Stamps are a side issue with me—not my main business—carry them on as a pleasure, a recreation. No overhead, profit not the main consideration, so can pay handsome prices for handsome things. Should you desire I can furnish the best of bank, commercial or philatelic references. Been collecting nearly 30 years and selling on the side almost as long. CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the addresses of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—By the time these notes appear in print, the new 1c, 2c, 4c, 9c and 10c will have appeared, the 1c being placed on sale in both Philadelphia and Washington on the day of issue, January 17th, while the other values will be issued in Washington only on January 15th. It was hoped that the issue of the 2c could be held off until February 22nd, but it was found that the Bureau was approaching the end of the old 2c plates and it was found necessary to start the new variety. Judging from the die proofs they will be very beautiful indeed, but in the case of the other denominations the finished product has not begun to compare with the proof. This happens to be the case in spite of the fact that all postage stamp proofs today are printed on the regular paper.

An order of the Third Assistant Postmaster General, appearing in the Daily Postal Bulletin of December 30, 1922, will prove of great interest to a great many postmark collectors. Heretofore, a few postmasters have not been any too courteous in complying with the request of collectors. I recall when the surcharged provisional envelopes were being issued, some postmasters, such as St. Louis and Salt Lake City among others, at first refused absolutely to fill requisitions. This good work now being carried on by the Third Assistant Postmaster General in conjunction with the Stamp Division will not only result in increased profits to the Department, but will make postmasters generally look upon philately as something other than the pastime of cranks.

I copy from the Bulletin mentioned:—

"From reports received from time to time it is apparent that the department's philatelic stamp agency is serving to make the Postal Service popular with philatelists and others who follow the practice of collecting the various issues of postage stamp paper.

"For the purpose of increasing this popularity the department desires to accommodate these patrons and other good citizens engaged in the practice of collecting impressions of postmarks, and to accomplish this end postmasters are requested to comply with applications for copies in all cases when such applications are accompanied by return postage."

The above notice is signed by Mr. W. Irving Glover, Third Assistant Postmaster General.

In a recent issue mention was made of the fact that Mr. George B. Sloane had located two very strong shifts in plate 14169 of the new 6c stamp. Mr. Sloane now writes that these are located in the lower right pane, the stamps in question being the one beside the right plate number and the stamp immediately under.

Mr. J. H. Houston sends several clippings from the Washington papers, regarding the new series of postage stamps and other philatelic matters. Much of the information is dressed up to satisfy the newspaper correspondent, for we are told that the new 4c stamp is the first ever to bear a portrait of a woman, that Jefferson and Monroe will appear on a postage stamp for the first time and that the new 1c stamp is issued especially to commemorate the 200th anniversary of Franklin's birth.

ASCENSION.—Mr. Frank Pollard Brown has shown us the 1d green of St. Helena with the surcharge "Ascension" in black at the top of the stamp.

Mr. R. Roberts submits the following additional values surcharged as above: ½d green and black, 1½d red, 2d grey and black, 3d blue, 8d lilac and black, 2sh black and blue on blue, 3sh violet and black. Also the 1sh black on green which has the same overprint but in red.

AZORES.—The Economist Stamp Co. have shown us the 12c stamp of Portugal, surcharged for use in this colony, in a dark green shade.

CANADA.—The status of the 7c stamp is rather dubious. It is generally agreed that there will be no further printing, due to its being the same color as the new 4c stamp. In some post-offices no 7c stamp can be obtained. A postal official writes Edw. E. Goodchild that "the issue of the 7c stamp has been curtailed as much as possible for that reason." What is meant by this statement must be imagined.

CAPE VERDE.—The Economist Stamp Co. have sent us the following new colors in the current type: 1c light green, 3c orange, 4c rose, 4½c grey, 5c blue, 6c lilac, 7c ultramarine, 12c dark green, 15c red lilac and 30c grey green.

CHINA ON HONG KONG.—Mr. R. Roberts sends us a copy of the 4c pale rose, printed on script watermarked paper.

CYPRUS.—Capt. H. C. Westmorland states that the following are expected shortly: ½pi, black, 30par green, 9 and 18pi, Script. High values of 10s and £ are officially announced as in preparation. Colonial currencies are getting a little complicated nowadays.—S. G. Monthly Circular.

DANZIG.—The Y. Souren Co. submi to us for chronicle the 5 and 10 mark of green and orange respectively with the surcharge "D M" in black.

FIJI.—Mr. R. Roberts reports the 3d on new yellow paper, printed on old watermarked paper in sheets of 240 o four panes of 60 each.

FRENCH INDIA.—Mr. Pollitz of th Frank P. Brown Co. reports the 1 purple and black with the following overprints: "0.01" in black; "0.02" i blue and "0.05" in red.

GEORGIA.—The Y. Souren Co. advis of the appearance of two new issues o 2000r and 3000r. They are both of th same design, showing a woman standing with a sickle in her left hand, while a her feet sits a man resting on a sledg hammer. Above, two lines of nativ words appear while below are the figure of value. The color of the first mentioned stamp is dark grey and the othe brown.

GERMANY.—We have received the following new issues from the Y. Souren Co and Mr. R. Roberts: 50mks green and lilac, watermarked chicken wire; 200mk carmine on buff; 300mks green on buf and 500mks orange on buff. The las three values are watermarked lozenges

GIBRALTAR.—The 6d, 4s and 8s hav been printed on Script paper and the 1 may be looked for on emerald.—S. G Monthly Circular.

GRENADA.—5d, 9d and 3s stamps o Script are to appear in the colours usually associated with these values in othe colonies. Also a 1½d Postage Du stamp.—S. G. Monthly Circular.

GUIANA.—The Economist Stamp Co have shown us the following values i the new colors: 3c, 4c, 4½c, 5c, 6c, 7c 12c, 15c, 30c and 40c.

EARLY CHICAGO POSTAL HISTORY.

A PAPER READ AT A MEETING OF THE CHICAGO PHILATELIC SOCIETY.

By R. McP. CABEEN.

The earliest record of a postal service, connecting Chicago with the east, states that the mail was brought from Niles, Michigan, the nearest distributing point, by stage, in seasonable periods of the year, and during the winter by a half-breed Indian, chartered by general subscription of the citizens, who made the trip every two weeks, consuming about a week travelling on foot.

By March 31, 1831, Jonathan N. Bailey was made postmaster—whether by regular appointment or not, I have been unable to determine. Mr. Bailey occupied the noted Kinzie mansion, located on the north bank of the Chicago River, about where the Boulevard Link bridge crosses North Water Street. This house, abandoned by Mr. Kinzie in 1821, and afterwards repaired and used as a store in 1829 and still later as a post-office, had entirely disappeared by 1834.

During the early part of Mr. Bailey's régime, Elijah Wentworth, Jr., carried the mail once a month between Chicago and Niles, where it had arrived by stage from Detroit and Cleveland. The only other mail route from the East, which passed through northern Illinois, was a route from Peoria to Galena.

Even down to 1837 it required 14 days for a letter to come from New York or Washington to Detroit and five days or more to come from Detroit to Chicago.

The daughter of Jonathan N. Bailey married John S. C. Hogan, who arrived in Chicago in 1832. He in turn became postmaster on Nov. 2, 1832, and used as his post-office a room partitioned off from his story and a half store building, a log structure about 18′ by 45′ in size, located at intersection of Lake street and South Water street.

Hogan ran the fur-trading business of Brewster, Hogan & Co., and beside being postmaster was Justice of the Peace, alderman, Lieutenant in the Black Hawk War, deputy sutler at the fort, land agent and poet. But, overloaded with mortgaged realty, he went down in the panic of 1837.

Mail facilities at this time had been increased by routes from Chicago to Danville and to Green Bay.

Mr. Hogan was upbraided for the disorder in the post-office, by one of the citizens, who stated that where he came from the post-office was provided with small boxes, called pigeonholes, arranged in alphabetical order, in which the postmaster distributed the mail. Not to be outdone, Mr. Hogan cast about for some similar arrangement, but as no cabinet-maker was available, he secured as many discarded boots as he could find, and after cutting off a part of the top, he nailed them up on the log wall by their soles and used the legs for pigeonholes, and many who were in the habit of receiving mail also nailed up boots for the anticipated messages. Up to this time each person had had to look through the mail on the table and select his own.

John Bates, Jr., who arrived in Chicago in 1832, took over the active charge of the post-office for Mr. Hogan in 1833.

On Feb. 11, 1833, Chicago was incorporated as a town, embracing the territory bounded by Chicago Ave., Holsted St., Twelfth St. and Lake Michigan.

As early as Dec., 1833, a permanent mail route between Chicago and St. Louis was assured. A Dr. Temple secured the contract for carrying the mail as far as Ottawa on this route, and after providing himself with an elegant post-chaise from Detroit, with the Hon. John Dean Caton as a passenger, he drove the first trip on Jan. 1, 1834. There was no mail carried on this trip, and Dr. Temple and Mr. Caton suffered from the extreme cold.

In December, 1833, the mail route to Green Bay was discontinued by order of the postmaster-general. The first list of advertised letters of the Chicago post-office appeared in the Democrat, Jan. 7, 1834, and listed a single letter, addressed to Erastus Bower.

It is said that while Mr. Bates was in charge of the post-office he was in the habit of firing a gun from the north door of the post-office at nine o'clock to inform Chicago that it was bedtime.

"During this period" says John Wentworth "the post-office was one of the most reliable places of entertainment while the mail was being opened." The mail-coach was irregular in arrival, but the horn of the driver announced its approach and the people would assemble at the post-office. The postmaster would throw out a New York paper and some gentleman with a good pair of lungs and a jocose temperament would mount a dry-goods box and read. "Occasionally," says Mr. Wentworth, "I occupied that place."

In the summer of 1834, Chicago began to be visited once a week by the steamboat "Uncle Sam" from Buffalo. The steamboat "Buffalo" plied regularly between Chicago and St. Joseph and a stage ran regularly twice a week between that city and Niles, Michigan.

In August, 1834, four-horse post-coaches ran twice a week between Chicago and St. Louis, the route running through Ottawa, Peoria and Springfield.

On August 13, 1834, The Democrat published the following notice: "Mails—The apathy prevalent among our citizens is astonishing, with a population of over 2,500 dependent upon the post-office in this town; with the business transacted, equal to that in some places where a semi-daily mail is required; with a garrison of troops; with important public works in progress; with an Indian Agency through which the government is now negotiating the ratification of a treaty; with all this it is a matter of astonishment that the people should feel such indifference on the subject of mails."

A big mass meeting was held on Oct. 4, 1834, at the "Methodist Chapel," at which a committee of thirty was appointed to collect facts in regard to a canal or railroad and an extension of the post road beyond Ottawa.

In December, 1834, proposals to carry the mails between Chicago and Green Bay, once a week on horseback, for three years, were called for. In this month the Democrat, Chicago's only newspaper, ran out of paper and publication had to be suspended until a new supply arrived by boat in May, 1835.

In 1835 a new mail route was opened to Galena through Naperville, and in September it was announced that hereafter mail coaches from Chicago to St. Louis would make the run in five days by daylight. J. T. Temple & Co. were the mail contractors between Chicago and Peoria.

In the spring of 1836 a post route from Chicago to Galena via Elgin was put in operation.

At this time the Democrat was not on the best of terms with the local postal authorities as is evidenced by the following editorial of May 11, 1836: "Charge Specific—The mail arrived at the post-office on last Thursday evening at half-past six o'clock and was not opened for delivery until half-past eight on Friday morning, being fourteen hours from the time of its arrival until it was ready for delivery."

On March 4, 1837, Chicago was incorporated as a city, having as its corporate limits North Ave., Wood Street, Twenty-second Street and Lake Michigan.

At this time the post-office was situated on Clark Street, opposite the Court House, occupying a two-story brick building about 20 by 50 or 60 feet.

Sidney Abell became postmaster in 1837. Stage lines were in operation out of Chicago in several directions, all were naturally connected with the carrying of mail—whoever had the mail contract carried passengers and light parcels. John Frink succeeded Dr. Temple as mail contractor and soon expanded his business into the firm of Frink & Bingham. In 1838-39 their office was at 123 Lake St. In August, they carried passengers between Chicago and Galena, 160 miles, in two days, for $12.50.

Frink & Walker or Frink, Walker & Co., was the next development of this company. The office was in the same location for some time, but later was moved to the southwest corner of Dearborn and Lake streets.

In 1840 there was a tri-weekly stage between Chicago and Dixon's ferry with a fare of $6.00.

The running time between Chicago and Galena was cut down by one day by Frink, Walker & Co., in June, 1841, and the fare was reduced to $10.00.

William Stewart was appointed postmaster in 1842, and continued to occupy the same premises as his predecessor.

In 1845 the following new mail routes were opened: Chicago to Joliet via Blue Island, Bachelor's Grove and Hadley; Chicago to Monroe, Elk Grove, Wichliffe, Miller's Grove, etc.; Chicago via Babcock's Grove to St. Charles and other points; Chicago to Lafayette via Blue Island, Thornton, Crete, Kankakee, etc. In February, 1846, a new route was laid out from Chicago via Blue Island to Thornton, New Strasburg. Crete, Loraine and other points.

About this time the following schedule was announced for traveling eastward: "Chicago to Detroit * * * by the Central Railroad mail line (now the Michigan Central) being thirty-six hours quicker than by the lake route. The steamboat will leave Chicago daily (Sunday excepted) at 8 o'clock A. M., arriving at St. Joseph, a distance of sixty miles, at 4 P. M., same day; leave St. Joseph at 5 P. M., in coaches, arrive at Jackson at 7 P. M., same day; leave

WHERE ARE THE OLDER PRECANCELS ?

By V. W. ROTNEM.

(Based on a survey of the precancel stocks of Charles Wilson, Frank C. Mertz, Howard Starr Dickey, Rotnem Danielson, B. G. Bushnell and Fred Raff.)

Where are the older issues of precancels? I used to think, before my travels of this summer and fall, that there were plenty of most of these items. They were issues only twenty-five years ago, and surely some of the older "hoarders," collectors and dealers would have plenty of these items.

One year ago or more, I rummaged thru the Charles Wilson stock. There were some very choice older issues in this holding, strong in places, but the majority of the older items were represented by one or two copies, often in inferior condition. At the time I satisfied myself with the conclusion that Mr. Wilson's stock was strong in other lines, perforate elevens, and that other dealers had been at it long before he had; they, I was sure, had this old stuff which he lacked.

Then, this spring I enjoyed a little chat with Elmer Toepleman, who no doubt had the most unique collection of Wisconsin items in existence. When asked, did he have any of the early issues in quantity from this state, he was much amused. "They don't come in clusters," he said. "I have had to pick them up slowly one by one, many of them are very scarce and I have in my collection the only item of several things one would think were resting in dealers' stock books.

But, I still was optimistic. Then came the Denver Convention. Mr. Mertz, no doubt, would have plenty of these older issues to show me. But I was taken back again, Mr. Mertz would gladly buy any of these items in any quantity at almost any price, but there were none to be had. The collections exhibited at the convention, and Mr. Kringel's and Judge Doughty's were fine collections, but they showed plenty of room for early issues.

Then came a trip to Mr. H. S. Dickey; now I would find my long sought oasis down in Kansas sands. Oh, what a surprise! Mr. Dickey has a wonderful accumulation of precancels.

One of the best that exists, but the numbers of early issues are surprisingly few. "You will be surprised within the next few years to see the scramble for these things," Howard Starr said to me one night after he had sung some of his own songs to me,—"a few years ago I prophesied what would happen in old U. S. A., and it did happen. The desirable copies have advanced two and three hundred per cent in five years." Then he sang another song, and "You are going to see the same thing in the precancel field within the next two years; the value of these early issues is way too low. Copies of which there are not three to ten known copies are priced at 35c, think of it, 35c. It is an injustice to the collector who has one of these three items that is worth so little." Then another song, a lively one, and "But Mr. Bushnell must have the holding of these items, if there are any."

"Yes," I said, "and I am going to see him very soon." I was still satisfied there was an abundance of these 1898 and 1902's some place. A stop in Kansas City, meeting Allen Sears and James Goldsmith, the former secretary of the I. P. C., brought forth no supplies of older issues. Goldsmith put it well by saying, "They are hard ones."

September 15, on a trip thru Chicago, the same problem was discussed by Dr. C. W. Hennan, formerly a very enthusiastic precancel dealer, but now a busy physician. "Doc" reiterated what other dealers and collectors had told me regarding the few 1898 and 1903 and perforate 12 issues in existence. "Nobody saved them at the right time it seems, I never was able to get any of these items in quantity of any appreciable sort." An inspection of one of the largest collections of precancels in the northwest, Mr. Fred S. Raff's of that city, brought no numbers of these scarce items to light, altho Mr. Raff has a wonderful collection of early Chicago dates in perfect condition. Apart from a very choice holding of Lockport, Indiana, 1898 issues, there was no display of early precancels in this lot.

Then a few days later, we entered the close of Mr. B. Gordon Bushnell. His stock was very well arranged on a card index system; there was plenty of perforated eleven and perforated ten items. But never in my life have I suffered such a jolt as when I was told by him he had no more of the older issues than were on the cards and in his collection. His collection, it is true, did contain some choice items, many of which are the only ones known to exist, but there was no holding of any appreciable sort of the early items.

Here, was the truth of the matter. Wilson, Dickey, Mertz, Hennan, Raff, and others of us had supposed that the precancel "father" had the holding of these items, and that some day they would come on the market. We were wrong. Mr. Bushnell told me that at the beginning, and it is true.

Most of the early precancels of today are already in the hands of collectors. This is a stable state of affairs, but the value of these items is a great deal more than the collectors who hold them today realize.

Mr. Bushnell tells me that there is to be an appreciable increase in the price of the early issues. He said he is afraid to place the true value on some of the items because he knows that collectors will howl. But I submit to you collectors that you are, by howling at such procedure, biting the nose off of your own face. You, yourselves, have the holding of these items in your collections. Their increase in value is your increase in value.

You ask for proof? I declare that the inspection of the primary holdings of precancels in the last few months has caused me to change my mind more radically on this point than anything ever has before. I shall welcome further information from any dealer or collector. A very wise plan is an invoice of the early 1898 and 1902 issues by each collector and dealer, finding out as near as possible, the exact numbers of these items in existence. From this invoice we may be able to tell more scientifically just what the value of these gems is.

THE NEW POOLE U. S. ALBUM.

Bertram W. H. Poole, who has proven himself to be an expert writer as well as a distinguished collector, has now turned his attention to new fields and in his capacity as a dealer he has produced "The Poole United States Album," edited and arranged by Mr. Poole, under a copyright. The book is convenient in size and shape and while it has printed pages for the standard, including regular postage, special delivery, postage due, official and postal savings stamps, there are numerous blank pages for blocks and varieties for insertion where needed. The book is on the loose leaf principle, has been fully advertised in the WEEKLY, and we have no hesitation in giving it a warm endorsement. Price $2.50, postage extra.

EARLY CHICAGO POST HISTORY.

In 1846 Hart L. Stewart succeeded Wm. Stewart as postmaster.

"The cheap postage system inaugurated late in 1847 was a great boon and advantage to business men," says the Democrat. However, the postal system left something to be desired in speed for the Democrat by a personal messenger scooped the other Chicago papers by first publishing the President's message. This was in December, 1847, and the Democrat ran a fast express from Mattville, Michigan, 130 miles, by Gray and Butler's fast nags, in nine hours; thirty-six hours ahead of the mails.

In 1848 a new mail route from Lyons, via Summit, Flag Creek, Long John, Plainfield, Plattville, thence on to Ottawa was established.

The Illinois-Michigan Canal first projected in 1832 was formally opened on April 16, 1848.

Although by 1833 over 1,000 miles of railroad had been projected centering in Chicago, and although the Chicago and Galena Union Railroad Co. had been incorporated on Jan. 16, 1836 and surveyed in 1837, it was not until Oct. 10, 1848, that a locomotive was seen in Chicago. This one named the "Pioneer" was built by Baldwin for the Galena railroad and shipped here on the steamship "Buffalo." On Oct. 25, 1848, a trial run was made, five miles of the road being completed. The road was soon extended west to the Desplaimes River.

In 1848 mail was brought across the lake from New Buffalo in summer, but in winter it was still brought by stage around the lake from Kalamazoo.

1848 is notable, also, in that during this year the first telegram was received in Chicago.

Prior to May, 1849, all mail for the northwest came to Chicago and thence was sent to Milwaukee, Galena, Ottawa, etc., but after this time it was sent from the east directly to those cities.

In 1849 the Chicago and Galena railroad was in operation to Elgin.

At the beginning of 1850, there were 28 post-offices in Cook County, outside of Chicago, of which 17 were comparatively new.

Robert L. Wilson, of the Chicago Journal became postmaster in 1850, but was succeeded by Geo. W. Dole, in 1851.

It is interesting to note the use of stamps compared with money for payment of postage, at this time. A newspaper item early in 1852 reads: "On Feb. 9, Mr. Wait, a clerk in the post-office, mailed one evening the following letters: Unpaid, 3,642; paid and distributed 6,283; paid by stamps 280; paid in money 209; free 471, total 10,885.

On Feb. 9, the Michigan Southern train service had reached Michigan City, Indiana, and four hours only were required to bring in the mail by stage and on Feb. 18, the trains had reached "Ainsworth's," twelve and one-half miles from Chicago. On that date Butler and Lewis's team brought the mail to the city from "Ainsworth's" in forty minutes. Money was wagered that the team could not do it in that time and nearly 3,000 people turned out to witness the event.

This was the nags' last run, for on Feb. 20, the iron horses of the Michigan Southern and Northern Indiana Railroad (our Lake Shore) brought the first train into the heart of the city. This railroad was not fully completed at this time, the connection between Buffalo and Toledo being by steamship.

On May 21, 1852, the first train of the Michigan Central entered the city running from Grand Crossing on the tracks of the Illinois Central. Mail from New York to Chicago now came through in 41½ hours.

In June, 1852, postmaster Dole moved into a more commodious post-office.

In 1854 Isaac Cook became postmaster. In January of this year Chicago was receiving 14 daily mails and several weekly and semi-weekly mails, and an average of 30,000 letters and 45,000 newspapers passed through daily. About 5,000 letters were received and sent out daily by Chicagoans.

On Feb. 23, 1855, Mr. Cook opened a new post-office on the west side of Dearborn street, in the first brick building south of Randolph street. In a short time the government purchased ground at Dearborn and Monroe for a Custom House and post-office. Work was commenced late in 1857 and on Nov. 20, 1860, the building was occupied by William Price who had succeeded Isaac Cook as postmaster in February of 1858. In 1861, John L. Scripps became postmaster. In 1862, A. C. Stewart was put in charge of the first branch post-office located at the northwest corner of Randolph and Holsted streets.

In 1864 carrier distribution was inaugurated with 35 districts, and money-orders were first issued. The railway postal car was first tried out on the C. & N. W. and by Oct. 1, 1865, five railroads running west from Chicago were equipped with postal cars.

Thus in a space of only a little more than thirty years Chicago grew from a cluster of shanties and log-cabins with an occasional mail service to a full-fledged city with hourly mails and regular carrier service.

AUSTRIAN AIR MAIL.

By JOSEPH A. STEINMETZ.
Morris Bldg., Philadelphia, Pa.

In yours of December 16, there is a mention of Austrian Air Mail and a translation of the German words "Flug Ausgefallen" as (NOT sent by Air Post).

As a matter of fact you might correct this to read "Dropped Air Mail" or "Out Fallen in Flight"—as it is usual now to drop the mail in a parachute device from airplanes passing over a field receiving station.

Thus much time is saved and splendid rapid service given to many towns located between the longer distance Air Mail and Express Terminals.

If Mr. Fabian would send me such a cover, and confirm the above facts, I would be pleased.

POSTMARK IMPRESSIONS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28, 1922.

From reports received from time to time it is apparent that the department's philatelic stamp agency is serving to make the Postal Service popular with philatelists and others who follow the practice of collecting the various issues of postage stamped paper.

For the purpose of increasing this popularity the department desires to accommodate these patrons and other good citizens engaged in the practice of collecting impressions of postmarks, and to accomplish this end postmasters are requested to comply with applications for copies in all cases, when such applications are accompanied by return postage.

W. IRVING GLOVER,
Third Asst. Postmaster Gen'l.

1672-3-4-5.

The next discontinuance of subscriptions will concern all subscribers whose wrappers bear the numbers 1672 to 1675 inclusive. Just glance at your wrapper immediately in order to make sure that your subscription is paid up. You have ample time in which to renew and be saved the inconvenience of a discontinuance. Moreover, under our new system we are making no plans for furnishing back numbers and subscribers must not expect that we can supply back numbers when we have made every effort to notify them.

We are satisfied that the system we have inaugurated is the only one under which a newspaper can do business these days, and subscribers must understand that free copies of the WEEKLY will not be sent to those who are in arrears.

WHOLESALE APPROVAL DEPARTMENT

Having made a special study of the wholesale approval business covering a period of many years, we are able to offer the maximum in service and quality, combined with lowest possible prices. Common sense says that the wholesale dealer who invests thousands of dollars in stock for a comprehensive price-list, must make a large profit to cover interest charges, depreciation of merchandise and a hundred and one other costs. We believe in the "nimble penny" maxim and have saved our approval customers hundreds of dollars by our ability to supply stamps of finest quality at prices just a little lower than may have seemed necessary.

If you are an exchanger, dealer, or collector-dealer, or if you contemplate dealing in stamps in the near future, communicate with us immediately. Let us demonstrate the above facts to your satisfaction. Our stock is quite varied and we can supply not only the cheaper stamps and picture sets for juvenile trade, but also rare single stamps and sets, British Colonies, etc., etc., for those who prefer the better grades. It costs nothing to give this service a trial—there is no obligation on your part to make purchases; simply ask for a selection on approval and include two commercial references. We will do the rest—and do it well!

Unsolicited Testimonials

"About a month ago I wrote you regarding the establishment of a small stamp business, and explained my limitations as to an investment of capital. I wrote the same letter to another concern and their reply was very flowery; they had me pictured as a second Henry Ford in a short time. Your own reply was somewhat discouraging, but I have decided to take a shot at it anyway, so you will find a certified check for $25.00 enclosed, for which please send your "Marvel" stock. I appreciate your honesty in this matter and I might say right here that your frankness is the result of my sending you the order."—William L. Leighton, 2 West Smith St., Seattle, Wash.

"Some time ago I purchased your 1500 Portuguese Colonial collection for $67.50. I have a magnificent collection of from 25 to 30 thousand varieties, both 19th and 20th century, and was most happily surprised when the Portuguese collection of 1500 yielded exactly 1310 different varieties for my albums." —W. M. Eberth, Toledo, Ohio.

"I received the 10,000 variety (mounted) packet today and am certainly well pleased in every way. I expect to remount the stamps on approval sheets in a few days and will perhaps require another one very shortly. It seems to me that any live-wire dealer ought to make a good profit out of any of your larger variety collections."—Milo C. Reynolds, Burlington, Vt.

"I am not a 'dealer' in the strict sense of the word, but have been accumulating stamps constantly during the past twenty years, which I may place on the market at some time in the distant future. I am buying the stamps as an investment, and with this end in view, I have naturally made it a point to become well acquainted with market prices and conditions. My 'stock' is worth thousands of dollars. You are no doubt aware that the bulk of my purchases for some time past has been from your concern. I feel that you have always given me exceptionally low prices, and square treatment in every respect."—H. F. Bucknam, Arlington, Mass.

Anniversary Specials

We make the most of the advertising opportunity which this issue offers to present items of quality only, and incidentally those which are most popular.

Dealers must cater to every need—and as much as we relish handling old classics, we are bound to bow to popular demand as it presents itself. The majority of the philatelic world craves today for twentieth century, and we have weeded out values as they come which we believe worthy of note.

For our initial advertisement of the New Year, we offer:—

Announcement

We wish to announce to the trade the loss of our expert, Mr. Depuy, after three years of faithful service. Mr. Depuy leaves on an extended trip to the "Orient" early in February.

Our loss is, however, measured by our gain, and we are pleased to announce that Mr. Carl Wollner, who has been managing our European agency, has agreed to come to Boston and fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Depuy's departure. Mr. Wollner is now with us and we are preparing for the biggest winter season ever.

TO THE TRADE:—

The change in our personnel is of the utmost importance to collector and dealer. Mr. Wollner brings with him direct European buying sources, entirely unknown to the American market, which means a steady influx of choice approval consignments, and the assurance of doubling our activities in wholesale lots. Our immediate plans are not definitely settled, but we expect our offers to the public will be made through monthly lists. With this idea in view we wish to compile an unusually large mailing list—and will welcome a post card from all bona-fide dealers interested in receiving any lists, offers or sample selections.

We have on hand at the present time a superb lot of Bosnia (the country about complete), hundreds of choice European sets, and scores of miscellaneous lots. We solicit your wholesale requirements in Bosnia particularly, and for your further approval list a few items here.

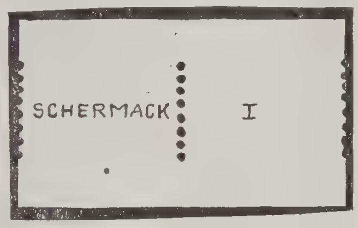
PRIVATELY ISSUED U. S. COIL.

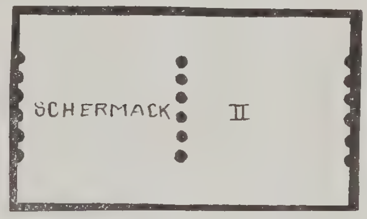
By PHILIP H. WARD, JR.

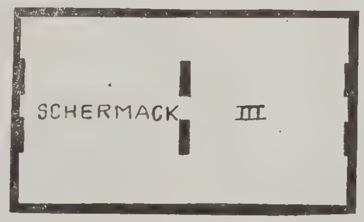
An article on the coil stamps of the United States would hardly be complete without mention of the privately issued varieties which were made by the different manufacturers of the vending and affixing machines for use in their product. The older ones are the forerunners of the official coils, and while they were made from the imperforate sheets or imperforate coils, the means of separating was applied after they had left the Post Office and consequently by no stretch of the imagination can they be classed as official. Practically each make of machine was arranged to feed a coil with a particular type of separation and as the department refused to make up coils with each variety of perforation, it was necessary for the manufacturer to coil his own stamps. Some found it more advantageous to buy the imperforate sheets of four hundred, apply their special means of separation and then coil them, mostly by hand. Others used the official imperforate coil. Gradually they began to redesign their machines so that they could use the regular coil sold by the post office, with the result that today there is only one private coil variety that is being used in any quantity.

When the vending and the affixing machines were first placed upon the market in this country, the manufacturers realized that much would have to be done to the machines before they could be sold in quantities and become profitable commercially. As a result they worked very closely with the department and were given every encouragement, with the result that at this time a larger number of coils than ever are being distributed.

The best known manufacturer of these privately perforated and coiled varieties is the firm that started in Detroit as the Detroit Mailing Machine Company. Later this name was changed to the Schermack Mailing Machine Company and more recently to the Mailometer Company, now located in Chicago. Their first experiments in coiling stamps for their machine consisted of sidewise coils with eight small holes perforated vertically between the stamps. These holes took up about one-third of the space with an imperforated space equally as large above and below. This variety was short-lived, as it did not prove satisfactory. The next variety was very similar, having six holes somewhat larger with not quite so much blank space above and below the perforations. Both of these types were in use the later part of 1907, some of the firms using them being Messrs. D. M. Ferry & Co., Michigan State Telephone Company, Murphy Chair Company, Park, Davis & Company, and Rogers & Van Leyen Company.







The third type of Schermack separation consisted of two hyphen holes 1 mm. wide and 4½ mm. high spaced nearly 2 mm. apart. The tool for this hyphen-hole perforation was made during January, 1908, and the stamps first made their appearance the latter part of that month.

H. F. COLMAN 2ND NATIONAL BANK BLDG., WASHINGTON, D. C.

This type of perforation has been in use since January, 1908, and is being used today.

Stamps of this variety are coiled by taking one hundred and fifty imperforated sheets of four hundred subjects, attaching them by hand sidewise and then running them through a machine which perforates and strips the stamps and then rolls them into coils of 3000. These are sold to the users of the machines at 50c each over their face value. A letter from Mr. Schermack on the subject is quite interesting.

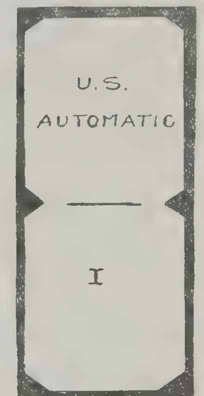
"The hyphen-hole perforation that we now use is the final result of experimenting extending over a period of several years, trying to make a mailing machine handle the regular governmental perforations. We tried them in every possible form, singly, in strips, in sheets and in ribbon form, all with the same result, that the ordinary perforation made the stamp too weak to handle with any degree of safety, or rather certainty, in a machine. A perforation of some kind has been found absolutely essential in order to insure accuracy in feeding. You no doubt know that the extreme variation in the size of a sheet of 400 stamps as they are printed is as much as 4/16 of an inch. This on a length of 20 stamps would of course make 1/64 of an inch in each stamp. Thus you can readily see how impossible it would be to feed an unperforated strip with any degree of accuracy. For after feeding but a few stamps, they would cut into the design, no matter how positive a mechanical feed was used. So that while a perforation of some kind was needed, the stamp must still be strong enough to handle. This led us to adopt in the first place a system of round-hole perforations in the center of the strip."

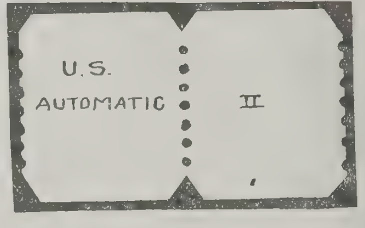
"The first ones used were of the regulation size, same as the Government perforation, consisting, however, of only six or seven holes in the middle between the stamps, leaving an unperforated margin above and below to strengthen the strip. Upon finding that the openings were too small for practical use, six larger size holes were adopted."

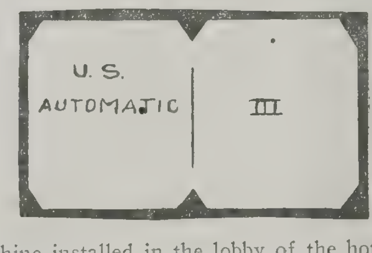
"While this style answered the purpose very well, the round holes did not permit easy entrance of the small hardened steel fingers used in feeding. This suggested the use of slots and the so-called hyphen-hole perforation was adopted. This we find to be thoroughly practicable and in my opinion is the beginning of the universal adoption for use in stamps to be used in mechanical devices."

It was this hyphen-hole type of perforation that was applied to the well known 4c imperforate of 1902. Had it not been for a Detroit collector obtaining a small lot of this variety at the time, it is doubtful if the stamp would be known today. About thirty-one copies in all have been saved to philately. The stamp was used by two Detroit firms in sending out little booklets.

A further type of separation was applied by the U. S. Automatic Vending Machine Company of New York, which consists of a sort of roulette with corners notched. I recall their early use in 1908 at the New Willard Hotel in Washington and purchased them from a machine installed in the lobby of the hotel. I am also informed that the Hotel Plaza in New York used them at the time. These stamps were issued in both sidewise and endwise coils. The same company issued a further variety in sidewise coils wherein the space between the notched portions was perforated.







During the Alaska-Yukon and Hudson-Fulton celebration this enterprising company placed on the market a machine that fed little pockets containing two 2c and one 1c stamp that could be obtaine by dropping a nickel in the slot. Thes pockets were in continuous sidewise coil and were shaped somewhat like th notched stamps. I have seen two typ of these varieties, one containing tw imperforate 2c Alaska-Yukon and one 1 green imperforate Franklin with a number in red on the back of the pocke while the second variety was simila having, however, two imperforated 2 Hudson-Fulton stamps in the pocket i addition to the 1c green, and on the bac of the pocket not only a number in re but the following: "U.S.Automati Vending Co., Pioneer Stamp Pocket, Madison Square, New York City," als "U.S. Automatic Stamp and Ticket Sel ing Machines—No. 1 Madison Ave."

BRAZIL

Through a misunderstanding we recently acquired an old Lisbon stock of Brazilian stamps; tens of thousands of the issues of 1866 to 1899. Most of these are just as they were torn from the original covers. All sorts of minor varieties, many cataloging at several dollars each. There are cancellations of every shape and color, many varieties of perforation, a wide range of paper varieties, and a wonderful lot of shades. Condition varies from superb to terrible, but the average is very good. All told, there are more than 70 varieties as catalogued by Scott's.

BARGAINS FOR COLLECTORS OR DEALERS

To dispose of them quickly we have made up the following packets. Sold only on our usual basis of money back if asked for.

Packet No. 2—50 varieties, 1866 to 1899	60c

To those who want quantities of these stamps to sort for cancellations, perforation, shade, or paper varieties, we are prepared to quote very low special prices on lots of 50 or more of any one stamp, any single issue between 1866 and 1894, or on all the issues. A remarkable lot for medium priced approvals.

BARBUDA, NEW DESIGN, 1923.

By HARRY E. HUBER.

It is reported semi-officially from the Leewards that Barbuda is to have postage stamps in a special design, and in all probability during 1923, an entire new series will take the place of the overprinted Leeward Islands stamps issued July 13, 1922. From the sale of these stamps approximately £2500 has been derived, but unfortunately, instead of tending to reduce the debt, it falls short of meeting the extraordinary expenditures occasioned by the storm of last September. At one time Barbuda's finances were in much better condition than today. In 1914, there was a surplus over liabilities of £2178.10.5½; in 1915 it rose to £2473.18.8½; in 1916 fell to £1189.11.5½, and at the present time the deficit amounts to almost £5000.

On September 15, 1922, Barbuda was struck by the worst hurricane within the memory of the oldest inhabitants, nor is there record of anything so severe. As there is no telegraphic communication with the outer world, the island received none of the cable warnings sent out by the U. S. Weather Bureau. In the storm of the '70's, only one edge of the island was touched, but the storm's actual center passed over it this time. Out of 270 houses 57 were knocked flat. Great trees were uprooted, and all the boats in the lagoon on the west side (separated from the sea by a narrow spit of land) were carried from 300 to 400 yards inland, and some of them were blown bodily over a wall 6 feet high. Fortunately there was no loss of life..

The majority of overprinted stamps received at Barbuda were in sheets of 120 (2 panes of 60) from plate 10, with controls in the lower margin only, but the 2½d and 3d also exist in post-office sheets of 60. The 2½d ultramarine is known with the script watermark inverted.

Mails are received and dispatched via Antigua (of which Barbuda is a dependency), 25 miles to the south, by small sailing vessels. In the Post master for Antigua's report for 1917-18, there is an item of expense "For subsidy to mail service to Barbuda, £16."

About September, 1922, a new cancelling stamp, of steel, was brought into use. Like the one which it replaced (lettered "Official Paid, Barbuda," with date in the center in 3 lines, * - JY 24 - 22, and applied in violet), it is a single lined circle measuring 25 mm. in diameter. It is inscribed "Barbuda" at the top, which is separated from "B. W. I." at the bottom, by a dot on either side. The date is in the center in 2 lines, OC 16 - 22. Black ink is used.

The island with its 62 square miles, although a little more than half as large as Antigua (108 square miles), by the census of 1911 had only a population of 871 (351 males and 520 females), while Antigua had 31394 (13634 males and 17760 females). The females in both islands predominate. The men of Barbuda are well-built, the majority of them being over 6 ft. in height, and usually leave the island in search of work in Antigua and elsewhere. Many found employment in the Canal Zone while the canal was building. They make good sailors, fishermen and hunters, but are no good as mechanics.

Until almost the end of the 19th century the island remained in the Codrington family, to which it had been granted in 1680, and was used by them as a shooting estate, and also as a stock farm from which their estates in Antigua were supplied with animals. An old-time obligation was kept up, that of presenting a fat sheep to the Governor whenever he visited the island. This might be commuted to a goodly buck, a green turtle, or anything that might satisfy the visiting official. This as a mere token of allegiance.

The island has been described as a "perfect sportsman's paradise", being well stocked with fallow deer, originally introduced by the Codrington's. Guinea fowl, pigeon, doves, and wild duck all abound. Wild pig are plentiful in the swamps, and excellent fishing obtainable

THE POSTAGE STAMPS OF BELGIUM.

By BERTRAM W. H. POOLE.

The Provisional of 1921.

The special series of stamps issued to commemorate the Seventh Olympiad, held in Antwerp during August and September, 1921, ceased to be valid for postage after December 31st of that year. There were a large number of remainders and to use these up it was decided to convert them into ordinary postage stamps, by means of the inevitable surcharge. They were converted into 20c stamps, all three denominations being surcharged in the same manner, viz.:—the value "20c" above, an "X" was shown at each side and a thick bar was printed across the bottom obliterating the inscription referring to the original special use of the labels. The stamps were all overprinted in sheets of one hundred, the same type being used for all three values. The 5c and 15c values were overprinted in red while the 10c denomination was surcharged in black. One sheet of the 15c value had the surcharge inverted.

In November of the same year another provisional stamp made its appearance. Owing to a change in the postal rates, little use was found for the 65c Termonde stamps issued in August, 1920. There was, however, a limited demand for a 1fr 20c denomination in payment of combined postage and registration and to obviate issuing a special stamp of this value and at the same time to use up the superfluous 65c denomination the postal authorities resorted to an ingenious scheme, without precedent in postal history so far as we recollect. Each alternate vertical row of the sheets of the unwanted 65c was overprinted "55c" These figures were placed twice on the stamp, to the left and right of the tower respectively, while the original value, 65c, shown in each of the corners was obliterated by a series of five parallel lines. The surcharged sheets, therefore, showed a series of 55c and 65c stamps side by side, a pair giving the desired rate of 1fr 20c. When separated they could be used for their respective values.

The Engraved Issue of 1921-22.

In September, 1921, a new 50 centimes stamp was issued in a very attractive type. In a central circle is an excellent profile portrait of King Albert with head to left, on a ground of heavy horizontal lines. Above, is "BELGIQUE" in shaded capitals on a scroll with ribbon ends, while in the centre below is "BELGIE" in similar letters on an uncolored oblong label. In the lower corners are squares of solid color, on which the value is shown in uncolored figures and letter—"50" at left and "C" at right. Extending from below the "BELGIE" label to the sides of the frame are wreaths of laurel (left) and oak (right) leaves, while the rest of the background is filled with horizontal lines. Below the lower frame the name of the engraver—G. MONTENEZ—is shown in small capitals.

At first these stamps were printed in Malines in sheets of 25—five horizontal rows of five stamps each, but later they were produced in Holland, by Messrs. Enschedé & Sons, in sheets of 100 in ten rows of ten. The Holland printings are in a paler shade of blue than the original Belgian impressions, and were first placed on sale on October 6th, 1921.

In February, 1922, a one franc stamp in the same design made its appearanc this being printed in a handsome sha of dark brown. Apparently this denom nation was only printed in Holland f we have only seen it in the sheets 100 stamps.

In September, 1922, it was report that three new denominations in th handsome Montenez type were being r cess printed at the Enschedé atelier Haarlem, viz., 75c rose red, 2 fran green, and 10 francs mauve, but at t time of writing neither of these has be issued.

The Typographed Stamps of 1922.

In October, 1921, the Postal Admini tration sent a circular to all the Belgi post-offices to the effect that it w desirable to use up the existing suppli of 10c, 15c, 35c, 40c and 65c stamps, these were no longer regular post units. The circular recommended the sale when other denominations we asked for and suggested that when 20 25c, 50c and 1fr stamps were demande that 10c plus 10c, 10c plus 15c, 35c pl 15c, or 40c plus 10c, and 65c plus 3 should be offered in order to conser supplies of the present units as much possible.

This obviously meant the issue of ne stamps but why the values, other tha the 65c, were classed as "no long regular postal units" is difficult to unde stand, as in an Official Decree, dat August 22nd, 1922, the impending iss of new stamps was announced and th values were given as 1, 2, 3, 5, 10, 15, 2 30, 35, and 40 centimes.

It was stated that the new stam would be surface printed and it w presumed that they would be at least presentable as the typographed stam of 1915 and fitting companions to th handsome 50c and 1fr values already use. But, alas, when the first of th new stamps appeared they were mo disappointing and met with univers disapproval.

NEW 1c, 2c, 4c, 9c AND 10c POSTAGE STAMPS, SERIES OF 1922-23.

Postmasters and other officers and employees of the Postal Service are notified that the department is prepared to issue new 1-cent, 2-cent, 4-cent, 9-cent, and 10-cent postage stamps. These stamps are of the new series which will replace the present issue of ordinary stamps known as the series of "1912."

A description follows:

The stamps are the same shape and size, 75/100 by 87/100 inch, as the present series.

The 1-cent stamp bears the portrait of Franklin, within an oval, and is partly inclosed in a panel which is supported on either side by acanthus scrolls. Above the portrait in a curved line appear the words "United States Postage" in white roman letters. On a ribbon below the oval is the name "Franklin" and under this, at the bottom of the stamp, appears the word "Cent." In both lower corners within ovals, with dark backgrounds, is the white numeral "1." The entire stamp is enclosed within a cross-line border, with small triangular ornaments in both upper corners; color, green.

The 2-cent stamp bears the portrait of Washington, with the name "Washington" on the ribbon below the portrait. The surrounding design is the same as the 1-cent stamp, with the necessary change of numerals representing the denomination, and with the word "Cents" instead of "Cent"; color, red.

The 4-cent stamp bears the portrait of Martha Washington, with the name "Martha Washington" on the ribbon below the portrait. The surrounding design is the same as the 2-cent stamp with the necessary change of numerals representing the denomination; color, brown.

The 9-cent stamp bears the portrait of Jefferson, with the name "Jefferson" on the ribbon below the portrait. The surrounding design is the same as the 2-cent stamp with the necessary change of figures representing the denomination; color, pink.

The 10-cent stamp bears the portrait of Monroe, with the name "Monroe" on the ribbon below the portrait. The surrounding design is the same as the 2-cent stamp with the necessary change of numerals representing the denomination; color, yellow.

The first issue of the new 1-cent stamp will be placed on sale at Philadelphia, Pa., on Franklin's birthday, January 17, 1923, and will also be placed on sale the same date at the philatelic stamp agency, Division of Stamps, Post Office Department, for the benefit of stamp collectors and dealers.

The first issue of the new 2-cent, 4-cent, 9-cent, and 10-cent stamps will be placed on sale at the post-office at Washington, D. C., January 15, 1923. They will also be placed on sale the same date at the Philatelic stamp agency, Division of Stamps, Post Office Department, for the benefit of stamp collectors and dealers.

The new 1-cent, 2-cent, 4-cent, 9-cent, and 10-cent stamps will not be issued to postmasters until the present supply of the current issue of these denominations is exhausted.

W. IRVING GLOVER,
Third Assistant Postmaster General.

British Colonies!

Unsolicited from a DEALER.

"Am in receipt of the British Colonial packet ordered under date of Jan. 5, 1923. I thank you for your prompt attention to this order and can assure you that the collection comes up to my highest expectations." H. C. Argenbright, "Old Dominion Approvals", Staunton, Va.

We offer this month an especially fine collection of 1,500 BRITISH COLONIES ONLY, of such good quality that it ought to interest any progressive dealer, collector or exchanger. There are certain outstanding Points of Quality which put this collection in a class of its own:

(1) British Colonies only—absolutely no Great Britain.
(2) Every stamp distinctly different: no watermark, perforation, or other minor varieties. With the thousands of changed watermarks now appearing, this point alone means an increased value of from 25% to 40% in the collection as a whole.
(3) Picked copies only: to our knowledge there is not a damaged specimen in the entire collection.
(4) About 20% of the stamps are unused, mint; small, out-of-the-way countries such as Turks Islands, Virgin Islands, Antigua, Zanzibar, Maldives, Cyprus, Dominica, Lagos, Montserrat, Sarawak, Togo, Somaliland, Cook Islds., Papua, etc., are extraordinarily well represented.
(5) The collection is neatly hinged in a large blank approval book and can be easily classified and remounted into the collector's album, or the dealer's approval sheets.

Only a very few of these super-collections have been assembled, so an early order is advisable!

Ten Thousand Varieties

Here is a collection "de luxe" and one that we can recommend to any collector, as it not only contains a large number of medium-priced stamps of the slippery, hard-to-get type, but also a lot of nice varieties from British, French and Portuguese Colonies, Europe, etc., cataloguing up to several dollars each. Practically all countries of the world are represented, and there are scores of attractive picture stamps, new issues, and other novelties. The collection is also desirable for any dealer with counter trade, as it is neatly mounted in ten ruled approval books, and needs only to be priced and put on sale. Catalogue value will be at least $750.00 and probably much more. Never before have we been able to offer such out-and-out value in a medium-priced collection—just think of getting 10,000 all different stamps at just about 1½ cents each! Send in your order immediately on our Money-back guarantee—you will never regret it!

EDITORIAL.

Elsewhere we print the third assistant postmaster general's description of the latest stamps of the new series to be placed on sale. The order is of interest and direct allusion is made to "stamp collectors and dealers" in connection with the paragraph relating to the sale of the one cent stamp at Philadelphia and at the philatelic agency on Franklin's birthday, January 17th, 1923. As we have had occasion to say before, the establishing of the stamp agency at the nation's capital is one of the outstanding signs of progress of philately in the last decade.

From a traveling correspondent in Europe the information comes that the "philatelic interests in the good old U. S." have about completed their clean sweep of the United States stamps of the earlier issues on the continent. At many of the dealers he visits, he is told that enterprising collectors and dealers have forestalled him by ordering almost everything in the line of such stamps and that as a consequence, pickings are poor. We have noticed that Europe has been supplying us with a good many of our early stamps latterly but the majority of the importations are of commercial grade. They may have some influence in temporarily stopping the mounting tendency of U. S. prices but one hesitates to predict what will happen after any lull of the kind.

A reader who is always on the watch for stray bits of stamp lore in old papers and magazines that although inconsequential in themselves should be incorporated into philatelic records, sends an old clipping, undated, in which the "cement" on postage stamps is mentioned. This is interesting and evidently is a heritage from the earliest days of stamps as the marginal inscriptions on the penny black of Great Britain, 1840, read: "Price 1d. per Label. 1/-per row of 12; £1, ,-, ,- Per Sheet. Place the Labels ABOVE the Address and towards the RIGHT HAND SIDE of the Letter. In Wetting the Back be careful not to remove the Cement." The tendency latterly has not been to call an adhesive substance, "as a preparation of glue," cement; and for philatelic purposes, at least, "gum" has wholly supplanted the word.

The following notice has been sent out by the Philatelic Stamp Agency at Washington under date of January 8th, 1923: "The new 2c Washington, 4c Martha Washington, 9c Jefferson and 10c Monroe stamps will be available for sale at the Philatelic Stamp Agency on and after January 15th. The new 1c Franklin stamp will be available for sale on and after January 17th. As the printing of these stamps is limited, they will not be issued to all post-offices until the present supplies of the old stamps are exhausted. I desire to seek your co-operation in ordering these stamps by not remitting cash by ordinary mail. Your attention is also invited to the fact that when a new issue of stamps of this kind is offered for sale the Agency is deluged with requests, and as orders are filled in turn, you should allow a week in which to receive your stamps. Special effort will be made, however, to fill all orders received before January 15th in advance, in order that they can be mailed out on the first day of issue. Return postage and registration should accompany all orders. The denominations of the new issue now available are 1, 2, 4, 5, 6, 9, 10, 11, 15, 25 and 50 cent ordinary and 10 cent special delivery stamps. Patrons of the Agency will be advised further when additional stamps of the new series are available. H. A. Mount, Stamp Agent."

We wish to congratulate Mr. Gardner Teall whose article, Poets and Postage Stamps, illustrated with over thirty appropriate stamp cuts was a feature occupying a whole page in the New York Times Book Review of January 14th, 1923. We have been indebted previously to the facile pen of Mr. Teall for readable contributions on stamp themes and we are sure that managing editors must recognize the appeal to readers of almost all classes by an intelligent exposition of the kind under notice. We have had advices that a number of philatelic articles are booked for publications in other newspapers and periodicals of the first rank. Those who have expressed a fear that the volume of publicity of philatelic kind in the general press is diminishing may be assured that their misgivings are unfounded and we know that a sense of self interest must crystallize in time to organize directed philatelic effort to back up this great mass of printed material that comes as a donation, in effect, in-so-far as philatelic co-operation in a systematized way is concerned.

Mr. Theodore Siddall, publisher of Stamp Topics, of Shanghai, China, who at last accounts was incapacitated in a hospital, now writes us a letter "with one finger" that we are pleased to have as it indicates that he is beginning to be himself again. He transmits the following news: "The British post-office closed November 30th, but shortly before closing put on sale some values now current with the new script watermark They seemed popular as some values were completely sold out. Then the French post-office announced that it would not close as it was in a French concession and that instead of closing it would put out a new set of stamps on December 1st. A few days before they had sprung a pair of new ones, a 50 c., in blue, of a design adapted from the French 50 c., with 'Chine' at the bottom, and surcharged 20 cents; and the $2 on 5 francs, to complete the set of 1911, with large surcharge. The new set made its appearance in due time: 1 cent surcharged on 5 c., orange; 2 cents on 10 c., green; 3 cents on 25 c., dark lilac; 6 cents on 30 c., red orange; 10 c., on 50 c., blue (the one mentioned above as surcharged 20 cents); 20 cents on our old friend, the 1 fr.; and 40 cents on a 2 fr. of the Chinese adaptation and the colors of the new 2 fr., France; and a $1 stamp which I have not seen. Now they have changed their minds about closing and will close: result, great crush of stamp buyers; and some values are completely closed out. There is nothing new from the U. S. office; and the Japanese office also announces its intention of closing but whether they will have something nice for late comers, I do not know. The 6 and 8 sen of the 1920 issue are going to be hard to find or I am a poor guesser. It would be a fine thing if a chap could walk about where these things were being sold but instead I am stuck in my room which I have not left since quitting the hospital, seven weeks back." This example of stamp-issuing at the eleventh hour is not one that will commend itself to collectors who in years gone by would have loudly protested against this misuse of authority but latterly philatelists are taking these instances philosophically, being content to exercise their own idea as to the collectibility of such issues. Few governments are not now influenced by the financial possibilities of their stamp issues; and collectors recognize that fact.

MITCHELL (SO. DAK.) SOCIETY.

On June 9th, 1922, two local stamp collectors met at Eagers Cafeteria and organized what is now known as the Mitchell Philatelic Society. This society has just completed a very successful year through the efforts of its organizers, ending the year with twenty, a record of remarkable growth for an organization of this kind in a city of eight thousand.

December 29th, the election of officers took up the whole program. The following officers were elected for the new year:—Pres., A. E. Jepp; Vice-Pres., C. F. Strong; Sec-Treas., H. M. Miller; Sales Supt., Z. H. Eager. Our Society is open for membership to anyone living in South Dakota. We meet every other Friday evening at Eagers Cafeteria.

The largest individual collector is Mr. Z. H. Eager who has a general collection of over fifteen thousand varieties. The largest specialized collection belongs to Mr. A. E. Jepp, whose specialty is United States, Hawaii and Mexico.

THE HOME OF THE POSTAGE STAMP, 510 W. 113TH ST., NEW YORK CITY

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—We have been shown by S. Hyman a cover bearing the commemorative 10 rubles stamp of Russia, mentioned in the Jan. 6 issue. Mr. Hyman says that on the latest quotations 150,000 soviet rubles equal 50c U. S. currency.

—E. P. U.—We are unable to furnish any more copies of the binder advertised last year. Due notice will be given if a further supply be obtained.

—We have received from Charles G. Wilson a cover posted at Philadelphia Jan. 17, with a pair of the new 1c Franklin. The courtesy is greatly appreciated.

—Roland W. Turk, Assembly Rooms, South Benfleet, England, is desirous of securing a position with an American stamp firm as under manager or secretary. He is thirty-two years of age and has had twenty years' experience as a collector, fifteen years as a dealer, and two years as a valuer expert. He has also had a number of years experience in journalism from advertising and publicity standpoints. Mr. Turk can furnish first class references and would be glad to hear from any American dealer who would like to secure his services.

—A new advertising cancellation comes from Hartford, Conn. It reads:—"Trinity College Centennial 1823-1923."

—S. G. Powell of Seattle wishes us to call the attention of Eastern dealers to the fact that it takes at least twelve days for an answer to be received to a letter addressed to the Pacific Coast. Mr. Powell is of the impression that certain dealers are altogether too impatient and insistent in their demands for promptness in replying.

—The Midwest Stamp Co. sends us a clipping entitled "Stamps Used As Money." It was written by Lowell J. Ragatz and published in "Current History." It is so interesting that we shall reproduce it in the WEEKLY in the near future.

—A broadcasting talk on Stamps by a local member of the A. P. S. took place Friday, Jan. 19, from WLAG, Minneapolis. The service was given under the management of the Burt McCann Co. Another radio talk on stamps is listed for an early date.

—The St. Louis Stamp Collectors' Society will hold its annual banquet Jan. 30. We expect to receive an account of this meeting for the benefit of our readers.

—Several of our subscribers have favored us with historical data concerning William Brown, whose portrait is on the 20 pesos of Argentine 1891. We published last week a short article and wish to acknowledge additional matter from Rev. E. Stollenwerk and E. J. Newcomer. Mr. Newcomer mentions Appleton's American Biography, Vol. 1, page 412, for a comprehensive story.

—The Waterbury, (Ct.) Stamp Club elected the following officers at its annual meeting: President, Lamont A. Hall; Vice-President, Harry C. Upson; Secretary, Robert E. Platt; Treasurer, Herbert L. Gardner. Louis Alexander was elected to the governing board to serve with the officers ex-officio. The Club meets every other Monday night in the Library of the Mattatuck Historical Society.

—W. F. Slusser, secretary of the A. S. D. A., has removed to Fort Hancock, N. J.

—A mass of printed matter has been received from the Midland Stamp Co., Toronto, Can., in which are six or seven lists, but one very pretentious one, for the season of 1923. In the sixteen pages of this list many single stamps are quoted per ten and hundred, and there is also a fine line of variety and assorted packets, together with 5c and 10c sets. Any dealer should secure this pricelist. It can be obtained upon application.

—A subscriber who does not wish his name used writes the WEEKLY about publicity. He regards it as a poor policy to boost philately, and believes that the hobby will be cheapened "if the fad is to be pursued by anybody and everybody who has the price. If all my neighbors are going to talk stamps and collect stamps, and if every wealthy collector is going to buy them as J. P. Morgan purchased paintings, philately will be commercialized and ruined and there will be no pleasure in it."

—We have received from S. V. Wallace, Oakland, Cal., a letter urging the addition of a 13c stamp to the new series now being issued, and he sets forth various reasons for the step proposed. We suggest that it would be a good plan for those of our readers who are interested in this matter to communicate directly with the office of the Third Assistant Postmaster General at Washington, and satisfactory results might follow.

—We have received a clipping from the Seattle Times of Jan. 8 from Cecil F. Blogg, which calls attention to the fact that Japan has forbidden the mailing of letters on U. S. ships there. The Japan postal rates are higher and the service is slow, but the Japanese government is insistent that the sale of stamps and the acceptance of mail on U. S. ships within Japanese ports violates the international postal agreement. Only mail which has been prepaid by Japanese stamps at Japanese rates, will be permitted to leave the country. Under the local Japanese rates a letter abroad requires a 20 yen stamp, or the equivalent of 10c gold.

—A novelty in the way of second-class permits is submitted by J. B. Bridgeford of Sebastopol, Cal. It consists of a piece of timber panel mailed in the form of a post card. On the face is found the inscription in rectangular frame "1c Paid. Seattle, Wash., Permit No. 361." This permit number is being used by an Oakland, Cal., concern in sending out samples from their northern mills in or near Seattle. It is a unique method of advertising their veneered panels.

—W. E. Hughes, 19 Harvey Rd., London, England, sends us information that forgeries exist of Batoum strips of the tree type. These are the stamps Nos. 1 to 6 in the leading catalog, and while we do not take the space to give all the details of the counterfeits, we hold Mr. Hughes' information in this office and shall be glad to send the same to any specialist in Batoum stamps who will cover the necessary postage.

—The Bridgeport Philatelic Club at its annual meeting on January 4, elected the following officers for the year 1923: President, Mr. Wm. Rometsh; Vice-President, Mr. R. Foster; Treasurer, Mr. J. Shallenberger; Secretary, Mr. A. Munch; Sales and Auction Manager, Mr. R. Foster. Every first and third Thursday of the month the club holds a meeting at room 311 Meig's Bldg., corner Main and Fairfield Avenues.

—From Lester C. Lee and H. E. Robertson we have received specimens of a new advertising cancellation from Rochester, N. Y., issued in connection with a hospital drive now underway in that city. It reads as follows:—"Help Give Health."

—Bright & Son sends us a list of the shades found in the new Gambia set. The set consists of 19 values and the Bright firm has found no fewer than 38 shades. Three different combinations of shades are found in the 7½d and three also in the 1sh value. Nearly all the other values have two varieties. This surely is a ripe field for the specialist.

—In the New York Times book review for Jan. 14, appeared an illustrated full page article by Gardner Teall on "Poets and Postage Stamps." It is a high class article and is a fitting representative of the literary work that Mr. Teall is capable of. Early copies are at hand from A. S. Davenport, Geo. H. Hakes and E. W. Goldthorpe.

—The Washington State Philatelic Society has just elected its officers for the year 1923. The society which had been rather at a standstill, has planned a very fine programme for the current year:—auctions, lectures, exhibitions, etc. Anyone wishing to know more about it may communicate with its Secretary, Mr. Lucien Perrot, Head of Foreign Languages at the Cornish School, Seattle, Wash.

Sales Exceed $60,000.00

That is what I would like to be able to say after closing the year 1923. I can do it with your help. You have the stamps—I have the money and clients. How can we get together is the point?

If you have fine United States I offer most any inducement to have you let them pass through my hands. Will buy for cash outright, will give excellent exchange or will sell on commission. Remember I not only want large properties but small ones as well, if attractive. Only postal adhesives at present—no envelopes or revenues. Especially desire mint early singles, pairs, strips and blocks, blocks of the higher values of the later issues; fine covers, rare earlies in fine used condition and the like. If you have one piece or a collection or a stock of duplicates, let's get together.

Stamps are a side issue with me—not my main business—carry them on as a pleasure, a recreation. No overhead, profit not the main consideration, so can pay handsome prices for handsome things. Should you desire I can furnish the best of bank, commercial or philatelic references. Been collecting nearly 30 years and selling on the side almost as long. Start the New Year right by dropping me a line. Let's get together—whether you sell or buy.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the addresses of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

United States.—The new 2c carmine, portrait of Washington; 4c brown, portrait of Martha Washington; 9c pink, portrait of Jefferson and the 10c yellow with portrait of Monroe, were placed on sale in Washington at both the main Post Office and the Philatelic Stamp Agency on Monday, January 15th. In addition the 2c sidewise coils in rolls of 500 were on sale at the wholesale window. As these were placed on sale entirely for postal needs it is very doubtful if many of them fell into philatelic hands on the first day, for they were not to be had through the Agency. The sheet stamps are, of course, on unwatermarked paper and are perforated 11, the coils are on unwatermarked paper, imperforate top and bottom and perforated 10 on the sides.

First sheets from the press of the four denominations were autographed by the Postmaster General, Hubert Work, the Third Assistant Postmaster General, W. Irving Glover, and the Director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, L. A. Hill. The sheet of the 2c autographed was 14093, the 4c 14095, the 9c 14242 and the 10c 14230.

On sale at the Agency were 2c sheets bearing numbers 14086, 14090, 14091 and 14092, in addition to higher numbers of the 4c, 14094 to 14097 inclusive, the 9c 14239 to 14242 and of the 10c 14229, 14230, 14231 and 14235. There was a good long line at the window all day and it is said several thousand orders were sent out by mail.

The next values to appear will be the $1, the $2, the 12c and 3c, possibly in the order named. The $1 Lincoln Memorial will be ready by February 12th and it was hoped that the 3c Lincoln could be placed on sale at the same time, but the Department has suggested changes in the die submitted by the Bureau, and this will cause a little delay. The die of the $2 originally showed the portion above the steps of the House wing of the Capitol without statuary. The Department requested this added, for the House wing now shows this addition, although for years the Senate wing only was so decorated. This little addition fills up a white space on the stamp and adds to its appearance. The 12c Cleveland, like the 5c Roosevelt, will be without background. The 14c Indian will show a full face portrait of Hollowhorn Bear, the Indian Chief, a great friend of Roosevelt, and the portrait which will appear on the stamp was taken by a Washington photographer at the time the Indian participated in the Roosevelt Inaugural Parade.

All of the values placed on sale in Washington on the 15th are of the same general design of the 11c, showing the portrait with heavy background. The 9c resembles the 2c so closely that there is great likelihood of confusion, for the heavy background in each tends to give the stamps a similarity in appearance. The Bureau's stock of the old 2c and 10c, as well as the plates, are about at an end, so that these values will soon be in general circulation.

The 1c green Franklin will be placed on sale in Washington on Wednesday the 17th, Franklin's birthday, and one million stamps have been sent to Philadelphia which will be released at the same time. It is doubtful if this stamp will be in general circulation for some time as the Bureau still has a good stock on hand of the old design. Two-cent booklets will appear the week of January 22nd.

Ceylon.—Mr. R. Roberts sends copies of the 6c violet and 15 green, the latter on new yellow paper and both with script watermark.

Danzig.—We have received from the Y. Souren Co. and J. L. Riedel copies of a 50mk stamp of blue and red colors. Within an oval frame are two crosses and at the top "50" with "Mark" at each side. At the base is the name of the country. Mr. J. L. Riedel also adds that this same type stamp has appeared in 100mk value in green and carmine.

The Y. Souren Co. report the following: Type A11, 6mk carmine rose, 5mk dark green and 10mk orange surcharged "D.M." for official use. Also 20mk deep violet in the postage due set.

France (P. O. in China).—Mr. William M. McFarland advises that he has received a copy of the 50c blue surcharged "20 Cents".

Germany.—Mr. J. L. Riedel and Mr. Erwin Strausser advise of the appearance of two Charity stamps. They are 6mk-x4mk blue and 12mkx8mk red. Mr. Riedel adds that they were issued December 11th, and are good for use until the 15th of January.

Old U. S. Slipping

ACCORDING TO THIS REPORT,

Here is a reply to a consignment I sent to an applicant for some of my best old U. S.—

"I am not going to take any of these just now, prices are too high on early U. S. I look for a big slump in these stamps soon."

Can you beat it? I am looking for some all the time cheap enough to handle, with poor success. I mean 10c 1847, 5c 1851, 5c buff 1861, 24c, 90c 1868, 90c 1869 and the like. I have them, but am lowering my stock all the time in these fine old specimens, which makes me nervous about the future.

If it is Buy or Sell, anything in old U. S., I am your man.

all around the coast. A method of catching fish, lobsters, etc., peculiar to Barbuda is practiced in the lagoon near the village of Codrington, which lies on its eastern shore. Brushwood is piled in heaps at selected spots in the lagoon and allowed to remain undisturbed for two to three weeks; these heaps attract the lobsters and fish in large numbers. Whenever it is considered desirable to obtain fish, these heaps are encircled by nets. This having been done, the men dive overboard and remove the brushwood. The nets are then gathered into a boat, bringing large numbers of fish and lobsters with them; as many as 200 lobsters being sometimes taken from one heap of brushwood.

The church and schoolhouse were given to the community by Sir William Codrington in 1843.

DECEMBER SUBSCRIPTIONS

The most pleasing thing in connection with this month's roll of honor is the new names that are found thereon. For instance, the Leader Stamp Co. with nine new subscriptions, Joseph Gallant with nine, the Minneapolis Stamp Shoppe with seven, Wm. G. Klemt with five and Maurice Michael four, together with a dozen others with two or three subscriptions each make an interesting feature of this month's record. While we are praising in nearly every report the work done by the big contenders for honors, attention this month is called to the splendid record of W. W. Betts, who has sent in 24 and now has a total of 40. This report includes only to Jan. 1, and when the next report is made early in February, Mr. Betts' missionary work will be emphasized with a substantial increase of the total here recorded.

A half page of advertising space will be given the dealer winning first honors for the year and two quarter pages will be awarded the two next highest contestants. Our roll of honor was begun October 1 and will continue until Sept. 30, 1923, inclusive. The leaders on December subscriptions are:—

Fennell Stamp Co.	40
C. E. Hussman Co.	32

PRECANCEL NOTES.

By J. D. Cooke.

The following doubles are all nice items. Brooklyn, N. Y., 10c, U-18, Menominee, Mich., 2c offset, Syracuse, N. Y. 1c, Ogdensburg, N. Y. 1c, Shamokin, Pa., 5c purple ink, Excelsior Springs, Mo. 9c, St. Joseph, Mich., 1c rotary press perf. 10, Des Moines, Iowa, 1c inv., and Tulsa, Oklahoma, 20c inv. In obsolete type Providence, R. I., 1c due, perf. 12, type 2.

Put in a new sheet for New Albany, Ind. It comes in type U-18.

Ditto for Auburn, N. Y., type similar to Holton, Kansas.

Grove Beach, Conn., is another new town. Found it on the 5c Pilgrim too.

The rotary press on the perf. 10 all around is getting very common. The following are new towns using them: Wheeling, W. Va., inv. Worcester Mass., Auburn, N. Y., Aurora, Ill., Holliston, Mass., North St. Paul, Minn., Atchinson, Kans., Kansas City, Kans., Mamaroneck, N. Y., Shelby, O., Atlantic City, N. J., Waukesha, Wis., Shenandoa, Iowa, and Ansonio, Conn.

Milwaukee, Wis., on the 3c victory reading down looks good to me.

How many of the following inverts have you? Easton, Pa., 1c, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. 1c, Shamokin, Pa., 6c, Zanesville, O., 3c offset and 5c, Des Moines, Iowa, 2c type V, Mount Morris, Ill., purple ink, Peru, Ind., 8c.

Here are a couple more good Pilgrims Des Moines, Iowa, 2c nor. type V and Kansas City, Kans., up.

Just a few nice uncatalogued varieties Kansas City, Kans., 1c offset, South Norwalk, Conn., 10c, Atlantic City, 7c, Peru, Ind., 7c and 11c.

New 11x10 as follows have come to my attention: Kansas City, Mo., staggered type, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Peekskill, N. Y., Garden City, N. Y., U-18, and Covington, Ky., two types.

F. C. Brown reports the following uncatalogued varieties from Baltimore, Md.: 10c due perf. 10, 5c due perf. 12, 10c parcel post, type I, 2c documentary type V up, and the following U-3 perf. 11, 1c inv., 9c double, and in type V the 4c imp.

He also sends me notice of the following South Bend, Ind., 1c double, Streator, Ill., 4c perf. 10, 4c up double, Logansport, Ind., 4c perf. 12, 5c and 8c perf. 10, Elkhart, Ind., perf. 11 30c inv., Muncie, Ind., 9c up, perf. 10, Newcastle 1c double perf. 12 and 2c perf. 11.

Quite a few cities are using old types on the current issue. Last month I called attention to Newark, N. J. They are coming on all values. This month a friend handed me a couple of sweet ones from Cincinnati, O. They were the 3c offset and the 50c overprinted with Type VI.

These are all from Missouri, Jefferson, 6c inv., Higginsville, 9c, 10c and 20c U-16, St. Louis, 10 double—Phisszletelic Phizzle.

BRITAIN'S LOSS, AMERICA'S GAIN.

It has been no secret in London stamp circles that within the past few weeks a notable event has occurred in the annals of the firm of Stanley Gibbons, Ltd. Mr. Charles J. Phillips, for many years Managing Director, and to a large extent the bright particular star of this eminent firm during a quarter of a century, has resigned from the firm, sold out his interest therein, and transferred his activities to the other side of the Pond. He proposes to settle down in New York City, and what is undoubtedly a real loss to London philately will be New York's gain. Although actively interested in stamps for upwards of forty years "C.J.P." is still on the sunny side of sixty, and as full of energy and enterprise as ever, and on his recent frequent visits to the States he has absorbed something of the strenuous hustling spirit of the Yankee. We can only wish our old friend the best of luck and continued health, and hope that although he has "settled down" in New York his attachments to the Old Country will keep him in close touch with British philately, and also bring him over on many welcome trips to visit his lifelong friends.—S. C. Fortnightly.

PORTLAND, ME., AND ITS PRECANCELS.

By W. H. McLin, Jr.

Portland, the largest city in Maine, has a population of approximately 69,000 persons. It is noted for its splendid harbor facilities and in winter time the Grand Trunk Railroad ships thousands of tons of grain from this port. Until recently, Portland had the monopoly of grain shipments from Canada, arriving in the city by rail and being transferred to the waiting boats for its long journey to points abroad. Due to the early freezing up of the St. Lawrence River, nothing could be sent by this route. Portland's grain traffic has fallen off materially of late since the Grand Trunk has built large elevators at Vancouver, B. C., and diverted much grain to this point.

Portland possesses a beautiful memorial organ, one of the finest in the world, the gift of Cyrus H. K. Curtis in memory of his friend, Herman Kotzschmar, a noted musician, who resided in Portland for many years. The municipal organist is Edwin H. Lemare, who is conceded to be the very finest of organists of the present day, a man of marked ability and one that makes people realize how marvelous this instrument is.

Numerous firms in Portland avail themselves of the privilege afforded them by the Government by its issues of precancels. Among these are the following: Cox & Co., trunks, Bliss & Richardson, wholesale shoe dealers, J. R. Libby, Owen, Moore & Co., Porteous, Mitchell & Braun, the three last named being department stores. These latter named stores do an immense mail-order business in the surrounding countryside.

A large amount of precancels are used in this way, but very few are saved by collectors. There are very few precancelists around here, anyway, and the average collector, if he gets a chance to salvage a few, neglects to do so as he feels that common stamps are not worth his time.

Bliss & Richardson are perhaps the largest users of precancels and are responsible, no doubt, for the widest distribution of parcels bearing "precans" from this city. Their pet value is the 11c one, which they use profusely whereever possible. Next comes the 10c, then the 6c, then 5c, then 8c, then 7c, then 2c, then 1c, then 3, 4, 12, 15, 9 and 13c respectively, in the order of use in which they most commonly occur. The 20c is seldom used, the shippers preferring to plaster the package with 11 or 10c values. The 13c from Portland is a real rarity, and out of possibly 250 precancels taken by me from parcel-post in the past year only one copy was a 13c, and that a straight edge. The 9c probably comes next in scarcity, vieing with the 20c in infrequent usage.

Portland precancels all values of the current set, from 1c to 20c, and, in so far as I know, no inverts exist. The printing is usually carefully done, and the type is well inked, giving the cancellation a jet-black, glossy look. I possess a 1c value, however, in which the inscription is so poorly placed as to show only one-half the upper bar and "Portl" in the lower right-hand corner. This evidently came from the top row, as the rest of the inscription does not appear elsewhere here on the stamp, as is sometimes the case.—Precancel Gazette.

HISTORIC IRISH STAMPS.

Although only issued on Wednesday, December 6th, the green 2d stamp of the Irish Free State with the map of all Ireland appears to have been withdrawn, and numerous correspondents have shown us another novelty, which is alleged to have taken its place. This is the 2d Great Britain overprinted "Sáorstat Eireann 1922" in three lines. The new overprint means "Irish Free State," whereas the old one meant "Irish Provisional Government."

We quote some comment from the Daily Telegraph:—

"The present year has been memorable in the annals of these islands for the creation, at long last, of the Irish Free State. It is scarcely ten months since the first provisional postage stamps for Ireland were issued, and the variations in the overprints have been numerous and interesting enough to attract the attention of philatelic specialists. Now with the actual launching of the Free State there comes the first definitive stamp of Ireland, which is illustrated in this column.

"The design is one of three accepted for use as postage stamps from the hundreds submitted to the Irish Postmaster-General, and it is the one which has been allotted to the lowest denominations—the penny series. It shows a map of Ireland—the whole of it—with shamrocks in the upper angles of the frame. The inscriptions are in Irish. The stamp is printed in green on paper watermarked with a multiple cypher formed of the Irish letters 'SE' for Sáorstat Eireann. The die was, I understand, engraved at the Royal Mint, London, and the plates were made there. The printing and perforating has been done in Dublin Castle, a special establishment having been set up there for the purpose, and a highly-skilled staff lent by the Stamping Department of Somerset House, has directed the work. In due course it is desired to make dies, plates, paper, and do the gumming, etc., in Ireland, but to begin with this was impossible. The paper for this first issue was made in Kent, and the gumming of it was done in London. The perforation, which gauges 14½ by 14, was done in Dublin on machines supplied by Messrs. Grover & Co., of London.

"The design is not of outstanding originality, but it has the merit of being a good stamp from the printer's point of view; it is difficult to get satisfactory results with portrait stamps by the typographic process, but not with a simple outline design. On the other hand, the design is not so effective a protection against forgery. An interesting feature of the design, which will at once suggest itself to the philatelist, is that this first stamp of the Irish Free State represents in its map the contour of all Ireland, without any indication of a boundary to the Free State. This may not be altogether agreeable to the North. Postage stamps travel far and wide throughout the international mails as silent missionaries and propagandists, and the impression conveyed to far-off lands will be that the whole of Ireland is under the sway of the Irish Free State.

"Philatelic history records a number of 'incidents' in connection with map stamps. In 1900 the Dominican Republic issued a series of stamps showing a map of the island of Hayti, the eastern portion of which is occupied by the Dominican Republic, and the western portion by the Haytian Republic. But in their endeavour to show the world how the land of the San Domingans lies, they overstepped their boundary, and the map stamps suggested that they had annexed a considerable part of the neighbouring republic. The Haytians protested vigorously, with the result that the untruthful map issue was withdrawn.

"Venezuela issued map stamps to try and win her desires in the celebrated boundary question which was in dispute for many years between Great Britain and Venezuela. The early map stamps of Panama and Nicaragua also may be regarded in the light of propaganda in connection with their rival claims to suitability for the inter-oceanic canal. We all know now that Panama won, but it is not so well known that Nicaragua lost her chance by her indiscretion in featuring a smoking volcano on one of her picture stamps, a tiny official witness that helped to decide the United States against the proposed Nicaraguan route.

"Of the other accepted designs for the Irish Free State stamps, one depicts a Celtic cross and four shamrocks, and is a close imitation of the now familiar blue Sinn Fein labels which first appeared in 1908, and were sold at 2sh6d a gross for use as propaganda labels. This is to be used for some of the shilling values. The third accepted design shows in a frame of shamrock a shield bearing in its four quarters the arms of the four provinces Leinster, Munster, Ulster and Connaught.

"When the Government stamp factory in Dublin completes the new series of Irish stamps there should be an end to the numerous and varied provisional overprintings in Gaelic on British stamps. Although the Free State only entered the list of stamp-issuing countries last February, the philatelic varieties produced already occupy a whole closely-set page of the new Stanley Gibbons Catalogue. Most of the overprints were done in Dublin, some by Messrs. Dollard, Ltd., and others by Messrs. Alex. Thom & Co., Ltd., but a special overprinting of the ½d, 1d, 1½d, and 2d, was done in London by Messrs. Harrison & Sons, Ltd., for the issue of these stamps in coil form. As I conjectured in this column on February 23rd, there has been quite a mix-up of the Dollard and Thom types of overprints; eleven denominations exist in both types, which are easily recognisable in the case of the low values ½d to 10d, but are almost indistinguishable in the case of the 2sh 6d, 5sh and 10sh stamps. None of the ordinary varieties of these provisional stamps is rare, but there are scarce errors, e. g., ½d green with 'Dollard' overprint inverted, and 2d orange (Die I. and Die II.) with Thom overprint inverted. Also that curious flaw which occurs on an earlier plate of the 1½d brown English stamp, reading PENCF instead of PENCE, exists, with the Irish (Thom) overprint, and is quoted by Gibbons at 60sh."
—Stamp Collector's Fortnightly.

STAMPS USED AS MONEY.

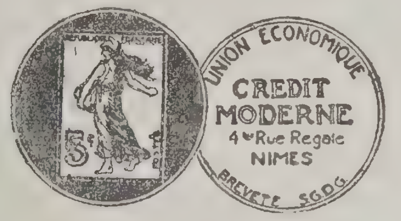
LACK OF SMALL COINS IN FRANCE LEADS TO QUEER SUBSTITUTES.

Paper Money Is Issued by Chambers of Commerce—Ice Tickets, Street Car Slugs, Metal Tokens Are in Current Use.

By L. J. RAGATZ.

Of all countries enjoying a relatively stable currency today, France's subsidiary coinage system is the most chaotic and the one most in need of revision and unification. The reason for such a condition lies in the shortage of small change attendant on the war and the variety of attempts which have been made to overcome it.

Soon after August, 1914, the 5, 10, 25 and 50-centime and 1-franc coins all but disappeared from circulation. This phenomenon of the vanishing of small coins is one which has always accompanied wars. The wealthy man secretes his gold, the poor one the coins normal to his station of life.



STAMPS IN USE AS MONEY.

Gold as such is seldom seen in circulation and its hoarding does not outwardly much affect the carrying on of an exchange of commodities. But when the subsidiary coins employed in every transaction made during the course of a day drop from sight, business is seriously hampered, and until they are replaced in some form or other there results embarrassment and even genuine distress, because would-be buyers and would-be sellers cannot conclude their deals for the lack of a medium.

STAMPS AS MONEY.

The first method adopted in France to meet the small-coin shortage was to put into circulation postage stamps as money. These have the advantage of being actual legal tender in France. The French buyer of a "crown" of bread presented three 50-centime stamps and received his bread, together with two 10-centime and one 5-centime stamps as change. Naturally, the stamps became soiled and dirty after a few handlings, and though they could be used to pay postage, many were worn out and lost before they had been made to do postal service. There was soon a strong demand for devices which would keep the stamps clean and whole and allow them to continue being employed as change indefinitely. Business houses and banks then commenced to encase stamps. The 5, 10 and 25-centime values were those generally so treated. The encasing was done in several ways—by using small waxed envelopes, by making pockets out of glassine paper, or by placing the stamps against an aluminum disc with a celluloid window front.

In all cases the cost of the protecting devise was covered by the use or sale of the reverse for advertising purposes. Thus the postage stamp money given out by the banks like the Credit Lyonnais and the Societe Generale, and department stores like Au Printemps and Galeries Lafayette bore the name of the establishment issuing them. Liver pill, motor oil, soap, chocolate, newspaper and other advertisements appeared on the backs of disks or stamp envelopes issued to small shops by advertising agencies at the face value of the stamps.

A 50-CENTIME NOTE ISSUED BY THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE OF NICE.

PAPER CURRENCY.

Postage stamp currency did not, however, satisfy the needs for 50-centime and 1-franc pieces. City and regional chambers of commerce throughout France therefore asked for and received governmental authority to issue their own paper currency covering these values, such pieces to be guaranteed by the respective issuing chambers and to be secured by notes of the bank of France placed on deposit by the chambers in the French treasury, and to be regionally interchangeable against the latter in sums of 5 francs and upward. The result has been the issue of a considerable variety of local bills. They are chiefly lithographed. The first specimens were rather crude, but attention soon came to be paid to their appearance, and now many of the current series are in several colors and are beautiful examples of lithographic art. Local scenery and historic episodes and personages are frequently featured. There are but few chambers of commerce that have not availed themselves of the opportunity to issue their own currency.

Some chambers of commerce also asked for and received permission to issue aluminum tokens, chiefly of 5, 10 and 25-centime denominations, although there are some of 50 centimes and 1 and 2 francs as well. All of these, like the fractional currency, are guaranteed by the respective chambers, and are secured by and declared to be interchangeable for notes of the bank of France.

Many kinds of unauthorized and unsecured counters have also been issued by large business houses and syndicates, as the syndicate of hotels and cafes of Carpentras, the cafes of Lyons, those of Montpellier, a wholesale foodstuffs house in L'Herault, the Vichy Thermal establishment, and chain stores, such as La Solidarite Co-operative.

CAR SLUGS AND ICE CHECKS.

There are also found doing service as money, though never intended for that purpose, slugs issued by public utility corporations for the use of their customers. Thus, in Paris, two varieties of street car checks are encountered as change almost daily. The common 25-centime piece at Marseilles is the metal check of that value issued by the local street car company. At Lyons, ice checks are a regular medium of exchange. In several cities, such as Nice and Marseilles, small metal disks issued by the Pathe Phonograph Company for auditions in their audiphone galleries are constantly circulating as 25-centimes.

Counters and slugs are, of course, always accepted by the firms issuing them, but they are in common general circulation as well, and in practice are accepted anywhere in the regions of origin except at the banks and tax and post offices.

The encased stamps and the chamber of commerce of France tokens are the only types of makeshift change which are accepted throughout the country. The fractional currency, regional chamber tokens, and counters and slugs are purely local.—Current History.

SOMETHING NEW.

By WILLIS E. HURD.

At least, it's new to me, and new to other collectors I know of. And if it is new, let's start a boom on it. Let's start it, anyway. The Post Office Department knows a good thing when it sees it. We have ample proof of that, and are grateful for it. Witness the Stamp Agency at the Post Office Department in Washington, D. C.; the orders to postmasters regarding requests for things postal from stamp collectors; the general attitude of the administration. This would be a good thing.

Now, what we want is a distinctive set of stamps for the U. S. "colonies"! Hold! this isn't so difficult! It doesn't necessitate new sets of plates, though that would be fine, using the regular U. S. issues with the name of the possession tucked cozily away inside the oval, for instance. But I think most of us would be satisfied, yes, enthusiastic and bubbling over, if we knew that shortly our letter from Honolulu, or other Hawaiian post offices, would come to us bearing the regular U. S. stamp, or stamps—those beautiful new ones—but with an addition: A clear-cut, well centered surcharge, HAWAII! Similarly differentiated would be the stamps mailed from post-offices in Porto Rico, Alaska, Guam, the Virgin Islands, or where-not!

PRIVATELY ISSUED U. S. COILS.

By PHILIP H. WARD, JR.

Additional recognized private perforations are those applied by the Brinkerhoff Company founded by Mr. F. H. Brinkerhoff of Sedalia, Mo. This machine, invented by Mr. Brinkerhoff, was designed to take endwise coils, the first type consisting of four holes 1¼ mm. in diameter spaced 5 mm. center to center. Later they used two holes spaced 14½ mm. with a sort of cut or roulette between. I have seen quite a few, however, with the holes only.

A large Chicago firm used for some years a type of separation known as the Chambers perforations, and of this three varieties exist, all being of the sidewise coil type. First we have two vertical groups of four small holes separated 2½ mm. between the two groups, the second variety has this spacing 4½ mm., while the third type consists of an upper group of four holes and a lower group of five holes separated 2½ mm. apart.

There is certainly a further type of private perforation made for these special machines that is worthy of listing and that is the International made by the International Vending Co., I think this is their exact title, of Baltimore. They used the official government coiled stamps and where they could not obtain the stamps they wanted they coiled the stamps themselves, using a perforation resembling the official, but gauging about 12½. It is the 3c 1908 coil turned out by this company that is often thought to be a government issue.

There are other types such as the Attleboro made by a stamp collector, the Parkhurst, the Kansas City and the like, but outside of slight mention being given these in philatelic publications, I can learn nothing about them. Outside of the Attleboro I can find no examples of these other varieties in the foremost collections of private coils in the country.

In so far as private coils are concerned, the unpopularity of these issues is no doubt due to the fact that in the early days the manufacturers would turn out almost anything wanted by the collector at a small advance over face and the fact that many of them are so crude that they could be easily made from the imperforate stock.

Our immense wholesale stock (probably exceeding one million stamps) has been sold to Mr. Frank Marquis, who intends to divide the same up and give the smaller dealers a chance of their life. Inasmuch as there is not one single Twentieth Century stamp in this vast accumulation, such an opportunity to acquire old stock is rarely met with.

HISTORY FROM POSTAGE STAMPS.

By CHARLES G. WILSON.

On the stamps of France of 1852-62 there appears the head of Napoleon III, nephew to Napoleon Bonaparte. It is to be noted that on the 1863-70 issues a laurel wreath is added to the Emperor's head. This wreath was added after the victories of Napoleon's troops over the Austrians at Magenta and Solferino. In 1858 France and Sardinia arranged an alliance against Austria and in 1859, Louis Napoleon headed the Franco-Italian armies against the Austrians. His avowed purpose was in his own words, "Italy free from the Alps to the Adriatic." This purpose failed. In the peace that followed Solferino, Venice was left to Austria and a small part of Lombardy alone was liberated. The real reason for the Franco-Austrian War was Napoleon's desire to establish to Europe France's military supremacy and to unite the small kingdoms of Italy in a federation under the presidency of the Pope, but virtually dependent upon France.

The features of Benjamin Franklin have always been prominent on the postage stamps of the United States. And it is very fitting that they should be for no man in America was so identified with the early post-office in America, both prior to and after the Revolution, as was Benjamin Franklin. In 1737, Franklin was made postmaster of Philadelphia. In 1753 he received the British King's commission as Deputy Postmaster-General for the Colonies. After the Revolution started in 1775, the Colonies united to establish their own postal system, and Franklin, who in 1774, had been dismissed from the Royal postmaster-generalship, because of his patriotism for the Colonies in their struggle for freedom, was unanimously appointed Postmaster-General by a Congressional Committee.

It is to be remembered that postage stamps were not used at that time. The first adhesive postage stamps were used in England in 1840, and did not come into use in the United States until 1847.

GERMAN INVENTS 2-COLOR STAMP-PRINTING MACHINE.

A press for printing, counting and perforating 12,000 two-colored postage stamps per minute, or 6,000,000 stamps per eight-hour day, has been perfected by the Gandenbergischen Maschinenfabrik Georg Geobel of Darmstadt, Germany, according to a message received at the Commerce Department from Consul F. T. F. Dumont at Frankfort-am-Main.

The press is so constructed that the stamps can be printed in one or two colors from rolls of gummed paper, which can either be rerolled or separated into sheets of 100 stamps each, as desired, the consul states. The paper is fed in a cleaning machine consisting of two brush rollers, thence over a stretching roller to the precision rollers, then to the printing rollers and the perforating mechanism, and finally to the rewinder, or sheet cutter, which completes the operation.

The machine is described by the Darmstadt Tageblatt as being not only a marvel of modern machine technic but unique of its kind, Consul Dumont says. The perforations are so exact that the finest gauge cannot detect the slightest variation between one row of perforations and those of each new sheet, and the adjustments are such that any misuse of the machine for falsifications is impossible, the report adds.

THE MARQUIS PURCHASE.

The advertisement of Stanley Gibbons Inc., elsewhere, is a very interesting one. The purchase made by Mr. Frank Marquis, who has been a frequent advertiser in the WEEKLY, is of enormous proportions and dealers and collectors will doubtless profit by the placing upon the market of this great accumulation of stamps.

A NOVEL PERMIT

Through the kindness of F. W. Curtis of Dover, Del., we have had the privilege of examining an interesting Chicago permit. The original permit was of a 3c value, but this later had been overprinted with a large figure 5 in red, evidently to make up an 8c rate, for subsequently the surcharged permit was completely barred out with parallel black lines and just underneath is printed in regular form the 8c impression. The permit number is 2373, but we refrain from giving the name of the firm that is using it, for obvious reasons.

SUBSCRIPTION RENEWALS.

Some of our subscribers need to know our rule regarding discontinuances. We discontinue all subscriptions in arrears promptly the second issue of each month. This means that your subscription should be renewed prior to expiration. The expiration number can be ascertained by consulting your wrapper. No free copies of the WEEKLY are sent out and this rule is as fixed as the laws of the M. and P. Our older subscribers understand our rule and the newer subscribers should get acquainted with it.

EDITORIAL.

From Mr. George H. Grinnell of Los Angeles, California, the defendant in the celebrated Hawaiian missionary stamp case, we have received the following telegram, dated January 19th: "Klemann-Grinnell case settled. Klemann through attorneys returns all the stamps to me. Full satisfaction of judgment entered in court record. Shattuck gave me seventy-one Hawaiian missionaries. I have them all. Am sending photographs of all in find. They are not for sale until I can establish authenticity. Am satisfied to own largest collection of genuine Hawaiian missionaries in the world. I know they are genuine and I propose to prove it. Letter follows." Mr. Grinnell's statement is a most interesting one, but we suppose that comment should be reserved until the letter promised by Mr. Grinnell comes to us. The settlement of the case on the basis indicated seems to be one well advised; and at least, it commends itself to common sense, as Mr. Grinnell buys back, as it were, something that he has every confidence in, according to his own statement. If Mr. Grinnell is able to prove to the disinterested observer that the stamps involved are genuine, he will have good reason to plume himself.

We wish to thank Mr. Eugene Klein of Philadelphia for a copy of the new one-cent Franklin sent from his city, January 17th, on the anniversary of Ben Franklin's birth in 1706. The post-office department is showing a sentiment that not alone philatelists appreciate, in so nicely timing the appearance of certain of the stamps of our new issue.

Our inquiry as to the identity of "W. Brown" pictured on the twenty peso stamp of Argentine, 1891, has attracted the attention of a few of our readers, who admit that the question is something of a poser. In fact, one of our university professors sends us the following explanation to account for the difficulty in gathering data about national or local celebrities. He says: "In fact, it is not easy to understand how difficult it is to secure authentic information about personages of the kind who may be celebrated in their own country, but unheralded outside of it; and when the reputation of the man is restricted to a district or community, the search is something so involved that we wonder if results that may be obtained at last, justify it. However, one so eminent as to have his portrait on the stamp of an enlightened country, such as the Argentine Republic, should be known to philatelists, and I am about to write to a society in Buenos Aires, for data. I was interested in Mr. Edgar Metzer's brief account and wish to supplement it. His description of Brown piques my curiosity."

We suspect that the old-timer who taunts us whenever time hangs heavy on his hands, by calling us Big Babbitt, because we wish to boost stamp collecting and are not willing to stand by and let it drift idly along when a little steering would remove any possibility that it might run on the rocks, is trying to make us sputter again. En passant, if our critic found his stamp investment impaired by a dwindling interest in stamps, he would be the first to say that "something should be done to restore the enthusiasm of yester years," or words to that effect. He is the latest: "As one of the race of general collectors which will soon be extinct, I have a rather good knowledge of all stamps, which is more than I can say for the average dealer, who makes enough mistakes to make you think that his knowledge is superficial, indeed; and I am not speaking about 'kid' dealers, either. The dealer of today lacks the philatelic insight of the dealer of my halcyon days of collecting, from 1880 on to 1900." To make his case strong, he names a half-dozen dealers of some decades ago whose names will always command respect. Our correspondent should have his growls choked in his throat if he is sincere in uttering this last bit of nonsense. We have all due regard for the dealers of the past who rose to prominence in their field, but they may not pose as exceptional in their stamp knowledge. It was not until about 1889 that Durbin, who was the first to list watermarks in his general catalogue, included them in the book and there was no call then for any great degree of erudition in a philatelic sense. The world was small in its number of stamp issues as compared with today and a general collection could be kept within bounds. When specialism became the accepted thing, the dealers became specialists to some extent but at that, the dealer kept up his knowledge of the world's stamps better than the collector. It is no longer expected that the dealer or collector know everything about all the stamps of all the stamp issuing countries of all the world and the greatest authorities of the present are men who while having an intensive knowledge of some stamps know utterly nothing about many others. Ring off, old Crusticus.

What does it mean when the monthly magazine of the City Bank Club, the world-wide organization "of the staffs of the National City Bank of New York, the National City Company, International Banking Corporation, the National Realty Corporation and the National City Safe Deposit Company" will find space in its columns for the inconsequential item: "Now For the Stamp Club. All boys interested in joining the Stamp Club should report to Mr. Meeker, in his office on Thursday, at 5 P. M. Officers for the new year will be elected, and work on the master collection will be a part of this meeting. Stamps will also be distributed for each boy's personal collection, or trading purposes." (We like the expression, "master collection," the property of the club, no doubt.) Answering our own question, it means that one of the astutest business organizations in the world puts its approval on philately and holds that its spread should be encouraged. These men would not place their official seal on philately's diploma if they did not consider stamp collecting as something that from all angles was worthy.

Another death must be recorded, and this time it is that of Edwin H. Draper, Marshalltown, Iowa, who for many years was a reader of this paper and a collector of U. S. stamps in particular. Mr. Draper was an occasional caller at our Chicago office where he liked to chat about stamps; and we wish to pay a tribute of respect to our friend, who at the comparatively early age of forty years or more, passes on.

* * *

We have been informed that one of our readers in the postal service has been asked by his superiors to cease handling used postage due stamps that he bought in quantities from a certain firm; and he has done so. Too, the company that receives the stamps is said to be feeding them into the furnace now, but not from any intimation from the postal people that such a course would be appreciated, however.

MR. BETTS AND NEW SUBSCRIPTIONS.

We feel compelled to note the splendid work that W. W. Betts, the Clearfield, Pa., dealer is doing in securing new subscribers for the Weekly. Quite recently he sent us twenty subscriptions at one time, and under date of Jan. 18 he sends us three new yearly subscriptions with a letter that would please the heart of any publisher. We deem it wise to publish this letter in its entirety and feel disposed to make this observation, that when Mr. Betts submits a new pricelist for review by the Weekly, we are justified in giving him every consideration. The letter follows:—

"I am enclosing my check for $3.00 to cover three new yearly subscriptions to Mekeel's Weekly Stamp News. Would it be too late to send these three parties the January 20th Issue? These are all good, old collectors who have never subscribed to the Weekly.

I have been sending you many new subscribers from Clearfield, all of whom are very enthusiastic stamp collectors and should make very good subscribers.

I am sending you these subscriptions not merely because I want to win the contest you are holding, but because I want to help you in making the Weekly a larger and better paper. This, of course, cannot be done without the aid of others."

THE MANHATTAN CONGLOMERATION $1.02
Ordinarily it is not considered necessary to continue advertising a successful product. When demand is hundreds of orders ahead of supply, most folks stop advertising. That's where we differ—and that's why The Manhattan Conglomeration is so successful. Just remember that we are going to fill all orders and that the quality remains the same. Some of the skeptics better wake up and hire a P. O. box under an assumed name so nobody will know they ordered "The M—— C——". From the way the repeat orders are coming in, we surmise that we are not the only ones that can spot bargains.

ANNOUNCING — THE MORNINGSIDE CONFISCATION — $1.02
Out of regard to our friends the skeptics and the few lots we have, we are only going to pass a few hints about this thing. There are just 15 representatives in this lot; some are old and some are very new; many of them are registered, if not in Burke's Peerage, than in the annals of some P. O. The catalog value of the government adhesives attached to these things is more than $2. We might say a lot more about these perfect aristocrates, but if you are a true collector of original covers, you've decided to get in on the best bargain you ever were offered for $1.02.

THE PAYMENT OF ENTRY FEES.

By Wm. W. Washburn,
Office Comptroller of Customs, N. Y. C.

I read with considerable interest the article in your issue of Jan. 13th in regard to the party in Chicago who could not understand why he was required to pay entry fees, etc., on his package.

In his case it is altogether likely that his parcel came to New York in what is termed by the Customs a "packed package". There are several firms of Customs Brokers and Forwarders who handle this line of business, i. e., gathering up numbers of small parcels and packing same in a large package to save transportation charges, and to avoid danger of loss and breakage.

For instance: The Amer. Ry. Exp. at their office in Paris will gather up 20 or so small packages, consigned to different importers in the U. S., pack same in a large container or package and ship direct to New York or other U. S. port, as may be convenient. At New York the package will be unpacked under customs supervision and the different small packages entered for each separate importer under an I. T. (Immediate Transportation) entry and forwarded by Parcel Post or bonded carrier to the final destination, where the Customs authorities will examine and appraise the merchandise and compute the duty, if any accrues, on it.

The importer, after paying the duty, will be given possession of his merchandise. In case the merchandise was consigned to a point where there was no representative of the Customs, the forwarder would enter the merchandise and pay the duty, if any, at the port of original entry, billing same against the ultimate consignee, said duties and other necessary charges and expenses constituting a lien on the merchandise.

If the merchandise were shipt by Parcel Post direct, it would be sent direct to the consignee if there happened to be a Custom House or Customs official at that place. If not, the package would be examined and appraised at the port of original entry and if under $100 in value, forwarded through the P. O., the Postmaster being required to collect the amount of duty. If the value of the package exceeded $100, the consignee would be notified to make formal entry at the original port of entry, paying the duties there, and the package would then be forwarded through the P. O.

KRAUSE'S NEW ISSUE SERVICE.

Things are looking up in the matter of American dealers importing new issues. We recently referred to a new New York service of this character, and now Maxwell Krause the well-known Lebanon, Pa., dealer, is announcing his intention of making a specialty of new issues. The British dealers, who have done a large business on this side of the water cannot resent our expressing a tangible measure of satisfaction at the competition that now seems likely.

CONVENTION OF THE AMERICAN PHILATELIC SOCIETY.

A committee of the Washington Philatelic Society has prepared a tentative program for the meeting and entertainment of the convention of the American Philatelic Society which meets here next August and at which the attendance of a thousand or so of the leading stamp collectors and dealers of North America is expected.

The regular business meetings will be held on the mornings of Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of the convention week.

Tuesday afternoon the members of the society will visit the Bureau of Engraving and Printing and that night a stamp auction will be held at the headquarters hotel.

Wednesday afternoon will be occupied by a trip to Mount Vernon, where the assemblage will be photographed, and on the return to town a stop will be made at Alexandria, the home of a famous and rare postmaster's stamp of which very few copies exist. At night a stamp bourse will be held for the sale and exchange of stamps by the members.

Thursday afternoon will be occupied by a trip to Annapolis, where another scarce stamp was issued and where a banquet will be held at some ancient tavern.

Friday will be adjournment and trips around Washington or exhibitions of stamps by the members and at the National Museum.

A registration fee will be exacted of all members and participants in order to eliminate the outsiders and an official program will be published.

Encouraging reports are being received as to the number of visitors who will attend and some of the most valuable stamps and collections in the world will be brought here for exhibition and examination.

The General Committee is composed of the chairman of the various committees as follows:—H. B. Mason, General Chairman; W. A. Johnson, Reception; A. E. Gorham, Hotels; W. H. Boatright, Ways and Means; H. C. Beck, Finance; A. M. McFadden, Transportation and Excursions; Henry Hammelman, Treasurer; J. F. Duhamel, Publicity and Secretary.

The Committee has been meeting twice each month at the Stamp Shoppe, 1413 G Street, N. W., and the Washington Philatelic Society is offering generous aid to the Committee in its efforts.

1922 VOLUMES ON SALE.

Some of our subscribers would no doubt like to obtain some complete volumes of the Weekly, and we can accommodate to a certain degree. We have fifteen volumes for 1922, which will be sold at $1 each. An index to this volume will be published in the Weekly within a short time, Mr. Pike having the manuscript nearly ready for our use. This is a splendid opportunity to obtain 648 pages of stamp information at a low price.

This stamp was not placed on sale in Washington at the Philatelic Stamp Agency on January 15th when the new flat plate stamp went on sale. The wholesale clerk, however, kindly hunted around and found a coil for me and I do not believe that others were purchased in Washington the first day.

I mailed out exactly 37 covers, nicely cancelled "Washington, January 15, 1923". I doubt if more are available. While they last they are yours at 50c each. Also offer the new

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the addresses of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—The 1c green, portrait of Franklin, of the new series of 1922-1923 made its appearance in accordance with previous announcement on January 17th, it having been placed on sale in both Washington and Philadelphia on that day. The variety shows the well known portrait of Franklin that has been used by the Department for postage stamps for some years. The frame work is similar to the other low values of the series. Its appearance is most satisfactory and it is to be regretted that the background was not omitted as will be the case of the further portrait values that are to be made up. In fact, it was simply to remove the background that the 3c Lincoln proof was turned back to the Bureau.

The stamp is printed in sheets of four hundred which are cut into post-office panes of 100 and these are perforated 11 on unwatermarked paper. The Bureau of Engraving and Printing has on hand an enormous stock of the old 1c, so that this stamp is not likely to be put into general circulation until some time later. Among those placed on sale were stamps from the earliest plate No. 14157, in addition to 14158, 14159, 14160, etc. The first sheet was printed at the Bureau on January 3rd in the presence of the Postmaster General, Mr. Hubert Work; the Director of the Bureau, Mr. L. A. Hill; the Third Assistant Postmaster General, Mr. W. Irving Glover; the Superintendent of the Division of Stamps, Mr. M. L. Eidsness, Jr., and Mr. Perry the Assistant Director of the Bureau. It was autographed on the margin by Messrs. Work, Hill and Glover.

In the case of the new 2c coil it seems that the Bureau's stock of the old design had become exhausted in the case of the sidewise coil and as a result it was necessary to distribute these stamps to several of the offices previous to January 15th. Messrs. D. B. Beattie, G. C. Bartholomew and E. S. Ward report the use of the variety from New York on January 16th, while Mr. Wendover Neefus has it from St. Louis under date of January 17th, so it is quite possible that this stamp was placed on sale on January 15th in several cities. The new 2c booklets will possibly be issued by the time these notes appear.

Since my last Chronicle I am able to state that not only the $1 showing the Lincoln Memorial in Washington, will be placed on sale in Washington on Lincoln's birthday, February 12th, but the 3c value will also be ready. Because of the change in die it was first thought that this value could not be produced in time, but the Bureau has made sufficient headway to enable them to have some in the hands of the Philatelic Stamp Agent by that date. These will be followed in short order, if not on the same day, by the $2 blue, showing a view of the Capitol at Washington. Then will follow the 12c and 14c along with the $5. The latter will be very unusual and different from anything that we have ever had in stamps. I have not seen a proof of the 14c Indian, but am told it will possibly be the most beautiful of the series.

In my recent notes I mentioned a 5c 1847, on cover, dated July 16th (1847) and stated that as far as I knew, or could learn from available records, that this was the earliest cover known, where the stamp was actually attached to the cover by a postmark covering both the stamp and the cover. Mr. Charles M. Bleeker kindly sends for inspection a very interesting cover with a beautiful copy of this stamp with right sheet margin postmarked in red "New York—13 Jul—5cts" and addressed to "Charles B. Moore Esq., Saratoga Springs, Saratoga Co., N. Y." The letter bears date of July 13, 1847. The stamp has the well known New York, red grid cancellation, but unfortunately this does not fall on the cover, but there is not the slightest doubt that the stamp was used on this cover.

Mr. Bates E. Clarke kindly writes to state that he has an early dated cover of the 5c 1847, postmarked New York, July 17th. Any cover of the 1847 issue used in July of 1847, is most desirable and we would be pleased to hear of any other unrecorded copies that may be in the hands of our readers.

Mention was made, many months back, of the fact that although the report of the Director of the Bureau showed that a good quantity of the 40c Documentary had been overprinted "Stock Transfer" and "Future Delivery", no copies had ever been reported in the hands of collectors. Mr. Warren G. Ogden now shows me the 40c with the "Stock Transfer" surcharge.

Dr. L. L. Meyers sends for inspection a cut square copy of the 1c envelope, oval type, printed in what appears to be the black of the 4c. Looking at it at angle it has a greenish tinge. If it is changling it is the best of its kind th has ever come to my attention.
black appearance is very strong and u form, something entirely foreign

Pa. It is the 2c red, Permit 1, Me of that city. It is dated Dec. 30, 1922.

CHINA.—Prof. E. A. Young sends us the following:

The French consular post in China has celebrated its rapidly approaching demise with the issue of a complete new series of stamps, the old types being used with new colors, corresponding to the changes in the French colonies, and a different value surcharge. Note that the former issue was surcharged a value in cents equal to 40% of its face value in francs—that is the old 25 centime stamp was surcharged 10 cents, but the new surcharges are just half this amount —5 cents on 25 centimes.

I have been able to obtain the following values only of the new issue: Blanc Type (see Gibbons), 1c on 5 centimes orange buff; Mouchon type (see Gibbons), 2c on 10 centimes green; (Droits de l'homme) 3c on 15 centimes orange; 5c on 25 centimes red lilac, 6c on 30 centimes red (or orange red), 10c on 50 centimes blue; Merson type (large), 20c on 1fr, rose lilac and olive, and 40c on 2fr, blue and vermilion.

I presume that the 4c on 20c, and the 8c on 40 exist though I have not seen them. I know that the dollar on 5 francs exists, but was immediately sold out. It is also definitely reported that in two cases the surcharges were incorrectly applied—that is, the new color fifty centimes was surcharged with the old 20c rate, and the five franc with the former $2 (or rather the very peculiar "2 piastres"—there is no such coin or currency recognized here).

We have been watching for the sub-office of the Indo China postal administration to give us a new series also, or rather six new series! on the new colors of Indo China. So far none of these have showed up.

The British post-office is already closed, and the others are going to be closed without doubt—even the Japanese officials are preparing to quit.

The Famine "stamps" which have been mentioned repeatedly in the Chronicle have exactly the same status as American Red Cross Christmas seals—they represent a voluntary contribution and do no postal duty.

On November 1 new postal rates went into effect; the local rates are unchanged, domestic letters increased from 3c to 4c, foreign letters increased from 10c to 15c, with 8c for the second unit weight. The new rates in some cases must be made up of three stamps, so a new issue seems probable, as the present one has been running for ten years. The important thing about it, however, is that over half of China has formally repudiated the new rates and the post-offices are carrying mails at the old rates. This is all of a kind with other political conditions in China, but an unusual situation for the Ministry of Communications, which has continued to function quite regularly in spite of politicians and upheavals. The districts now refusing to use the new rates are Kinagsu province, or rather the Shanghai postal district, Szechuen, Kwantung, Kwangsi, and Fokien, also Manchuria.

COSTA RICA.—Mr. Eugene Klein sends us a copy of the 5c orange of the 1910 issue surcharged at the top with a cross and "5c." in red.

FRANCE, Offices in Morocco.—The Economist Stamp Co. report the issue of two stamps for use on mail going by airplane. They are oblong in shape with a view of an airplane in action in the centre. In each upper corner are the figures of value and at the base "Service Postal Aerien". The name "Maroc" is at the top. The values are 25c blue and 50c green.

GIBRALTAR.—The Bulletin Mensuel announces the appearance of the 1½d brown on script watermarked paper.

GREECE.—P. J. Drossos informs us of the issue in December of a 5 lepta Charity stamp. It is printed in red, blue and orange and pictures a soldier with arm in a sling, the background consisting of a wreath with Red Cross on white background. It bears the overprint "P.I.P." (Patriotic league). The stamp was on sale for fifteen days at the end of the year. The same stamp has also been issued without the surcharge.

HONDURAS.—The Economist Stamp Co. have shown us the 2c of the 1919 set with the surcharge "Vale Seis Cts." in two lines in black.

HUNGARY.—The Economist Stamp Co. have shown us the 30kr dull red in the usual Parliament type.

IRELAND.—We are indebted to Mr. Eugene Klein, the Economist Stamp Co., Mr. W. T. Wilson and others for copies of the new surcharged stamps of Great Britain for use in this country. All are overprinted in three lines, and the following values have been placed on sale: ½d, 1d, 1½d, 2d, 2½d, 3d, 5d, 6d, 9d, 10d, 1sh, 2s6d, 5sh, 10sh. All are in black except the 2½d and 9d, which are surcharged in red.

Mr. Klein adds that an interesting line variety exists in the higher values, that is, the accent on the second "A" in the first word is missing. This variety exists twice in each sheet of the values above the shilling.

JUGO-SLAVIA.—New stamps of the values of 1, 5, 8, 20 and 30 dinar are expected to be on issue within the next few days.—Stamp Collecting.

BRITISH COLONIAL NEW ISSUE SERVICE

¶ Your Opportunity to Purchase the New British Colonials as issued at a Small Advance over actual Face Value.

¶ Read the details carefully,

¶ Send in the application blank and your deposit.

¶ Join My Two Hundred Satisfied Subscribers and Reap the Reward as these issues become obsolete.

New Issues of the British Colonies are allotted to subscribers under the following conditions:

1—A NOMINAL PERCENTAGE over face value is charged on all stamps imported. This commission covers everything except postage, which is charged up to the subscriber. Present charge for new issues is 27½c per shilling face value. Fluctuations in exchange may necessitate the raising or permit the lowering of my present basis. However, the cost to subscribers is kept below the LOWEST RETAIL SELLING PRICE of any American dealer. I GUARANTEE TO DO THIS or take back the stamps distributed.

2—Stamps which I am unable to secure in sufficient quantity to distribute will be offered in my Special Bargain Lists, issued weekly, subscription price 50c for 50 consecutive numbers just the price of postage. Such stamps are generally provisionals, the number of which is limited by local postal authorities. However, I have succeeded in distributing most provisionals at the regular rates as well as ordinary issues.

3—No subscription can be accepted for special issues nor for specified colonies to the exclusion of others, except that Indian Native States are not distributed at any time. Collectors whose wants are limited to a few countries should subscribe to my Special Lists, where all new issues, both British Colonial and other foreign, are quoted as received.

4—A deposit is required from all subscribers at the commencement of their subscription, and the value of each distribution must be remitted on its receipt, so as to keep deposit intact. Deposits are for a very nominal sum and are required to assist in financing the service, profits from which are very small. The saving to subscribers over regular rates much more than compensates them for the small sum they keep on deposit.

5—The minimum subscription that can be accepted is for one copy each of all stamps up to and including a face value of one shilling and for this an initial deposit of $5.00 is required. If pairs, strips or blocks are desired, deposits must be increased in proportion. Exact deposit requirements are as follows:

Up to and including 1s face	$ 5.00
Up to and including 2s 6d face	8.00
Up to and including 5s face	10.00
Up to and including 10s face	15.00
Up to and including £1 face	25.00
Up to and including all issued	45.00

6—Distributions are made monthly, except when the number of new issues received during the month are too few. All stamps are sent at subscribers' risk. Letters will be registered on request at subscriber's expense.

7—The signing of the order form provided herewith will be taken as a definite order for the stamps specified, same to include all British Colonials within the limits set with the exception of Indian Native States.

8—The terms quoted apply only to the special New Issue Service. Stamps to order or repeat orders will be supplied at regular rates.

9—Two months' notice is required for the discontinuance or for any alteration thereof, such notice to date from the first day of the next month following its receipt.

NOTE: — Names of subscribers who will gladly attest the efficiency of the Service will be furnished on request. For reference I refer you, by permission, to Willard O. Wylie of this paper or to the Secretary of the American Stamp Dealers Association, of which I am a charter member.

There's A Big Difference!

Probably every reader of MEKEEL'S has noticed our advertisements of packets and collections from time to time. Possibly many of them, right on the verge of sending in an order, recalled the unsatisfactory "packets" they had bought in times gone by and decided not to take another chance. It is this evil that must be combatted, for as soon as prejudice against "packet buying" is eliminated in the collectors' minds, there will be an unprecedented rush and an enormous demand for offerings of this class. Quality is the keyword to success in this undertaking—and HARRISCO packets are synonymous with "Quality Clear Through." There are packets and packets—there's a big difference! HARRISCO packets are advertised as containing all different, undamaged postage stamps, all especially selected for condition, either lightly cancelled or unused mint, with duplicates, "seconds", revenue stamps, cut squares, and other objectionable material eliminated. Secondly, Harrisco packets are unusually low in price—so low that the biggest buyers are dealers, who remount the stamps on approval sheets and make good profits when selling them at 50% discount!

If you are collecting stamps not only for the pleasure, but also with the investment end in view, you can save hundreds of dollars by purchasing Harrisco (mounted) packets of from 3,000 to 30,000 varieties at the special low pirces now quoted. The few duplicates which might be obtained by such a purchase can easily be disposed of in society or exchange books—or we will buy them back from you ourselves at a good price. Investigate this proposition today—it is worth money to you!

UNSOLICITED FROM A VERMONT DEALER

"I received the 10,000 variety (mounted) packet today and am certainly well pleased in every way. I expect to remount the stamps on approval sheets in a few days and will perhaps require another one very shortly. It seems to me that any live wire dealer ought to make a good profit out of your larger variety collections."—Milo C. Reynolds, Burlington, Vt.

Scores of similar testimonials are on file. And remember that you are doubly protected by our iron clad MONEY BACK GUARANTEE—money refunded without question if you are not absolutely satisfied!

Ten Thousand Varieties

PRICE $155.00

Here is a collection "de luxe" and one that we can recommend to any collector, as it not only contains a large number of medium-priced stamps of the slippery, hard-to-get type, but also a lot of good ones from British, French and Portuguese Colonies, Europe, etc., cataloguing up to several dollars each. Practically all countries of the world, from the oldest to the newest, are represented, and there are scores of attractive picture stamps, new issues, and other novelties. The collection is also desirable for any dealer with counter trade, as it is neatly mounted in ten ruled approval books and needs only to be priced and put on sale. Never before have we been able to offer such out-and-out value in a medium-priced collection—just think of getting 10,000 all different stamps at just about 1½ cents each! Send in your order immediately on our Money-Back Guarantee—you will never regret it!

PRICE $155.00

FREE PREMIUM! To convince the most conservative and in order to doubly show our sincerity and desire to prove the excellent value of this collection, we will present to every cash buyer, absolutely free of charge and with our compliments, all of the following: 1 set Trinidad Nos, 81-2-3, lightly cancelled (cat. $30.50), 10,000 Superior Hinges in boxes (value $1.50), 1 Peerless loose-leaf album (value $2.50), as well as a Surprise Package containing a magnifying glass, pocket stock book, stamp tongs and other philatelic articles for your "Stamp Den." Send in that order today—YOU CAN'T LOSE!

TWENTY THOUSAND VARIETIES

PRICE $895.00

Words cannot do justice to the aristocratic and thoroughbred appearance of this excellent assembling, nor to the fineness and quality of the stamps contained therein. It is easy enough to get together 20,000 stamps of a kind, including telegraphs, cut-squares, and other unlisted varieties, but it is a different matter to obtain a collection of the same number of standard varieties, all in the pink of condition, and containing a number of the scarcer stamps cataloguing up to $10 or $15 each. We will back the quality of this collection against all comers, and the best proof of our sincerity is our guarantee of "Complete Satisfaction or Money Back." The collection is mounted by countries in twenty ruled books and is ready for immediate transferring into your albums. All countries of the world are represented, 20th century and new issues are quite strong, but the older issues are by no means conspicuous for their absence. All in all, a wonderful buy for the man who has the money to spare if he is assured that the investment and value are there!

TESTIMONIAL FROM A DEALER

"Am in receipt of the British Colonial packet ordered under date of January 5, 1923. I thank you for your prompt attention to this order and can assure you that the collection comes up to my highest expectations."—H. C. Argenbright, "Old Dominion Approvals," Staunton, Va.

We offer this month an especially fine collection of 1,500 BRITISH COLONIES ONLY, of such good value that it ought to interest any progressive dealer, collector or exchanger. There are certain outstanding Points of Quality which put this collection in a class of its own.

(1) British Colonies only—absolutely no Great Britain.
(2) Every stamp is distinctly different:—no watermark, perforation, or other minor varieties. With the thousands of changed watermarks now appearing, this point alone means an increased value of from 25% to 40% in the collection as a whole.
(3) Picked copies only; to our knowledge there is not a damaged specimen in the entire collection
(4) About 20% of the stamps are unused, mint, and small, out-of-the-way countries such as Turks Islands, Virgin Islands, Antigua, Zanzibar, Maldives, Cyprus, Dominica, Lagos, Montserrat, Sarawak, Togo, Papua, etc., are extraordinarily well represented.
(5) The collection is neatly hinged in a large, blank approval book and can be easily classified and remounted into the collector's albums or the dealers' approval sheets.

ONLY A VERY FEW OF THESE SUPER-COLLECTIONS HAVE BEEN ASSEMBLED, SO AN EARLY ORDER IS ADVISABLE!

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited, as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—The Y. Souren Co. informs us that there are dangerous forgeries of the first issue Azerbaidjan on the market. The firm recently advertised sets of these stamps, but is returning money on orders received. They advise us that the counterfeits show differences of paper and gum and the "sign."

—A new advertising cancellation comes from Hartford, Conn., reading:—"Connecticut Winter Exposition, Jan. 23-27 Hartford".

—J. S.—It is not likely that we shall publish very soon a complete article on the stamps of Ireland. Several articles have appeared in Stamp Collecting and we suggest that you communicate with this publication, 89 Farringdon St., London, England.

—We note an article in the metropolitan press, The Postage Meter, by Frederick J. Haskin. The clipping before us is from the Pittsburg Gazette-Times, but the article is no doubt syndicated.

—E. N. Costales has sent for inspection a photograph of the fine Millbury, which was sold in the Scott Stamp & Coin Co.'s auction sale of January 29.

—Joseph V. K. Wells of the Home of the Postage Stamp sends us a Russian cover, upon which, in addition to thirty other stamps are no fewer than twenty-two copies of the 100,000 rubles stamp. It is some cover.

—The 6 sen Japan in the brown shade, type of 1913 issue, must be No. 151, as listed in Scott's catalog. This stamp was recently reported by B. D. Lewis and is evidently not a new issue.—A. C. GAKENHEIMER.

—E. Pleva.—The stamp you submit is a French revenue. We note your statement that you are "a pretty advanced collector, although only ten years of age," and sympathize with your ambition, as you express it, "When I get old I can sit around and sell stamps." The managing editor has had his experience in buying and selling and knows the lure of the business.

—The Liberty Stamp Co., St. Louis, Mo., would like the address of a collector in Newark, N. J., who failed to enclose name with order.

—"Adlette" is the name of a house organ published by Maitland Milliken, Foster Bldg., Denver, Colo. It lists a number of novelties and will be sent to any applicant.

—We do not make it a practise to chronicle Canadian advertising cancellations. However we recognize the courtesy extended us by J. Abram who sends us the following with a St. John, N. B., marking:—"Drive to the Right in New Brunswick".

—Herbert T. Putnam writes us that the Glens Falls (N. Y.) Philatelic Club was organized Tuesday, October 10, and three meetings have been held. The club now has sixteen members and nearby collectors are advised to write the secretary, J. T. Davis, 12 Pine St., Glens Falls, N. Y., for information.

—"I note that Dr. Collins wants some articles published on the provisionally surcharged Narcotics, no doubt it would be a good thing for all those interested. Along this line I might say that on Jan. 20 I advertised Scott's No. 4300. There has only been 32 copies of this stamp known and I was lucky enough to get them all—have only 8 copies left. Also have a number of the Cinti and Trenton surcharges, which were also advertised Jan. 20. Ward had a copy of No. 4300 and that is the way it got into the Catalogue. There are a great many collectors interested in the Narcotics, so why not tell them something about them?"—A. E. HUSSEY.

RUSSIAN CURRENCY IN RELATION TO ITS POSTAGE STAMPS.

By Edward E. Goodchild.

Many times within the past few months I have received inquiries as to whether I could account for the great differences appearing in the value of stamps required to carry letters from Soviet Russia. For the benefit of those interested in the postage stamps of this Country, I append the following particulars in the hope same will be of service.

A letter arrives, say, with ten of the old Imperial 5kp stamps, whilst another has fifty of the surcharged 100,000 Roubles on 250 Roubles of the Soviet issue. This is ofttimes followed, especially within the past few weeks, with stamps to the value of only 150 Roubles, but of the latest Soviet commemorative issues. An explanation of the first has previously been given. The simple expedient of giving an Imperial Kopeck (one cent) a franking value of 10,000 Soviet Roubles. Thus the 5 Kop. has a franking value of 50,000 Roubles (twenty-five thousand dollars). Ten of such equal 500,000 Roubles, or more than sufficient to pay the postal charge of 450,000 required to carry a letter. The second instance, that of a letter arriving with five million Roubles attached, is due to the deflation of the Rouble value at the time of such issue, the Rouble at that period only having a value of a five-hundredth part of the previous paper Rouble.

On top of this comes a new monetary value. Each Rouble of the latest Soviet paper Rouble is equivalent to one hundred previous Rouble value, and which in itself is equivalent to one million previous Roubles. Thus we get letters with a numeral value of 150 Roubles in the latest Soviet stamps which actually represent a value of one hundred and fifty million Roubles of original Soviet paper money.

The necessity for such high financing and juggling can be more readily understood when on their own statement the Soviet authorities themselves admitted in July, 1922, there was 271,236,000,000,000 paper Roubles in circulation. This sum is of course beyond human understanding. It represents 271,236 times one billion, or 271,236,000 times one million.

Were the Soviet Rulers of Russia to possess every ounce of gold which has been mined since the human race began, the Russian Soviet circulating medium would be so flimsy a gold basis as to render it worthless.

The next discontinuance of subscriptions will concern all subscribers whose wrappers bear the numbers 1672 to 1675 inclusive. Just glance at your wrapper immediately in order to make sure that your subscription is paid up. You have ample time in which to renew and be saved the inconvenience of a discontinuance. Moreover, under our new system we are making no plans for furnishing back numbers and subscribers must not expect that we can supply back numbers when we have made every effort to notify them.

We are satisfied that the system we have inaugurated is the only one under which a newspaper can do business these days, and subscribers must understand that free copies of the Weekly will not be sent to those who are in arrears.

The Managing Editor.

CONFEDERATES—AND PRETENDERS.

A CHAT ABOUT FERRARY'S WONDERFUL COLLECTION OF CONFEDERATE STATES STAMPS.

By FRED. J. MELVILLE.

"You must be a fool if you think every southern postmaster had nothing to do but make stamps." Thus wrote a peppery confederate postmaster to the late J. W. Scott, more than half a century ago. And yet, if one glances through the Ferrary "Confederates" and kindred items it would seem as though a very large number of those southern post-office gentry really did find time to produce something in the nature of stamps. There are nearly two hundred towns named, a large proportion of them being unknown to the ordinary catalogues. They range from Abingdon to Yazoo City. Quite a mass of them are not stamps at all, but envelopes bearing postmarks and postal markings. As Scott's catalogue points out, it is often difficult to determine whether these markings were made and issued as provisional stamped envelopes, or whether they merely indicate that the postage was paid at the time the letter was handed in at the post-office. Occasionally the same mark was used for both purposes.

The prices realised by these items at the third and fourth sales afford some guide to the measure of recognition meted out to these stamps or postmarks by the cogniscente in America. This must not be regarded, however, as always a trustworthy indication of the acceptance or rejection of particular specimens, for the number of American bidders at the sales was very limited, and in some cases there was little or no competition. At least a few bargains went, I hope, to our American cousins to hearten them for further lightning trips across the Atlantic on the stamp hunt.

Athens.—I propose to deal chiefly with the adhesive stamps, and those envelopes which are with some degree of certainty provisional issues of stamped envelopes. The Athens (Georgia) stamps are not attractive specimens of adhesives. "Unwholesome beast" was Pemberton's comment on a purple Athens bought in for 30s at the first London stamp auction in 1872. The same discerning pioneer further remarked concerning this issue that "no stamp ever bore a 'bogus' character on its face so ostentatiously as this one." (The Mt. Lebanon atrocity had not been discovered then!). But the Athens, which come in two colours, 5c plum and 5c vermilion, each in two types, have full recognition in the catalogues now, and as a contrast in terms, Mr. Chas. J. Phillips tells of "a most magnificent specimen" of a 5-cent vermilion on entire letter. As to prices, a pair of the plum-coloured stamp used on letter (? out of the Ayer coll.) brought £19; three poor copies went together for £6 15s; while of the red rarity, two good single used copies sold for: Type I, £43; Type II, £59.

Baton Rouge.—Every collector has heard of the Baton Rouge stamps, now high priced; the look of a 5c always recalls the shattered dream of my earliest collecting days when I found amongst an odd lot a beautiful bright carmine and green specimen unused—it was some years before I woke up to its spurious character. It did not seem to me then that this was the sort of stamp that could be easily counterfeited, yet a very large proportion of the copies known are probably forgeries. No one can tell how many varieties there are for there has never been enough material obtained to reconstruct the settings. Tradition has it that there were 25 stamps to the sheet, but very likely there were only 10, and if all the owners of 5c specimens put their heads, or still better their stamps together, the ten or twenty-five varieties might be identified. The stamps, like many other of the most interesting and rare provisionals, were set up and printed in the office of the local newspaper, the quaintly-named Cornet and Gazette, the editor of which had probably stirred the local postmaster, J. McCormick, to take the step of issuing stamps, by an editorial note in that journal for July 10, 1861. The stamps were issued the same month.

The 2 cents green is a very rare stamp. Messrs. Gibbons assess it at £150 used; the unused one I illustrate fetched £93 at the Ferrary sale, and another unused, but with less margin brought £40 15s, and a defective used copy of the error "McCcrmick," £27 10s. There were five specimens of the 5c, only one of which was at all good (£13 10s used, error McCormick), and the interesting used (but torn) copy illustrate of the rarest of the set, the 10c, dated Oct. 3, 1861, fetched £125. Messrs. Gibbons assess this almost "unattainable" stamp at £500 used.

LAND Thanks to excellent connections in Ireland I am enabled to furnish new issues promptly. I also have a stock of the various settings and printings of the provisionals which I can offer at fair prices. It is still possible to complete this country. Further particulars on application.

H. F. COLMAN 2ND NATIONAL BANK BLDG., WASHINGTON, D. C.

That curious spider-bordered 5c (Gibbons type 3) does not figure in the catalogue, but there was a genuine one in the sale in a combination lot.

Beaumont.—Ferrary's copies of the Beaumont (Texas) provisional, a simple type-set affair, included a terribly poor used copy of the yellow, the first specimen of this issue ever known to collectors. It was found by Mr. A. M. Rareshide in 1895, and was secured about that time by Ferrary; the latter probably paid a good deal more than the £9 which was the figure it realised at the third Ferrary sale. Later, this stamp was discovered on rose paper, an uncancelled copy of which, on entire letter, brought £63 10s. Gibbons quote £300 for the yellow and £200 for the rose, used.

Bridgeville.—A pair of Bridgeville (Alabama) 5c black and red, used on letter, fetched £166; the catalogue illustration shows nothing of the design, only the hand-ruled squares of red ink within which the "Paid 5" was handstamped. This scarce item was acquired by Mr. Caspary.

Chapel Hill.—Chapel Hill is in North Carolina, but not in the "catalogues." With its college it is an important centre of education—the "Oxford" of North Carolina—and a likely place where stamps might have been issued during this period. The stamp of Chapel Hill in the Ferrary collection was a weirdly primitive thing, reading "PAID 10" in red on a small scrap of azure paper adhering to an envelope. Little is known of it. Mr. R. F. Albrecht found it a good few years ago and sold it to Ferrary. Along with a number of envelopes it was sold (lots 599, 600 and 601) for £43.

Charleston.—Charleston (South Carolina) 5c stamps are not uncommon, and there was a considerable batch of the impressed envelopes, but most of them were forgeries, only three or four genuine ones in the lot Danville.—The 5 cents red type-set stamp of Danville (Virginia), a fine copy used on piece of original fetched a record figure, 13,000 francs (£325); in style it closely resembles the Pittsylvania, which was produced in the same printing office of the Democratic Appeal, a newspaper that was published by Mr. William D. Coleman, the postmaster of the town. It is a type-set stamp formed of printers' combination border, and with the words PAID 5 CENTS W. D. COLEMAN P. M. The price paid for this is about five times what any Danville has ever brought before, and it was acquired by Mr. Caspary.

Emory.—The Emory, Virginia, another handstamped crudity, is one of the most interesting of the adhesive hand-stamped items, the stamps being made by striking the impressions on the margins of the 1c (1857-60) regular United States stamps. The 5c blue on letter fetched £77.

A Franklin (North Carolina) 5c blue on buff envelope, said to be unique, went to Mr. Caspary for £166.

The Fredericksburgs (Virginia) issued by R. T. Thom, are not among the rarities, but a fine used pair of the 5c. brought £25; in this state it is exceedingly rare, making up ten cents' worth of postage, and it may be noted that no genuine used 10c of this issue is known. A single 5c blue used on letter brought £6 15s; a 10c red, supposed used, realised £9 10s, a price which would have been out of all relation to its rarity if it had been genuinely used.

Down Texas Way.—Goliad (Texas) provides some of the rarest of these issues, and Ferrary's pair of the 5c black on azure, used, brought £287, the left-hand stamp being the mis-spelt variety "GOILAD." Mr. Caspary secured this exceptional item.

A 5c black on rose of the same town, but a different type from the pair illustrated, "Goliad" being in italics, used on piece of original, brought £54.

A 5c black on deep blue, said to be the only one used on envelope, brought £104; there are, however, two or possibly three others. There is one copy cut from the stamp on this very envelope, which formerly bore a pair, and there was another in the Worthington collection.

A 5c black fetched £75.

Three of the 10 cents fetched varying prices, due to their condition.

A fine GOLIAD on azure, used, £166.

A damaged GOILAD (error) on azure, used on letter, £26.

A good Goliad on rose, used on letter, £79.

The Goliad stamps were set up in the office of a local newspaper, the Messenger, owned by a Methodist preacher, Mr. A. M. Cox, but how many went to the make-up of a sheet is not known. Mr. Cox was his own compositor and printer, but had not been trained for the job.

A Druggist's Label as a Stamp.—Another of the Texas postmasters' provisionals, that of Gonzales, looks as little like a postage stamp as anything could. It looks what it is, viz., a bookseller's or druggist's label in gold on dark blue or on garnet. But there is evidence that this was used temporarily by the post-ster, Mr. J. Law, and for philatelic poses it would be of little interest unle the specimen is used on the original cer. In that condition it is rare, and a air of the 5c on blue in the Ferrary ction was on the entire, affixed to th left hand top corner of the envelope, an postmarked several times. It is addssed to J. F. Miller, of Miller & Sayer, a banking house at Gonzales, Mr. Mler being at the time on active service wh the 8th Texas Cavalry. This rare itn—only three such pairs are known—ws secured by Mr. Colson for £100, wle a single, a poor cracked specimen, oliterated, but not on letter, of the stnp on garnet, only brought a trifle or £4.

OBSOLETE BRITISH COLONIALS AT BARGAIN PRICES

Like the early Brazils advertised last week, this stock of British Colonials came to us through accident. For the most part they are 19th century stamps, with a small percentage of Edwardian issues. Packet No. 1—80 varieties obsolete British Colonials, including several varieties each of British Africa & Uganda, Cyprus, Fiji, Hong Kong, Indian States, Jamaica, Mauritius, New Zealand, North Borneo, Sarawak, Straits Settlements, Malay States, Johore, Transvaal, Trinidad, etc. A very unusual bargain, for $1.00.

J. O. MOORE, Inc., RHEIMS, N. Y.

there is a genuine adhesive stamp of Greenville, and but little can be ascertained with certainty of the true types. So far as my records go the best authenticated types have the words PAID FIVE or PAID TEN in one line above GREENVILLE, ALA or Greenville Ala. The stamps are supposed to have been made by Judge B. F. Porter, who was postmaster of the town during the Confederacy, and I should imagine they are the only stamps ever printed and issued by a judge; he made them himself on an amateur printing outfit, so it is very difficult to ascertain how many of the types are right; there were many specimens in unauthenticated types which have been "credited" to the notorious S. Allen Taylor, Dr. Petrie and N. F. Seebeck.

Greenwood.—The Greenwood (Virginia), a handstamp cum manuscript production of the most primitive description was represented by two copies, each on entire. Mr. Griebert bought one for £37 12s, while Mr. Warren Colson secured the other for £31 15s.

Grove Hill.—A good copy of the Grove Hill (Alabama) woodcut production, used on the letter, was secured by Mr. Griebert for £167; it was a "gift" at the price, for it is one of only two such pieces known. The first copy of this of which I find any trace is in one of Ventom, Bull & Cooper's sale catalogues (Nov. 26-29, 1894), covering the sale, at Mr. R. F. Albretcht's instructions, of the collection of a New York collector, wherein is the item "Grove Hill, Ala., 5c black on white, used on original, a stamp uncatalogued and unknown heretofore, probably the only copy in existence." It sold for £50. There was another in the Ayer collection, on cover. Gibbons assess it at £500 in the "unused" column, which is probably a printer's error and intended for the "used" column.

The Two Values of Helena.—A 5c black on buff, and 10c black azure, of Helena (Texas), were sold in a mixed lot of 24 items, including some Greenvilles, for 4050 francs, and a defective 10c Helena on azure, illustrated, brought £21. The stamps were probably modelled on those of the neighboring town of Goliad, but nothing definite is known of the settings. The 10c is something of a mystery stamp—a later discovery than the 5c on buff, which was known to the early collectors—but if our surmise be correct that it belongs to the same little family circle as the Goliads—there may well have been the two denominations.

Independence.—The adhesive 10c circular stamp of Independence (Texas), black on buff, used on the entire letter, brought £71, said to be one of but two copies known. It also exists (according to Gibbons) on red paper. The Independence adhesive is a modern discovery, the first copy being found by Mr. E. D. Dorchester of Velasco, Texas. It is addressed to Messrs. T. W. House & Co., Houston, Texas, in the handwriting, so it is said, of Major A. G. Haynes, a wealthy planter of Independence. John McKnight was the postmaster of the place, and is credited with being a handy sort of fellow, who whittled out the design on a piece of oak wood with his clasp-knife. Ferrary got his at "a fancy price," but I can find no trace of how the other one on red paper got into Gibbons' catalogue, or where such a specimen is now.

Jetersville.—One of the freakiest of these items is the Jetersville (Virginia) which consists of a handstamped "5" and the manuscript initials AHA, all in black on white wove paper, and here we have the freak en paire on entire letter, the only pair, indeed the only specimens, known. It has gone back to the States in the care of my friend Colson. The initials are those of A. H. Atwood, the postmaster. The cover was found in 1894 and passed into the possession of the Scott Stamp and Coin Co., who sold it to Ferrary.

An Unique Knoxville.—Knoxville (Tennessee) provides a comparatively common 5 cents red, but the 10 cents green of the photograph, which is on the entire letter, is supposed to be the only known copy; it brought £145. It is addressed to

Mrs. Jane M. Tiller,
Ashland,
Hanover County,
Va.

and was obtained by Mr. O. D. Walbridge of Marseilles, Illinois, about 1886, and he sold it to J. S. Smith of Oak Park, Ill., in September, 1892, and the latter sold it to F. T. Hoyt in October.

There are reprints of the 5c in brown and scarlet on wove and laid paper, but they are readily distinguishable from the originals which are on a greyish laid paper.

Lenoir.—Lenoir is in North Carolina, and the postmaster's provisional, which is not rare, is handstamped in blue on paper ruled with orange coloured rectangles. A fine single fetched £15, while the one on entire, not being perfect, fetched £7 10s. Sir William Avery had what purported to be the first impression ever struck of this stamp, with an affidavit to that effect.

Livingston.—One of the nicest items in this section of the Ferrary collection was a pair of the 5 cents blue Livingston (Alabama) used on the entire letter, which Mr. Colson secured for £517. This is the best production of the lot of these Confederate postmasters' provisionals. J. W. Scott classed it as a lithograph in 1871, and I imagine he was right, but the Catalogue for Advanced Collectors and Messrs. Gibbons agree in describing it as a typographed stamp. A Livingston fetched $780 (£156) at auction in New York in 1892, which was probably a record price for any stamp at auction up to that time. Two single copies, used, were also sold, one going to Mr. Hind for £77 and the other to Mr. Colson for £112.

By P. M. Wolsieffer.

(The following is a copy of a strong communication addressed the Third Assistant Postmaster General by Mr. Wolsieffer in favor of a 13c stamp. If you are interested in this matter, please communicate with Washington. —W. O. W.)

Several years ago, during the War Period, when the postage was increased to 3c, I had the honor of addressing a letter to your Department, suggesting a 13c stamp for the purpose of having but one stamp to place on registered mail matter. The department courteously wrote to me, acknowledging the receipt of the communication and asking me about how many I thought I would be able to use in the course of a year, for postage, if such a stamp were issued. I replied that, altho my business was small, I could use on registered mail and parcel post packages at an average of about 150 a month. Sometime later the department issued the 13c stamp.

I now have occasion to repeat my plea, and request for a 13c stamp. I note its absence in the beautiful new set that is now appearing and it has always been my idea that we should have all values, for business purposes, from 1c to 25c inclusive. This is not only a great convenience to large mail order concerns, because of the various amounts they use on parcel post packages, but it is also economy to the Government if one stamp could be used instead of two or three to make a combination. The 13c stamp is still useful and in demand, altho I understand that its use has been very limited, but I would respectfully call your attention to the fact that a parcel post package weighing 10c, insured for 3c would be 13c, again a parcel post package weighing 8c, insured for 5c, would be 13c. Again, there are many straight packages used at 13c. I have interviewed several postal clerks at our postal station and the main post-office, and they all agree that a 13c stamp is useful and they have frequent calls for 13c postage on packages and parcels.

Several of the clerks informed me that they thought the principal reason that the 13c stamp was not so popular, was because of the old superstition that thirteen was most unlucky and unfortunate, and if that be true would it not be a good idea to combat this superstition in our country?

CLARENCE H. EAGLE.

By Harold D. Watson.

On December 27, 1922, Clarence H. Eagle died at his home in Port Washington, L. I., after an illness of some months, in the sixty-sixth year of his age.

About twenty-five years ago Mr. Eagle began the collecting of Match and Medicine stamps, through the accumulation of which he became known to collectors in every part of the United States; and after twenty years of the most careful and painstaking efforts, he was able to amass the finest collection of these stamps ever made. During all of this period he studied these most interesting stamps with the utmost care and much of the information as to them, now obtainable, was gathered by him. He was always ready to answer inquiries within his knowledge, and he will be remembered by scores of collectors by his kindliness in this regard. When the limit in this line was reached his interest flagged somewhat, and the collection was sold in its entirety to a dealer in New York and is now dispersed.

About five years ago Mr. Eagle began in earnest to collect the regular issues of United States stamps, in single form and in blocks, and his collection of these was magnificent, especially of the 1869 set, of which no finer collection is in existence. In due course of time all of these stamps will be offered for sale, and the collectors, generally, will have some of the pleasure of the possession of these gems that he had in his time. His collection of proofs in twenty bound volumes has been left in his will to the Congressional Library, where all will have the opportunity of inspecting them.

By the death of Mr. Eagle philately has lost one of its shining lights and many collectors have lost a kind and faithful friend.

AUSTRIAN AIR MAIL.

By BENEDICT PRIETH.

n re “Austrian Air Mail,” your corrpondent, Mr. Joseph A. Steinmetz, is i error when he says that “Flug Ausgallen,” may mean “Dropped Air Mil,” “Ausgefallen,” in the sense as ud in the expression, “Flug Ausgeflen,” can only mean one thing, viz.: “light Omitted,” meaning that some o particular flight did not take place, i which case the letter or parcel was no dbt forwarded by rail. Under no circnstances can “Flug Ausgefallen” man “Dropped Air Mail.” To render th latter in German, the expression, “ug Fallen Gelassen”, would have to bused.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited, as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—We have received from A. Leon Adutt a set of very fine photographs showing some of his purchases at the Ferrari auctions. Mr. Adutt is a well-known specialist in U. S. and the line of covers shown in these photos makes a philatelic feast. We were overwhelmed with requests for the previous lot of photographs submitted, and while we acknowledge the courtesy extended by Mr. Adutt, we cannot make the same offer as was made previously.

—“Kindly permit me to correct a correction. In your issue of Jan. 20 Mr. Steinmetz takes issue with your translation of the phrase ‘Flug Ausgefallen’ as it appeared on certain Austrian Air Mail covers. Your rendition is absolutely correct, the meaning of tne phrase being, literally, ‘Flight fallen out’, namely—fallen out of the scheduled series of flights planned.”—H. G. ZERVAS.

—L. L. Heinselman informs us that he has just received a Russian cover upon which are 120 stamps of the 7500 rubles value. The size of the entire block of stamps is eighteen inches by nine. This is some cover.

—We have been shown by Frank A. Goldsmith an advertising cancellation reading as follows:—“Winter Carnival, Pittsfield, Mass. Jan.-Feb. 1923.”

—The Elbe File & Binder Co., 215 Greene St., N. Y. City, informs us that they have about forty binders left, suitable for the WEEKLY. It will be remembered that some months ago we disposed of more than one hundred of these binders, and they gave excellent satisfaction. Price $1.50. Address the firm direct.

—B. J. Dattner informs us that he can get no replies to letters addressed William Spiller, 2014 N. 32 St., Philadelphia, Pa.

—V. W. Rotnem will be glad to meet philatelists visiting Boston and may be found at 94 Prescott St., Cambridge, until June 1. The firm's business is transacted as usual from Minneapolis.

—A. A. W.—An index for 1922 will appear in the WEEKLY right away. Copy for the same is already in the printer's hands.

—In response to enquiries from philatelists abroad, the Executive Committee on London Exhibition desires to make it widely known that there is no duty or tax, of any kind whatsoever, on stamps sent or brought into England, and no difficulty need be encountered by Exhibitors, with the Customs in bringing or sending their collections to the Exhibition.

—“Why can't dealers get away from an old time habit and correct catalogue figures as given in the Errata of the new Scott's. Canada No. 15 is priced used at 80c in the catalogue section for Canada—an obvious error which is corrected in the Errata to read 30c. The Plaza Stamp Co. in their ad on page 50 of your anniversary edition calmly show a catalogue of this stamp of 80c and ask 40c for a copy.”—E. C. BARRON.

—Nominations for officers in the S.P.A. are now in order and should be sent at once to Sec. Bennett, 115 McNeal St., Millville, N. J. None of the present officers are candidates for re-election.

—Phillips' Monthly Bulletin has been re-issued after a vacation of several months. The new Bulletin is somewhat different in form from the old list, and as the name indicates, is to be issued regularly each month. The issue for February has just reached us.

IN ENGLAND.

The usual fortnightly meeting of the Thanet Philatelic Society was held at the Grand Hotel, Cliftonville, on January 8th. The principal item on the Agenda was the question that the next Congress be invited to Margate.

The President, Mr. A. Leon Adutt, J. P., reported that the Congress, so far, had been booked up for different places in Great Britain up to the year 1929, with the exception of the year 1927, and it had been intimated to him on more than one occasion that another Congress at Margate would be welcome. He said: “It will be remembered that the previous Congress held in 1912 proved a great success, and the fact that a repetition was desired, would no doubt encourage those present to extend their invitation and improve on previous efforts if possible.”

After further discussion, it was proposed by Mr. C. Nixon of Ramsgate and duly supported by all present, that the Secretary, Mr. Frederick Stanley, be empowered to write to the Congress Committee inviting the Congress of 1927, to be held in Margate. After the usual Bourse and other items had been dealt with, the President, Mr. A. Leon Adutt, then gave a lecture entitled:—“Eighty Years of Postage Stamps;” this lecture was illustrated with 72 lantern slides and much appreciated, as it depicted the progress of Postage Stamps since their inception in 1840, and proved highly interesting, the slides being excellent photographs. On being thanked for his services that evening he was asked to convey the appreciation of all present, and due thanks to Major R. H. D. Lockhart, F. R. P. S. L., who wrote the lecture, and the Congress Committee for the loan of the same.

The next meeting was on Monday, January 22nd, when a display of the postage stamps of Palestine and the 2nd portion of West Indian Georgian Stamps was given by Mr. C. Nixon.

19th Century Mint Greece

A wonderful collection of 19th Century unused Greece. The collection consists of 1025 stamps, every one unused except a single copy of No. 24. In the collection are 332 single copies, 57 pairs, 54 blocks of four and 30 other strips and blocks of various sizes. Of the first type imperf. stamps, Numbers 1 to 53, every major catalog number is shown besides numerous minor numbers and other items that are unlisted by Scott but recognized in specialized catalogues. Of the numbers 54 to 164, a great many of these numbers are included, and some very fine pieces in blocks, etc. are among these items. Everything unused and condition as a whole is very fine. The stamps in this collection are the pick of a large collection that originally catalogued over $10,000 and in this collection we have selected only the gems from the whole collection and made up this lot, which is a superb lot in every way.

At straight catalogue value for single copies, the collection will total around $2500. Making due allowance for prices on pairs and blocks, the actual catalogue valuation will readily total $5000.

We can make a price on this collection that should be interesting to any man who knows the real value of goods of this character. A detailed description with price will be given anyone interested. We will gladly submit the collection for examination to any interested party.

We also offer a remarkable collection of cancellations on Greece stamps, principally early issues and a very remarkable lot that has taken over 20 years to gather.

We also solicit want lists of 19th Century Greece.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

ROBERT DAVID CRAIGHEAD.

MARCH 26, 1873—MAY 19, 1922.

TO R. D. C.

Lover of life and all things good,
Christian, citizen, gentleman,
Stamp collector, seeker of facts,
Traveler, guide and leader of men,
Friend of the poor, friend of the rich,
Best of all men I have known.
A. S. C.

Robert David Craighead began his career as a stamp collector when eight years of age. At twelve his family removed from Indiana to Saratoga Springs, N. Y., his father, Dr. Robert David Craighead, becoming the house physician in the Sanitorium of Dr. Sylvester Strong, his brother-in-law.

This change of residence offered new opportunities for stamp collecting, and while in High School, the young philatelist generally employed a force of fifteen schoolmates to sell his stamps, the proceeds being devoted to his collection.

Robert Craighead continued in Saratoga until twenty-five years of age, collecting stamps and learning the hotel business with the same ardent enthusiasm. In 1898 he decided to start in business for himself, and at this time opened the first Craig Hall in Atlantic City under the firm of Craighead and Craighead, his father being his partner.

As his business prospered, his interests widened until he gradually became identified with most of the movements for Civic betterment in Atlantic City. For many years he was a Trustee of the First Presbyterian Church, an dat the time of his death was the President of the Atlantic City Hotel Men's Association and of the Publicity Bureau. He was a member of Kiwanis and a Director of the Atlantic City National Bank, also Member No. 5266 of the American Philatelic Society and Vice-President of the Philadelphia Stamp Club.

His chief relaxation, besides stamp collecting, was travel, a delightful and inspiring adventure to a philatelist. It was so much more exciting to purchase an Italian stamp for use abroad in Peking, China, or to purchase at Port of Spain, Trinidad General Post Office a one anna India envelope surcharged on two annas six pies that was handed out and used in Trinidad, than to purchase them from prosaic approval sheets, want lists or dealers' stocks.

Mr. Craighead was a general collector, caring less for minor than for the more representative major varieties. His collection numbered over 33,000 different stamps, about 65 Countries being complete in their major varieties. He was very particular as to their condition, and except for those obtained in his boyhood, his stamps were especially well selected.

A fine stamp collection is a very intimate expression of a man's personality. It seems a pity to sell and scatter Mr. Craighead's collection, which represents the joyous occupation of the leisure of a lifetime. At this time, however, Atlantic City is planning to build a greater hospital. Mrs. Craighead desires to devote the funds obtained by the sale of her husband's collection to establish the eye clinic in this institution—as a memorial to Mr. Craighead and the stamps which were so dear to him.

O Spirit rare, death-cancelled though thou art,
Thy gentleness, the greatness of thy heart,
Thy loving wisdom, thy nobility
Continue in despite of that tranquility
By which thou art entranced.

O happy one, for whom even pleasure lends
Another avenue for blessing unknown friends,
Love offers to exchange thy precious stamps
For light, on eyes else dark to shining lamps.

DICTIONARY DEFINITIONS.

By A. H. PIKE.

The "Philatelic Dictionary" published by MEKEEL'S was without doubt the best contribution to our literature produced during 1922. Every reader should assist in suggesting additions, or the improvement of definitions already covered. On one subject, especially, I would like to make some suggestions, but rather than give exact definitions, I would prefer to explain in my own way the meaning each word conveys to me and at the same time cover it as thoroughly as possible so that readers will understand. Words capitalized I would suggest should be included in their proper order in a philatelic dictionary.

POSTAL MARKINGS.—Almost from the earliest known records of letters or parcels being carried from one point to another, some sort of markings have appeared on the missive, placed there by those in whose care the message was intrusted. It is not necessary to give a history or even mention the variety of markings used, but covers are in existence showing dates previous to the year 1600. This antedates the postage stamp by 250 years or more. Many of these markings could not correctly be called postmarks, and none could be called cancellations, for during this period there was nothing in the way of postage stamps to be cancelled. Postal markings is a term used to designate impressions placed on mail matter by an authorized employee of the Post-office Department while he is on duty in his regular capacity of handling mail matter. Depending on the conditions effecting the particular piece in question, or the period during which it was mailed, the impressions as to size, design and general make-up would vary greatly. In defining this term it would not be necessary to enumerate the conditions. This general term can be used in describing any cover from the earliest known to exist to the present time and for all future times. Regardless of what methods might be used by the Postal Service of any country, there will be something in the way of postal markings on mail matter. The only exception we can think of at the present time is the privileges accorded publications having second class mailing rates, which is reckoned by bulk weight.

POSTMARKS. — This word is used by the Post-office Departments of all countries to designate that part of a postal marking which includes the name of a city (post-office), state and country, and when necessary the day, month, hour and year. Postmark impressions previous to 1880 were all made with hand stampers, that is, a device including a block on which was fastened the die on the face and was provided with some sort of a handle so that it could be easily applied. These die faces have been made of metal, rubber, wood, and perhaps other substances. Those who have made postmarks a study can readily distinguish impressions made from rubber or metal. The metal usually giving a clearer cut impression, where the rubber is flattened and a smoother impression.

At the present time and practically since about 1890, the U. S. P. O. Dept. have used exclusively at Fourth Class offices hand stampers with a rubber faced die, and metal faced stampers at first, second and third class offices. It is incorrect to use the word "postmark" for any postal marking other than one which at least includes name of post-office and state.

Since about 1863, hand stampers have been used with the cancellation attached on the same handle with the postmark, although not generally adopted until many years later. They still are used separately in some offices.

About 1885 the rapid cancelling machine was placed in use in some of the larger offices. From the very first machine placed in use envelopes were postmarked and cancelled in one operation. The postmark and cancelling die are two separate and distinct units and each are detachable and replaced separately. In speaking of these impressions, it is necessary to use the word "postmark" and "cancellation" or combining the two, as "postal markings".

Postmaster's stamps used for M. O. B., registered mail, parcel post, etc., are not intended to cancel postage stamps, and for that reason no cancelling die is included on the device. They are postal markings, but more strictly a postmark. There are instances where a postmark is placed directly on a postage stamp, and in this case it is also a cancellation, but more correctly speaking, it still remains a postmark. In most cases of this kind the postal employee, in using a postmarking stamp to cancel the postage, did so contrary to his instructions.

The main thing is to get the correct idea of what is intended and to define words with their true meaning rather than by mistakes of employees.

CANCELLATIONS.—Previous to the adoption of the postage stamp in any country, we could not truthfully say that cancellations appeared on mail matter. The word "cancellation" was not used by the Postal Service until there were postage stamps to be cancelled. When postage stamps were first placed in use practically all existing post-offices had been supplied with a postmarking stamper. This was used in cancelling the postage stamp until a regulation canceller had been provided. During this period the postmaster was required to obtain his postmarking devices in the open market. Various firms were supplying this equipment and these firms early placed on the market a separate hand stamper separate from the postmarking stamp to be used in cancelling the postage stamp. There was no government rules governing this equipmen at the time and postmasters suited their own conveniences and ideas as to the methods they used. They were fully aware of the fact that they must deface the postage stamp or cancel it in such a way that would prevent it being used a second time, but as to the method of doing this they were left to their own judgment and to the influence of manufacturers of such devices.

As a method of economy in some cases, and in others a means of showing their own talents and resourcefulness they carved out of rubber, metal, wood or cork such designs that suited their fancy and mounted these on handles and used this "home made" device to cance the postage stamps. Manufacturers also supplied these in many fancy designs and shapes and sold them to postmasters It did not seem to make any difference to the Post Office Dept. as long as the postage stamps were properly defaced

Somewhere around 1880 an attemp was made to standardize these marking and from that time on cancellation mark were of a more or less uniform desig and more and more of the postmarking devices supplied had a standard desig of canceller attached. Regardless o whether these cancellers were attache to the postmarking stamper or on separate handles, or if used on rapid cancelling machines, they are all classed a "cancellations" rather than postmarks In no sense should these two words b confused. They represent two separat and distinct conditions as well as equipment.

OBLITERATORS.—For a good many years this word has been used to designate a canceller. The dictionary defini tion of this word is "To blot out, t destroy, to render imperceptible, etc. This is not the intent of any cancella tion, although we will have to acknowl edge that at times we find postage stamp so cancelled. However, we must agai confine our definition to the intent rathe than the result in rare cases. If thi word is to be included in our philateli dictionaries, it would seem advisable t state that it has been used incorrectly t designate a cancellation on a postag stamp.

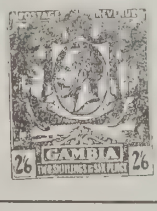
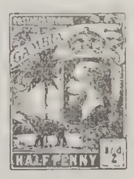
SOME OF THE RECENTLY ISSUED STAMPS OF STRIKING DESIGN.





stage stamps. It is what its name im- ies, a hand device as distinguished from y machine which might be used for the rpose. Handstampers have been used mail matter for the past two hundred ars or more and are still in use, al- ough they have been replaced to a eat extent in the larger offices by the pid cancelling machines. Separate de- ces are supplied postmasters for post- arking and others for cancelling amps. Others are supplied having the stmark and cancellation on the same ad.

CANCELLING MACHINES.—Since 35, rapid cancelling machines, as they e generally called, have been supplied the larger offices, usually of the first ss, and in later years to the second ss and in certain cases to third class ces, depending on the amount of mail tter handled. Although called can- cling machines, they are in every case plied with a postmarking die as well a cancelling die, and perform the two es in one operation at a speed ranging m two to five hundred impressions minute, depending on the class of ma- ne used.

At least fourteen different makes of se machines have been placed on the rket and used in post-offices. Some e discontinued manufacturing and ers have been absorbed by other com- ies.

ADVERTISING MARKS.—Since the ent of the rapid cancelling machines large post-offices, they have afforded portunities of placing additional word- s in the cancellations and some bright d in the Postal Service conceived the a of advertising some national event his connection. This evidently proved antageous, and the practice has con- ued until most of the large offices now special dies of this kind almost con- ously. There is a difference of nion as to the proper designation of se markings. In the true sense of word they are not advertising post- ks, as the advertising part is included in the cancellation. They are more strictly speaking "advertising cancellations", or, as most collectors prefer to call them, "slogan cancellations". This latter we believe is more acceptable to the P. O. Dept.

POSTAL SERVICE. — We believe that a short history, or at least a description of the meaning of the "Postal Service", should be included in a philatelic dictionary. Although all might claim that they knew its meaning, its vast ramifications go even beyond the imagination of most of us. It is through this service that philately was born, and it is this service that is supplying us all with material on which philately thrives. All should be encouraged to study its workings, for "it is the greatest business in the world. It handles more pieces, employs more men, spends more money, reaches more homes and touches more interests than any other human organization". A record of the development of the postal service even in our own country reads like a romance and should be more interesting than fiction.

FAKED POSTAL MARKINGS.—As interest increases in postal markings, the value of postage stamps on the entire or part of the original cover raises the selling price all out of proportion to the recognized catalog value of the stamp alone. This will prompt a certain class of individuals to fake a postmark or cancellation if he thinks by so doing to realize a good profit. This practically compels all philatelists to make a careful study of postal markings, especially in connection with all issues of postage stamps that they specialize in. Stamps "cancelled to order" have a certain appeal to a few collectors, but this practice should be discouraged in every way possible. Postal markings in the true sense of the word are only those used officially on mail that has been actually transported by the Postal Service.

Another class of marking which we would like to have classed as "fakes" is a privately made stamp used on an entire either before mailing or after reaching its destination. We have in mind especially one that was used at Point Pleasant (Ohio) on Grant's birthday. In no stretch of the imagination could this be classed as a cancellation or even a postmark. Whether it was placed on the envelopes before mailing or after does not make any difference. In the first place, it was not official, it did not cancel the postage stamp as the regular postmarking stamp of Point Pleasant was used for this purpose. It is interesting only in the fact that it records an event, but not any more interesting than if it was printed in type in straight lines on a regular printing press.

When material of this kind can be sold, say, at 25c per cover or more, it only encourages individuals of an unreliable class to study ways and means of faking something out of the ordinary Most any of us could place an uncancelled postage stamp on an envelope, address the envelope and fake both the

PAYMENTS BY THE 20th.

We are greatly pleased at the manner in which the vast majority of advertisers are complying with our rule of payment of bills upon presentation. We feel that this rule is absolutely necessary in the conduct of the WEEKLY. A number of advertisers are dilatory in making their payments. Some payments reach us early in the following month, and we must make effective the rule that we have established.

In the future our rule as regards payment upon presentation will be more strictly enforced and where bills are unpaid by the 20th of the month we shall omit advertising from the first issue in the following month. It is our purpose not to add any item of indebtedness to the bills that go out the first of the month.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

Nearly everybody nowadays has some sort of radio set and is receiving the voices of the air with more or less success; and it is a source of much gratification to us to know that an alliance has been made between radio and philately. We have mentioned before that the Burt McCann Company of Minneapolis was the first to join the two together, and we are sure that the consequences of the union will be advantageous to philately. In this connection we have received the following account from Mr. Edwin C. Brown that will be closely followed: "I believe that Miss McCann has advised you of the series of radio stamp talks that are in the process of being broadcast from the Minneapolis station WLAG. However, in my quadruple capacity as president of the Twin Cities Philatelic Society, as one of the 'stamp talkers' as a collector and as a reader of the WEEKLY, I want to add a word about these radio talks, in which no doubt you will be interested. These stamp talks are given by courtesy of the Northwest Farmstead, an agricultural paper of Minneapolis and are broadcast from WLAG, the big Minneapolis radio station; each talk is about fifteen minutes' duration and is given each Friday evening some time between 6.30 and 7.30 o'clock, standard central time. As you know, WLAG is the tenth largest radio broadcasting station in the country and these talks can readily be picked up at most any point on the continent. Arrangement for the giving of a series of talks weekly, to the number of twelve was made by the Burt McCann Company, and full credit for this innovation as far as it concerns philatelic matters is due the Burt McCann Company. These stamp talks are being given by various members of the Twin Cities Philatelic Society, made up of collectors living in Minneapolis and St. Paul. The first of these talks was given Friday evening, January 19, by Philip Little, Jr., on 'Some Benefits to be Derived from Stamp Collecting.' The second talk was given by the writer on the evening of January 26, on 'The Why and Wherefore of Stamp Collecting.' O. J. Olsen, St. Paul, will be 'on' February 2 and Harry S. Swensen, Gerald H. Burgess and others are scheduled to give talks on subsequent Friday evenings at the same hour. As far as I know this is the first occasion on which information as to philately has been disseminated by radio and collectors throughout the country might like to be advised of these talks through your columns. Word has already been received from collectors in various parts of the country, and even from Fresno, California, that Mr. Little's talk, the first given, was heard distinctly. We here are naturally interested in receiving word from those at a distance and it is suggested that those collectors who have 'listened in' drop a line to that effect to the Burt McCann Company, 321 Newton Avenue N., Minneapolis, Minn."

We are made groggy by the reasoning of that philosopher of parts, Herbert Kaufman, in the course of a recent editorial in the King Features Syndicate brain-throbs of the aforesaid pundit. He says that we used a billion more stamps in the last half-year and that as stamps are the messenger boys of business, prosperity makes a cornucopia of each mail sack. He says that we notice that the European nations are not printing more stamps and that presses there are grinding out local money. He adds that if an American army goes to Europe, the American dollar will go to the devil. If Herbert Kaufman were a philatelist, he would be able to speak by the book on stamps, but not knowing of the Neurope stamp-making activities, he gives us the basis for three "hars" and a tiger. If the European nations are not printing more stamps, then a jackdaw sings like a bulbul. Judging from the quantity of new things in stamps that emanate in Europe and find their way to this country, the chief home industry in some of the places is day and night press-work. We understand that about the only prosperity that attends some of the countries who are grinding out stamps comes through the sale of them to collectors. Mr. Kaufman should be on the mailing list of some of the European dealers who shunt the new things over here in fat envelopes, if he would gain a liberal education about the stamp situation at present in the European countries.

Covers received from Memel in the last few weeks have been disfigured, so far as the stamps on the envelopes are concerned, as each of the surcharged French stamps had a corner snipped off, evidently by shears, before it was pasted on the envelopes. Is this an instance of "spite" against the French surcharged stamps? We remember that Dr. Marchand for some time mutilated the revenue stamps that he used in 1898 and the few years following on his preparations, so as to render his special proprietary stamps valueless for collecting purposes, but no such motive can impel the truncation referred to on the Memel stamps. We have received from Lithuania some of the values of the current set with the surcharge "Centu", which we are told has some relation to our "cents". According to a newspaper, the cent is regarded as a standard of monetary unit in Memel!

The Houston Post of January 21, 1923, makes a feature of a large illustration of Confederate locals on covers, with interesting text. The Beaumont, Independence and Goliad stamps are pictured on envelopes, while eight copies of the Goliad five and ten cent are used to fill in the cracks. As the subhead of the article says, these stamps "contribute materially to history of early days". We suspect that Mr. A. C. Schumacher of Houston was the fount of inspiration for the article and we are pleased to read the following observation: "The fact that these stamps illustrated were brought to light in the last few years, makes it possible that others may be discovered in the future, thereby revealing more of Texas' postal history." That is the way to talk, and we trust that the publicity so intelligently given by the Post will bring many happy returns. It should be realized that Confederate locals have an especial historical appeal to the sections that brought them into being and in state historical collections in the South, they should have honorable place.

Here is a modern wrinkle that upsets one of the traditions of the stamp trade. Dealers and collectors alike dream of the possibilities of the old collection in the hands of a person who does not know its value and of the possibility of annexing finds made by non-philatelists. These chances are regarded as a sort of intangible asset of the stamp business. Now, however, comes a dealer who says that he wishes that he could eliminate all non-collectors from his business considerations, as they waste so much of his time that any profit that comes through them is wiped out by the "overhead" in attending to them. In the long run, he finds it better to deal only with folks who know about stamps rather by indulging that hope that springs eternal to encompass a "snap". We suspect that a hard trip just taken by the dealer in the hope of tracking certain rarities to their lair was responsible for this outburst; it is needless to say that he returned bootless, even though he was assured that the stamps were to be found just begging for someone to take them away. Now, the most glowing accounts of finds awaiting discovery have no response for him, and they leave him cold.

We have produced the Manhattan Conglomeration—250 vars., most of them new and recent issues, 100 of them from the Western Hemisphere, south of the Rio Grande. The Manhattan Conglomeration catalogs $10. or more—$1.02.

Now we have created The Morningside Confiscation—15 original covers, some old, some new, all different and in nice condition. The lot catalogs more than $2. If you are a cover collector, or if you like a few nice ones, you'll like this.

The rush of repeat orders and the fact that we can not keep up with the demand but are late in filling orders proves that these offers are bargains. If you think that we have made statements which we can't prove—just treat yourself to one or both of these "M. C.'s" You will find them better than we promised.

THE HOME OF THE POSTAGE STAMP, 510 W. 113TH ST., NEW YORK CITY

Written for MEKEEL'S.

ST. KITTS TERCENTENARY. 1923.

By HARRY E. HUBER.

In connection with the plans for celebrating in 1923 the 300th anniversary of the landing of Sir Thomas Warner and his men at Old Road Bay, and the subsequent colonisation of the island, the issue of a special series of stamps was suggested by the Colonial Postmaster, George H. King, as a means of raising funds for a permanent memorial of the celebrations.

The Colonial Office readily gave permission for the issue of a series of commemorative stamps, and from suggestions submitted by the local authorities, De La Rue & Co., Ltd., were asked to prepare a sketch of a design. This was received at Basseterre in July, 1922, and approved by the Administration with certain modifications, which it was not possible to incorporate in view of the desire to have the stamps in issue as early in 1923 as possible.

In the September, 1922, communique of the Crown Agents, the stamps were announced as being in preparation:

"To mark the Tercentenary of the colonisation of St. Kitts, a complete series of pictorial stamps is being issued, which will be used in the Presidency concurrently with the existing local and Federal Leeward Islands issues during the year 1923.

"The design of the stamps will be a picture representing Old Road Bay, with Mount Misery in the background, and a 17th century ship in the foreground. In addition to 'St. Kitts-Nevis, 1923', and the usual 'Postage-Revenue', the inscription 'The Founding of the Colony of St. Kitts, 1623' will appear under the vignette. The stamps will have the centers in black, and the borders in colour. The following values have been ordered: ½d, 1d, 1½d, 2d, 2½d, 3d, 6d, 1s, 2s, 2s 6d, 5s, 10s and £1."

The stamps were received at Basseterre, St. Kitts, about the middle of December, and were on display in a case, in advance of being issued Tuesday, January 2nd, 1923. They are of large receipt size, horizontal rectangular in form, measuring 30x25 mm., typographically printed in two colors, the center in each case being in gray black. The sheets are of 60 stamps, 5 horizontal by 12 vertical, and the watermark is sideways to the right. There is a double marginal line, the inner one being in the color of the frame, and the outer in that of the vignette.

The vignette shows a 17th century sailing vessel in Old Road Bay, on the west coast of the island (the landing place of Sir Thomas Warner and his men), with Mount Misery (3711 ft. high) rising in the distance. Legend has it that it was in this mountain Christopher Columbus saw a likeness to St. Christopher carrying the infant Saviour on his shoulders, and so gave to the island its name. It is also claimed that the island was named after his patron saint. The vignette is very indistinct, the vessel much too large, and the mountains in the background do not show up to advantage.

The frame design is very elaborate, too much so, in fact, as it takes up space which might better have been used for the vignette. The opening in the frame for receiving the vignette impression is very irregularly shaped, which of course affects the vignette, and detracts considerably from the appearance of the stamps. At the top of the frame "St. Kitts-Nevis" with "1923" in very small figures below, conforms to the vignette opening, which is rounded at the top. At the sides are pillars, inscribed "Postage" at the left and "Revenue" at the right. Squares in the lower corners contain the value, and between these are three lines of lettering, "The Founding —of the Colony of St. Kitts—1623". All inscriptions are colorless. In the upper corners are representations of flowering plants.

There are twelve values to the series, as in the current double medallion series, but the only values so far seen by the writer are the following:—

Jan. 2, 1923. Tercentenary of "The Founding of the Colony of St. Kitts, 1623-1923." Old Road Bay, St. Kitts, with 17th century sailing vessel in foreground, and Mount Misery in background. "Postage & Revenue". Watermarked multiple Crown and script CA, sideways to the right.

1d purple and gray black.
1½d red and gray black.
2d gray and gray black.
3d ultramarine and gray black.

Double Medallion Series, Color Changes, 1922.

A new color has been introduced by the Crown Agents for the 1d stamp of St. Kitts-Nevis, officially termed "blue purple", but in reality, a deep violet. It was issued in August, 1922. In July were issued the 2½d brown and 3d ultramarine. Until the present stock of the 1½d orange on multiple Crown CA paper is exhausted, this value will not be printed in red. The same frame or duty plates were used as previously, but sheets of the 2½d brown and 3d ultramarine have but a single marginal line, that of the vignette plate having been removed. The 1d has a double marginal line as before.

1922. Presidency series, double medallion type. King George V and seal of St. Kitts (2½d) or Nevis (1d, 3d). Watermarked multiple Crown and script, sideways to right. Perf. comb. 14. Unsurfaced paper.

1d deep violet,	August 1922.
2½d brown,	July 1922.
3d ultramarine,	July 1922.

THE CRAIGHEAD COLLECTION.

It is interesting to note that the entire proceeds from the sale of the Craighead collection will be devoted to endowing the eye clinic of the new Atlantic City Hospital, as a memorial to Mr. Craighead. The advertisement of the Philadelphia Stamp Co., elsewhere in this number, will furnish interesting reading.

postmark and cancellation. There are plenty of manufacturers where these special dies could be made. When there is a possibility of selling a hundred or so of these covers at 25c or more, there would be a handsome profit to the faker. To feature such covers as being of value, we are only encouraging fraud.

METERED MAIL.—The first use of metered mail was several experimental mailings sent through the Chicago office during the early months of 1914. Special permission was secured by A. H. Pitney, the inventor of the first machine used for this purpose. It was not until early in 1921 that the Postage Meter Co. actually sold a machine that would print a permit on an envelope that was recognized by the P. O. Dept. as postage. These impressions from metered machines include the name of the post-office and state with day, month and year and sometimes the hour in the postmarking die. The cancellation, or more correctly speaking, the indicia, must contain the permit number, the amount of postage and the number of the meter used. There are several designs of First Class Mail Permits, but only two designs have been used officially that can be classed as "metered mail", and these in all cases show the number of the meter. Those permits that do not show a meter number are not metered mail and should not be so classed.

MAIL PERMITS.—Strictly speaking, this covers classifications of mail matter on which the mailer has secured special permission from the P. O. Dept. at Washington to send out mail without postage stamps affixed. Previous to 1920 only Third Class mail matter was permitted to be sent out in this way. An ordinary design of three or four lines enclosed in a rectangle was printed in the upper right hand corner of the envelope and included the name of the city and state with a permit number and amount of postage.

In 1920 the Postmaster General asked for and obtained from Congress legislation authorizing the extension of the Permit system to first class mail. On June 8, 1920, a firm in Washington, D. C., was the first to take advantage of this privilege. There are five distinct designs of U. S. first class mail permits, only four of which are official. Only two of these designs are of metered mail; the rest are made on ordinary printing presses or on special designs of sealing machines on which a special device has been added to print the indicia. These are classed as permit printers.

Since the adoption of First Class Mail Permits, the P. O. Dept. have permitted users of Third Class Mail Permits to adopt a similar design, but these are invariably sent out without being dated. There is a distinct difference, however, between impressions used on the different classification of permit mail.

THE AUCTIONEER.

By ALBERT SALATHE.

Some months ago I strayed into a jewelry auction sale on Broadway and was rather deeply impressed with the psychology of the auctioneer. I went home and wrote the following verses as a record of what I had seen and heard. There is considerable poetic license, but then, I am only a chemistry professor; I have never had the honor to attend a stamp auction, but mean to right soon. Are some of them like this?:—

"I went to an auction sale today
And saw much jewelry 'given away';
So the auctioneer said, at any rate.
'Here's a cluster, let me see the date;
Yes, 'twas bought in April, nineteen two—
Yes, I'm an Irishman, not a Jew—
A tourmaline cluster set with pearls,
Who's going to buy it for one of his girls?
Eighty dollars is the price on the tag;
Buy it, boys, for Maud or for Mag!
Who'll give me a bid, say fifty, say ten!
One? You don't want it, say ten, say ten!
Two? Yes, I'm giving this thing away;
But you won't get this for two today.
Somebody start it, say ten, say five;
Three? Goodness, gracious, sakes alive!
Four? All right, I'll take your bid,
You're awfully cautious, look out, you'll skid.
Four, four, four, four, four, say five,
The crowd swarms round like bees in a hive;
Will nobody raise that bid of four?
Say five, say five, say four and a half,
Don't stand there asleep like the fatted calf.
Say four and a half, say four and a quarter,
My goodness, folks, I need some water!'
'Four ten' said a boob; 'four ten' went the hammer,
Took the boob off his feet like a Katzenjammer.
The auctioneer worked so hard today
Trying to give good jewelry away."

SYRACUSE (N. Y.) STAMP CLUB.

The artistic and interesting exhibit of the Syracuse Stamp club continues to hold the attention of throngs who are visiting the Syracuse public library, where for the third year it is being held. Thousands of rare stamps of every country and in every design and color fill the large cases.

New selections are being presented from the collections of George P. Weiland, Harry A. Jeffery and A. A. Leve. Including in the display this week are early United States stamps, stamps on original letters, cancellations, United States stamps used during the civil war and marks which were used before stamps came into existence. Another change in the display will be made next Monday. The exhibition will close February 3.

The exhibit has brought together on a common ground many Syracusans and residents of suburban towns. They have not only enjoyed the inspection of the stamps, but have obtained much social enjoyment during the exhibit. New members have been added to the membership of the club and general satisfaction has been expressed over the exhibit.

Mr. Leve, an enthusiastic stamp collector for 30 years, expressed the belief last night that the study of stamps would be introduced in the schools before long. He said it would prove an interesting and profitable mental occupation for boys who today are spending their idle moments in pool rooms.—Post-Standard.

PRO JUVENTUTE.

By W. H. Lawson.

(This is the Paper adjudged by the Selection Committee at Bath to be the best paper before the Ninth Philatelic Congress of Great Britain, and awarded the "Telfer" Cup.)

Vhen we look back and survey the d of philately since these congresses e inaugurated, the outstanding imssion left on the mind is the marked gress that has been made in standardg and stabilizing all matters relating philately. Personally I am satisfied this is but the first wave of a big vard movement of all that belongs to science study, or hobby—call it what will. I am further satisfied that I y all true philatelists with me when ay that one of the most important stions which we, as members of this gress, have to deal with is:—Can devise any means by which philately the future, and, incidentally, these gresses, may be guided by earnest, ghtful, and progressive philatelists? nswer yes unhesitatingly, and the ct of my paper is to endeavour to ine some such means.

efore proceeding to outline such ns as I have in mind, I will mention a few of the excellent reasons why should endeavour to interest our ng friends in our hobby, and (ii) ain "don'ts" which we should keep in mind when dealing with the com- generation of philatelists.

ome of the excellent reasons above rred to are:—

Its real Value as a Hobby.—The without a hobby misses much, and pity him. Now I think it is aded that philately is not only the y of Kings, but also the King of ies. It would be idle to attempt to e the point to such an audience, but an personally testify to the great sure and real recreation that it rds me.

Its Educational Value.—This, n, is now readily admitted, and, so as history and geography in particuare concerned, stamp collecting is helpful to young people.

Its Value in Cultivating the Faculty keen Observation.—Everyone here testify as to this, and anyone who been interested in a number of g people who collect stamps cannot have been astonished at the manner hich the observing powers of many em have been developed.

Its Value in the Direction of Good wship.—Anyone who is a member good philatelic society, or who has the good fortune to attend one of admirably arranged Congresses, at once endorse this opinion. Furmany of us have found that the of stamp collecting has opened up many pleasant companionships and a few real and lasting friendships. ubt if there is anything, other than masonry, which has the same power 'open sesame" as is possessed by p collecting.

e will now deal with the "don'ts," use it is always advisable to get rid egatives" before beginning to erect ucture, if we hope to leave it, when ied, not only lasting, but effective.

1 Don't give indefinite Advice to Bers or to Young Collectors.—It is, I , much more desirable that advice ch a case should be definite, and reasons should be advanced for the e recommended. To an intelligent r girl this is a great deal more satory than to be told—as is done, s own confession, by a well known telist—"Oh, collect what you like, ing and everything." Recommend l means, if you think fit to do so, eral collection, but at the same time t out the real difficulties which will perienced in making anything like presentative one, or, indeed, in ng anything like a "pleasing show," e collection will of necessity have housed in a printed album.

2 Don't hesitate to offer Advice.—I atisfied that advice, if tactfully ofe, is nearly always accepted, very te acted upon, and not infrequently mbered with gratitude at a later te

3. Don't withhold Advice.—I hesitated at first to put this down, as I feel sure that no one in the audience would do this intentionally; but, on thinking the point over, it occurred to me that there might be circumstances under which it might be done unintentionally. Surely the very ethics of philately require that, if we have information of value, we should pass the "good news" on, and, conversely, that we should, whenever possible, point out the "rocks" to be avoided.

4. Don't make Gifts of "throw-outs" —i.e. damaged, badly soiled, or heavily postmarked Copies.—I fear that there are many sinners in this respect—"sinners" simply because we very often in this way unconsciously give the young collector a wrong idea as to what is good and proper. It appears to me to be much better to destroy a damaged stamp, unless it is a really valuable one, than to pass it on. It is most disappointing to a young collector to suddenly find out that what he thought was a reasonably good stamp is worthless because (i) the perforations down one side are missing, or (ii) it has been cut to shape, or (iii) it is hopelessly thinned, or (iv) it is dirty or stained or crumpled beyond redemption, or (v) it is so heavily cancelled that, in place of being a stamp, it would more correctly be described as a good specimen of a very heavy postmark. In this connection I will tell you a story about a young friend of mine who was seven or eight years of age when the following incident happened:—He was away from home, and the lady of the house at which he was staying learned that he had started to collect stamps. The dear old soul—she was nearly ninety years of age—said she would look up some letters with "Swan" stamps on them. Next day, to the great delight of the little boy, a then current low value Western Australia stamp was given to him. The day following he was handed another piece of original with two low valued stamps on it. He was justly delighted, and took his treasure into a corner of the room to have a good look at it. His face clouded, and after a moment or two he edged his way to the side of the old lady, and to her astonishment said: "Thank you, I don't want these stamps; they are not good enough copies for my collection. One of them is all postmark and the other one is torn."

5. Don't let any of your Young Friends be under any misunderstanding as to what advertised "Free Gifts" really mean.—The firms who advertise "free gifts" are business people, and if they give anything away they naturally see that they receive back the price of the "free gift," and usually something more, from the purchases which usually follow.

6. Don't let them, if you can prevent it, develop into School Touts for Firms who specialize in Approval Sheets for Young Collectors.—Agency or commission business of this sort is to my mind objectionable because, as a rule: (a) the "Agent" usually pushes the sale of the stamps for the sake of what he can make out of them; (b) it certainly does not improve the status of the "Agent" in the school, and (c) the stamps on such sheets are usually priced very high.

7. Don't be superior, even unconsciously.—It is not always an easy task to reply, in simple language, to a very simple question. We should, however, try to do so because we know how in the ordinary affairs of life we object to receiving an explanation which is "above our heads" or which is offered with a consciously superior air. A somewhat frequent pitfall in this direction is, I fear, often met with when we are asked to look at a very elementary collection.

WAYS AND MEANS.

Now for the "means" by which we can interest our young friends.

1. Formation of intelligently and progressively conducted Societies managed by the Scholars or Students themselves.—There can be no question whatever but that such Societies are a powerful factor in stimulating an interest in stamp collecting, and incidentally in discovering and developing the philatelist of the future. I lay special stress on the fact that they should be managed by the scholars themselves. This, of course, does not mean but that some little direction may reasonably be given to them at the beginning by some interested senior, but the sooner the members realize that they have to do for themselves, the better for the success of the society, and it begets that spirit of independence which is of so great a value in the development of young people. This principle has been abundantly proved of recent years in connection with ordinary school affairs.

2. Papers, Displays and Competitions by the Scholars.—Here again I think it will be readily admitted by my hearers that this is a most excellent direction in which interest may be stimulated. Personally, I have been much impressed by the excellent character of the papers given in connection with the school society with which I am closely connected. So far as displays are concerned, this unquestionably tends to develop neat arrangement and that sense of balance which is so essential in an effective exhibit or a well arranged collection. With regard to competitions, what I have in my mind particularly is the arrangement of a sheet of so many stamps in a given time. This will be familiar

4,000 Varieties
Price $22.50

Does your collection contain less than six thousand varieties? Do you ever "exchange" stamps? Have you ever had the ambition to become a dealer? Opportunity knocks! Here is a mounted collection of four thousand all different postage stamps—no telegraphs, revenues, cut-squares or other objectionable material—regularly priced at $30.00—for only $22.50! Just about one-half cent per stamp!

For real honest-to-goodness value, this collection has no equal. It contains large numbers of British, French and Portuguese Colonies, lots of attractive South & Central America, as well as a sprinkling of picture sets, new issues, etc., from Europe and Central Europe. Out-of-the-way countries such as Cyprus, Chile commemoratives, Bosnia pictorials, Epirus, Congo, German Colonies, Johore, Quelimane, Persia, Ubangi, Sudan, Siam, Soviet Russia, etc., are well represented.

For the medium collector anxious to add to his collection at the least possible expense, this packet will mean the saving of many dollars. For the exchanger or small dealer, it represents large profits and a quick turnover. The stamps are mounted by countries in eight large approval books. When priced for sale, they will net about $60, which means a catalogue value of at least $120.00. Money cheerfully refunded if you are not well satisfied. Don't delay—order today!

PRICE $22.50

British Colonies
(MOUNTED)
1,000 Varieties for $16.95

The most popular stamps are those of the British Colonies; furthermore, they are good investments, attractive in appearance, and are seldom to be obtained at large discounts from catalogue.

We offer this month a collection of 1,000 different British Colonies (no Great Britain)—standard varieties only, which will be equally interesting to collector or dealer. Every stamp is distinctly different, which means a total absence of watermark, perforation or other minor varieties. Many unused specimens will be found, and practically all of the Colonies, including Antigua, Brunei, early Canada, Somaliland, British Honduras, Palestine, Falklands, Hejaz, Nauru, Niue, Zanzibar, etc., etc., are represented. Commemoratives, war stamps, provisionals and occupation issues are in great abundance. The stamps are either unused, mint, or lightly cancelled, used, and particular pains have been taken to exclude all straight edged, heavily cancelled, perforated, or otherwise defective copies.

The collection has our sincere recommendation as an excellent investment for the most conservative. Send in an order immediately at our extraordinary price! You will receive an agreeable surprise!

PRICE $16.95

Portuguese Colonies
(MOUNTED)
CAT. VALUE—$120

Some collectors try to cry down issues of the Portuguese Colonies, but when the matter is sifted down to the bottom, it is generally found that the opposition arises from their inability to beg, buy, exchange, or otherwise acquire a representation of these scarce stamps. How many does YOUR collection contain? Count them over and we wager you'll be disagreeably surprised!

With extreme difficulty, we have managed to secure several "collections de luxe" of 1,000 all different stamps from the Colonies only (No Portugal) and are passing the good fortune on to our clients with the admonition that they buy right now before it is too late. Most of the stamps are mint and particular care has been taken in the selection of fine copies. The most surprising part, however, is the large number of complete sets, provisionals, commemoratives and scarce stamps cataloguing up to several dollars each which are to be found. The hard-to-get Vasco da Gama issues are also well represented, not to mention scores of pictorials from Nyassa, Mozambique Co., bisected stamps from Macao and Portuguese India, War and Charity issues, etc., etc. Stamps from every single colony are present in parade array and we will guarantee the total catalogue value to exceed $120.00!

Our Special Net Price is absurdly low. This offer will not be repeated, so an early order will avoid disappointments!

PRICE ONLY $23.50

(N. B. We also have on hand a few collections of 1,500 all different Portuguese Colonies—extra fine quality—at $67.50 each. Catalogue value will exceed $325.00.)

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the address of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—Through the courtesy of the Director of the Bureau of Engraving & Printing, Mr. L. A. Hill, we are able to continue our list of plate numbers and bring them up to and including January 23, 1923. It will be noted that in this list we find out first 4c coils of the new design, these first plates bearing numbers 14189 and 14190. In addition, we have our first 1c rotary plates of 400 subjects so that we may look for the 1922 1c rotary, perforated 10, in the near future. The Bureau, however, has on hand a substantial stock of the old design, so that it may be some weeks before these reach the public.

In this list we also find the first 1c, design of 1922, in booklet form, twelve plates being made for these booklets. The single $1 plate with the Lincoln Memorial bearing number 14268 has been completed and I saw a proof from the plate when recently in Washington. It is a very handsome stamp and to my way of thinking will be the most attractive in the series. This plate will be used for printing the supply that will be placed on sale along with the new 3c at the Philatelic Stamp Agency at Washington on February 12th next.

The entire list shows plates of the 1922 series only and it seems odd that so shortly after the new issue begins that the older issues are among the missing. Quite likely we have seen the last plates of the former series, for as there is a demand for new plates, the Bureau completes the new die.

In MEKEEL'S for January 6, 1923, mention was made of the "Pacific Sea Post-Offices", the first trip from America to Japan being from Seattle to Yokohama on the Admiral Line steamer, "President Jackson". Mr. L. A. Boone now sends for inspection a cover used on the first return trip of the steamer, the cover having a 10 sen Japanese stamp cancelled at Tokio on December 23rd.

Mr. Warner Bates kindly sends for inspection a copy of the 3c green, with gash on shoulder somewhat similar to the well known variety to be found in the 3c of the 1851 and 1857 issue.

Shanghai.—Mr. H. W. Porter kindly sends me a copy of the 4c on 2c Shanghai overprint on cover used on December 31, 1922, the last day of the American Post-Office. The office closed on that day and all stock remaining will be sent to Washington, where they will be turned over to the Philatelic Stamp Agent. After this supply is gone, there will be no more available through the Department, for no more overprinting will be done.

We wish to thank Messrs. W. A. Beach, F. R. Demmerly, Joe Robert, Benj. Cadbury and others for notes of interest.

CEYLON.—Messrs. F. M. Pinto and K. Mudiyanse send us a cutting from the Morning Leader of November 3rd, stating that the new 20c stamps were expected shortly and would be put on sale after the usual one month's notice had been given to the Crown Agents.—Stanley Gibbons' Monthly Circular.

GERMANY.—Mr. J. L. Riedel also sends us three copies of new values of Official stamps that have recently been issued. They are 75pf blue, 3mk red on rose and 10mk green on rose. Each is of a different design.

GIBRALTAR.—We have received from Mr. R. Roberts a copy of the 1sh printed on emerald surfaced paper with a pale green back.

GREAT BRITAIN.—Mr. R. Roberts sends us a copy of the 1½d postage due stamp: The color is chocolate in the same design as the other values in this issue.

INDIA.—According to the Philatelic Journal of India, the 1 rupee, K. G., is now appearing in olive-green and brown, ordinary and service. The previous greens vary from rather pale green to deep green, and Mr. Godinho recently reported blue-green. The browns also show shades. There are also displaced centres. The stamp is thus acquiring extra philatelic interest.

Our contemporary mentions the 8 annas lilac and the 1 rupee, ordinary, with inverted Star watermark; these are ver seldom met with, and we should be gla to hear of any other example.—*Stam

Still Another Sudden Service Announcement

For many years Dr. Lister Tuholske of St. Louis has confined his efforts to general collecting, and through constant purchasing has acquired one of the largest general collections in the country. As Dr. Tuholske has now decided to specialize, we are pleased to announce the very important purchase of this extremely desirable property. Through our unique arrangement, we are handling the rare stamps at auction on the usual 20% commission, and have purchased the others outright.

This guarantees the seller an absolute maximum return on a general collection. We should be glad to hear from other collectors having large properties on which they wish to realize to best advantage.

IRELAND'S ERRORS.

AMONG THE RAREST OF THE PROVISIONAL STAMPS.

By W. WARD.

Now that the final printings of the Provisional Government stamps have been concluded, it is for the first time possible to give some proper list of the known errors, and in most instances their history. True, there is a possibility of errors in the new SAORSTAT EIREANN overprint, but now such a careful scrutiny is ordered by the authorities, that should such occur it is not very likely that they would see the public light or sale across a post-office counter. I believe that in the new permanent series (not the 2d value) that an error was discovered after a few sheets were printed, but it was at once corrected.

The first discovered error was discovered on the 2d value, with the overprint inverted, and it was reported in the philatelic press as having been found at Cork, but little was known at the time, until another error was discovered at Matlock, Derbyshire, England, contemporary with finds of the same stamp (the die II of the two-penny value) all postmarked from Enniscorthy, Co. Wexford. The English find was a romance, and a singular coincidence that an English collector, walking down a Matlock street, should "spot" an envelope bearing one of the then "new" stamps lying in the gutter—and on examination, discover that the overprint was inverted. The envelope had evidently been cast aside by some agricultural labourer, who had received a letter from home in County Wexford. Others were found among insurance correspondence, but as at least 240 (the number of stamps in a sheet) must exist, there are many yet to be accounted for. As the stamp is worth anything from £4 to £10, who knows but that it may be discovered in the most unlikely place.

Dr. Stafford Johnson of Dublin, also gives the interesting history of the find of the die I 2d (both these stamps being in the first black overprintings). A friend of mine had occasion to buy two stamps at the Grand Parade Post Office, Cork, on February 17th last, and noticing that they were upside down, he asked if there were any more. The assistant said she had another sheet also "upside down," and he bought the lower half of a sheet of 120. The day following a Dublin collector received a letter from Cork, bearing one of these inverted overprinted stamps, and at once wrote to the Cork firm, who were able to obtain him 20 more. Thus, only trace has been made of some 140 of these die I stamps out of the known 480 on sale at Cork. Another sheet is also known to have been found in Dublin, but I believe that it will be kept intact and never placed on the market. These are worth about £4 each. The next error we have record of, is that three sheets of the ½d Dollard overprint, were discovered in a Dublin Post Office. Getting to the ears of Mr. Walsh, orders were given that they had to be withdrawn from sale and destroyed, but already one sheet had been sold to a collector, who in turn sold half of it to an English dealer, kept a small corner "block" for his own collection, and disposed of the balance to a Dublin firm. Thereby hangs a tale of timidity.

The English dealer, after offering several clients, found that many collectors were doubtful as to whether other errors might not appear, and he appears to have had difficulty in disposing of the bulk of the stamps, for he then offered as low as 30sh each. Actually, of course, the stamp is three times rarer than the 2d die I.

Then came the 1d Dollard printing inverted, in the discovery of odd used pairs, whose value at the present day is round about £20 per pair, though odd unused copies have been offered as low as £4 each.

On the morning of the first bombardment of the Four Courts, a well known Dublin firm made a purchase of its usual supplies of stamps at the O'Connell Street Chief Office, and during the stamping of the mail it was noticed that one of the sheets was inverted. The Manager being a philatelist, the bulk were "saved." This stamp was the newly issued 2d die II, with the overprint in bronze-blue. Practically no copies of this error have been placed on the market, as the philatelist is keeping for personal exchange for other stamps to enrich his own collection—but it may well be estimated to possess an equal value with the ½d and 1d errors mentioned.

The 2d die I with bronze-blue overprint was also "discovered" in Dublin, and also has an interesting history. About the middle of November, a hotel manager purchased two-shillingsworth of 2d stamps at a Dublin district post-office. It was not until he had used all except three specimens on his correspondence, when he noticed that there seemed something peculiar about the stamps, and he drew a customer's attention to them. It was then noticed that they were inverted! The three remaining copies were eventually distributed among friends. Thus, somewhere, there are 237 other specimens of Die I 2d that may be discovered, and represent at least £4 each to their lucky finders.

So much for the inverted errors that were issued by "accident." It is, however, known that all values to 1sh exist inverted, but these were never sold by the Post Office Department, and indeed it is to be hoped that the present owner will in order to prevent them getting on the market, present them to the Leinster Irish National Postage Stamp Collection, as they can never have a proper philatelic value, and I believe will never attain catalogue rank as "issued stamps" —being merely "stillborn."

Other errors of overprinting have appeared, and many are of interest. In the misplaced printings, top rows of stamps will be found without the date "1922"—the dates of the bottom row, of course, being printed on the margin; and the lowest row with the word "Rialtas," which again in the top row appears below the date.

Compositors' errors had to happen, of which the most regular appear to have been in one or two settings of the Thom surcharges, the letter "c" for "e". This is not a broken "e", but due to the defective "slug" or "worm" of the operator's machine throwing the matrixes into the wrong box when feeding. Also varieties of a full colon and a full point (or stop) occur in place of the "i" in Rialtas. These appear only in the Thom printings, though of course there are many broken letters, due to stereoing in both Thom and Dollard overprints, due to either the non-elasticity or flaws in the metal composition, or particles of dirt in the papier-mache "positive". Tail-less "9's" in the Dollard printings are frequent, due to the protruding tail of the antique 9 being gradually worn off by the ink rollers, especially on the bottom rows, where the roller "jumps."

Misplaced settings are frequent and regular in both printings, as the word Rialtas not being centered, the "R" falling over the "S" or "Se" of Sealadac, while in the Dollard printings, overprints will be found to have shifted in the forme, so that each line is on the slope on one or two stamps, thus being out of alignment to the rest.

Another notable variety is to be found on the early black printings of the 1½d where once in a sheet the British stamp has the word of value spelt "Threehalfpencf"—this variety in pair with the normal stamp being worth about £4.

The quantities of these varieties being comparatively so small as numbers go in the philatelic world, it stands to reason that in a very short time they must soar in price. As example there were 249 copies of the 1a on 20 paras Baghdad provisional stamps printed, which are now worth £30, and 820 of the 2 annas on 1 Piastre small pictorial which is now worth £10, and as with the possible exception of the die I, 2d inverted the Irish Provisionals are not only scarcer, but are much more popular with collectors throughout the world, generally, and now that the Provisional Government overprint is finished, there will be no further possibility of more appearing on the market.

It might be thought that here would be the opportunity for the forger, but stamp collecting and philately has got to such a degree of fine art these days, that even if the faker could manage to imitate successfully, the fact of his offering more than an occasional stamp would be rapidly known, and enquiries would be made. Only during the past few weeks a Chevalier d'Industrie has been carefully painting out the lower bar of the "E" in the 1½d to make the error "halpencf"—but his sales must be very minute, as the persons who are likely to be "stung" with his work are not likely to expend two or three pounds on a stamp—and the collector these days generally has some friend to whom he exhibits his latest "find"—so that a "fake" has more chances of being discovered than hiding its shameless face!

There can be no question but that a collection of Ireland's first provisional stamps made now, will show a wonderful return on its outlay in quite a comparatively short period. The numbers that have been printed are quite out of proportion to the numbers of collectors, who are ready to buy values say only to the 1sh, and as example, only a week or two back a German firm of wholesale stamp dealers asked me to quote for 50,000 used sets up to 1sh! One could not get 2½d, 5d or 10d values to fill such an order at any price—unless the Postmaster-General ordered their reprinting, which however he assures us there will be no further issue. There are not enough of most values to go round collectors in the British Empire, who do not possess nearly so many enthusiastic philatelists as most of the large Continental Countries, or the United States. So that it will be seen that the popularity of the first Irish stamps rests not only philatelically, but on the laws of supply and demand.

PRO JUVENTUTE.

to you all in view of the competitions of this character which the Junior Philatelic Societies have in London. Here I might remark incidentally that we had them in Liverpool before we knew that the Junior Society had them.

3. Papers and Displays by other than Scholars.—These should only be very occasional, but they are advisable as they make a break in the scholars' efforts, and, further, usually result in some good country or some interesting stamps being shown.

4. Literature.—Many seniors are often at a loss to know what to do with old magazines. In future, send them to some Junior Society, as also any text-books or old—but not pre-historic—catalogues for which you no longer have use. Judging by my experience, they will certainly be appreciated, and, in all probability, much used.

5. The issue of a Magazine, say once a term for the Society itself.—This in my experience is a very attractive feature, and it is most desirable that, if possible, all the articles should not only be original but should be written by the members—with occasional ones by friends. The advent of a new number of the magazine is looked forward to with much interest, and much trouble is taken to get an early sight of it. "Our own society's magazine" brings that potent factor "the personal equation" into the question. As an example of what can be done in this direction, I am passing round some numbers of the magazine of the Liverpool College Philatelic Society, and whilst you will only be able to glance at these, you will observe that the class of the articles is of quite a high standard and that the production of the magazine itself leaves little to be desired. The first number of the magazine was typewritten by the Secretary, who at that time was a schoolboy of sixteen years of age, but the subsequent ones have been typewritten at his father's office. The binding for the protection of the typed matter is, as you will observe, of a very simple character.

6. Lantern Lectures occasionally.—These again are an excellent means of stimulating interest, particularly at the beginning of a season, or when it is desired to increase membership. Experience points to great interest being taken in them, and my only regret is that there is not a greater number of sets of slides available. In this connection I would like to commend the work of the Extension Sub-Committee to all those who are interested in philately amongst the young.

7. Framed Sheets of Stamps.—These can be made very attractive, and, if the stamps chosen have historical or classical interest (for example, such as those of Egypt or Greece), they can be presented to schools and find a permanent place on the walls of form rooms. This naturally results in permanent philatelic propaganda amongst the young. I am sending round such an exhibit showing some Egyptian stamps, which, as you will observe, has been given to the Liverpool College Philatelic Society; and I might mention that I hope, during the next few months, to prepare several other such sheets, which I trust will be accepted by the Liverpool College and other leading schools in and about Liverpool.

8. Get the Principal or Head Master to take a passive interest if nothing more, in the School Society.—Speaking from personal experience, this is not a difficult matter in view of the now generally accepted value of stamp collecting so far as the study of geography, history, etc., is concerned. The advantage of the principal being interested is that you get a good form room, or perhaps the library, placed at your disposal for the meetings, which should be held, if possible, in the evenings, preferably on a Saturday, after tea, following the afternoon's games. A comfortable library with a good fire, abundant light, and a party of alert schoolboys leaves little to be desired on a winter's night so far as a good stamp meeting is concerned.

9. Interest of Seniors in these Schoo Societies.—This is very helpful, but t be really effective must be (a) sincer (b) deep, (c) lasting, and (d) unobtru sive.

10. Exchange Societies.—These cer tainly present an amount of difficulty i connection with school societies. Ther is always the tendency for the stamps t be brought out during school periods but the plan that I have known to wor best is that the sheets should only b exhibited for a certain period at eac meeting, and for the settlements in re spect of all exchanges to be made at tha time. This plan, when the work is un dertaken by an efficient exchange secre tary, works well, particularly whe there is a wise restriction exercised wit regard to the amount which the boy may spend. In the society of which have already made mention, the boys i the lower forms, II and III, may on spend 6d a term; those in Form IV, 1 a term; those in Form V, 2/6 a term whilst the members of Form VI a free from any restriction.

11. The occasional Exhibition by Senior of a well mounted and effective written-up Country.—This has an exce lent effect on school boys, and I hav noticed the result on several occasion after such an exhibition. Some boy of course, will never mount their stam well, but others, when once they hav seen a good example, break right awa and make a most excellent showin Generally speaking, a marked improv ment follows such a display, and the is naturally an expressed desire for blan albums. I am sending round as an e hibit a portion of my collection of Fal land Islands stamps, which I have use on several such occasions.

In this connection I will now pa round an exhibit consisting of two se tions. There were two consideratio which weighed with me when I pr pared them, primarily for the benefit my young friends. The first was show how great a scope there is respect of a particular type of stamp, which in the ordinary course a sing copy satisfies most collectors. The se ond factor was to produce tangible ev dence that a great deal of enjoyme can be secured, and a very good exhib made, of stamps that cost very litt indeed, which consideration is, as I a sure you will appreciate, a very real one with most boys and girls. The collection of Great Britain, 1d red, 1841, I made some few years ago, and I would say that they cost at most, on an average, ½d each. The Holland 5c blue, 1872, exhibit was made this spring; the stamps were given to me by a fellow collector who bought a large number of them for a few pounds, and who, after taking all the specimens he wanted, had many hundreds left over.

Friends have on two or three occasions taken an envelope full of these, or similar stamps, to the school philatelic meetings, in which I am interested, and, after the paper dealing with such a subject as those suggested by the two exhibits now circulating has been read, the boys have had an opportunity of making a selection. This has in several cases set some member, probably rather more enthusiastic than his fellows, collecting on special lines, and most praiseworthy collections have been the outcome.

12. Showing and explaining Forgeries.—This is a never failing source of interest to young collectors, and the pertinent questions which result are most interesting and oftentimes most instructive. I will pass round two exhibits—Brazil and Sicily, which are the type of exhibit that arouses considerable interest. Further, I also pass round a collection of forgeries, arranged on Shakespearean lines, which is a never ending source of interest to the senior members of school societies. As you will observe, I am largely indebted to Mr. Higlett for the quotations with which it is adorned.

13. Encouraging the Members to take up Outside Subjects.—The natural result of a boy being ahead of others or having a line to himself is good, and I am sure you will be interested to see the small collection of national advertising postmarks or cancellations which I am now passing round, and which is the direct outcome of my having given a few of them to a young friend.

14. Debates in Society itself, or with the members of other Societies.—This is so obviously a means of arousing and maintaining interest that it is hardly necessary for me to say anything regarding it except to commend it.

Before closing this section of my paper I should just like to mention an incident which occurred at one meeting of a school society at which I was present. The boy who was to give the paper—aged about sixteen—had unfortunately forgotten to bring his notes with him. Notwithstanding this serious omission he had such a full knowledge of his subject—Geography illustrated by stamps—that he spoke for some thirty minutes without a break and indeed without any hesitation whatever. He knew the various countries, their issues and the designs on their stamps perfectly.

As to the future, it is at once our duty and our privilege to put our hand to the plough, and see that the furrow we make is long, and straight, and deep; our duty, because each one of us seniors—indeed, each one of us here—believes we possess in our hobby something that is really good and beneficial; and, since this is so, it behooves us to spread the good tidings. This is especially the case, because not only do we not lose anything in doing so, but rather gain—often to a material extent—by contact with the enthusiasm of the young student, or the evident joy of the youthful collector. Further, it not infrequently happens that the young and alert eye detects some point of interest more quickly than the older, and sometimes tired, eye of the senior. This is the merest indication of our privilege; and, as to our duty, I would say that, in addition to our thus endeavouring to hand on to our young friends something that we know to be good and beneficial, we are also recognising the duty we owe to our hobby, i.e., the training of those who are to march in the van of philately in the future. I say training advisedly, as I am convinced that, while there will never be any lack of enthusiastic collectors and of philatelists to take their appropriate places in the front ranks in the future, what we really want for the lasting good of philately is—as I am sure you will agree with me—trained collectors.

Finally, I am satisfied that the most effective, and at the same time the most lasting, type of propaganda that we can engage in is the training on a basis at once entertaining, systematic, sympathetic, intelligent and intellectual of those of our young friends and acquaintances who collect stamps. And the older they are, and the higher the standard of their education or intellectual attainments, so will philately benefit in the near future.

I am a great believer in the best possible education being given to every young person. On the same lines of reasoning, I should hope for the best results in the future from the work we are now doing amongst the more liberally educated of our boys and girls. Please do not misunderstand me in this reference to a particular type or class—philatelists, in common with geniuses, are not the product of any one class!

I fear that most of what I have said may, so far as many of you are concerned, be described as "a tale that is oft told," but even if such is the case, I still hope that, just as the importunate widow succeeded at last in securing that justice that was her right, so we who are deeply interested in this subject may eventually succeed in awaking every true philatelist to a sense of the golden opportunities which lie ready at his hand. —Stamp Collecting.

THE POST IN THE BRITISH VIRGINS.

By Harry E. Huber.

For many years but one post-office served the British Virgins, that at Road Town, Tortola, the chief town and seat of government. The other islands received their mail from the G. P. O. by written or personal application. In 1903, an office was opened at the Valley Division, Virgin Gorda. Both these offices transact Money Order business. More recently, a sub-office has been opened at West End, Tortola.

In 1911, the population of the group was 5562, but the census taken in April, 1922, showed but 5,087, a decrease of almost 500. Of this number 36 were white, "and of these one has since died, and four have left the islands." Tortola, the largest of the group, with a length of about 19 miles, and width of 7 miles, had 3,992; Virgin Gorda, 10 miles to the northeast, irregularly shaped, and 8 miles long, 381; Anegada, 358; Jost Van Dyke, 266; Peter, 40; Salt, 37; Sombrero, 5, and Cooper, 8.

Anegada is 10 miles to the northeast of Virgin Gorda, and is 12 miles long, and 2¼ miles wide. It lies very low, and when the waves run high, the sea often breaks over it. The famous Horseshoe reef, the scene of many wrecks, skirts it, and on the island is a vast lagoon, one of the few resorts of the flamingo known south of the Bahamas. Of this island, the Commissioner in his report for 1920-21, writes:—

"During the year two large schooners became stranded on the coral reef at Anegada; the cargo of one containing salt fish was saved after considerable difficulties, and realised £1500. The other containing tiles became a total wreck. No lives were lost. The captain and crews of vessels when wrecked at Anegada are apt to fancy they are back in mediaeval days, as the inhabitants are still the nearest approach to the buccaneer pirates found in the good old days. Stripped to the waist with bowie knife in their girdle, they swim out and endeavor to make drastic terms with the captain before rendering assistance, and they play the game of bluff to perfection."

Some idea of the volume of mail handled may be gained from the following figures applying to Virgin Gorda. In 1920, 95 mails were dispatched (44 service letters, 632 ordinary, 133 registers, 6 papers, and 19 taxed letters), and 67 mails received (14 service, 1,121 ordinary, 128 registers, 564 papers, 6 taxed letters, and 107 parcels). In the following year, 1921, 82 mails were dispatched, and 62 received. The office at Virgin Gorda is in charge of the Anglican rector, who purchases stamps fortnightly, or as he requires them, from the G. P. O. at Tortola, and pays for them in cash, receiving the vendor's discount of 2½% on each £1's worth purchased.

There are no steamship facilities between the British Virgins and the other Presidencies of the Leeward group, or other parts of the world, and it is through St. Thomas, in the American Virgins, 30 miles away, that communication with the outer world is maintained. No cables touch at the British Virgins, but messages can be sent via St. Thomas.

Mails are received and dispatched between St. Thomas and Tortola, about four times a week, by motor boats and sailing boats of small tonnage, and between Tortola and Virgin Gorda, about six times a month. In fact, every boat in inter-island trade carries mail. A weekly service is maintained between Road Town, West End, and Tortola. Mails from the American as well as the British Virgins, for the United States are sent out weekly, via San Juan, Porto Rico, 75 miles distant. Letters from the British Virgins, and especially when registered, are back-stamped at St. Thomas.

Postmarks.—The first cancellation used in the British Virgins of which there is record, is an official frank, consisting of a double lined circle, with a Crown inset at the top, and inscribed "Paid at Tortola." When British stamps were placed on sale in the island, about 1858, two cancelling stamps, viz., A 13 (for Tortola) and A 91 (Virgin Islands Naval Station), were assigned to the group. These were in the form of an ellipse of graduated bars, three above and three below, with two at the side, with A 13 or A 91 inset. In December, 1866, the islands issued their own stamps, and British stamps were no longer on sale. A 91 was transferred in 1872, to South sea, Hauts, England, but the can-

We are delighted, also, to announce this new feature has been patented in the United States Patent Office so we shall not be up against imitations for some years anyhow.

THE "D" LINE

"Delights for the Dime or the Dollar" is the way one man expressed his opinion of this long established line of bargain approvals.

I conduct my business under definite policies established years ago and always strictly adhered to. One is that never knowingly does a straight-edge, a skinned, or even a slightly damaged copy go into the stock books from which price-list orders and want-lists are filled. Every copy I offer as "good" or as "fine" is undamaged, and I demand its return if found to be otherwise.

What do I do with these copies with minor defects, of which there are so many? The "D" line of approvals gets them and I move them fast at startling prices. Stamps cataloguing from 50 cents to $50.00 each are included—none lower—some higher—all real bargains. Reference Required Your bank and two stamp dealers preferred celling stamp was retained at Tortola, and was still being used in the early years of the 20th century. (I have seen it on the Virgin series of 1899, ½d and 6d.)

These were followed by a small circle, inscribed in four straight lines, with "A—Tortola—date—year," and about the beginning of the 20th century, came a slightly larger circle, single lined, 21½ mm, with "Tortola" reading around the circumference, and the date in three straight lines in the center "A—MR 25—01." (I have seen this on the Virgin series of 1899, 1d, 2½d, 4d, 6d, 7d and 1s.) A similar cancelling stamp in use about the same time, had the letter "A" omitted.

About 1905, a stamp with double circles, measuring 26 and 16 mm respectively, was brought into use, lettered (between the circles) "ROAD TOWN" at the top, separated from "TORTOLA, V. I." at the bottom, by a thick lead at either side. In the center in 3 lines is "9 AM,—MY 25—12." At times the year is given in full (1913), and at others, merely two figures are used (12).

In 1916, a larger cancelling stamp was received, double circles again, measuring 31 and 21 mm, lettered between, "ROAD TOWN" at the top, and separated by a dot on either side, from "TORTOLA, V. I." at the bottom. The date is in two lines "SEP 29—1916." This soon gave way to one of two concentric circles, 23 and 14 mm, lettered between "TORTOLA" at the top, and "V. I." at the bottom, separated from each other, on either side, by a diamond formed of four dots. The date is in the center in 3 lines "A—JU 12—18." This was still being used in January, 1923. The cancellations are usually applied in black, although occasionally, purple ink is used.

There is also an Official Paid cancellation used at Road Town, formed of two concentric circles, 26 and 16 mm, lettered between, at the top "Official Paid," and at the bottom, "Road Town, Tortola, V. I." The center is blank, without date. Letters with this cancellation usually bear the ordinary cancellation in addition.

For use on registered mail, there is used by both Road Town and Virgin Gorda offices, the usual large "R" within an oval, whose greatest dimensions are 20 and 25 mm respectively. Road Town also uses a rubber stamp on registered mail, measuring 41½ x 15½ mm, in horizontal rectangular form, lettered "ROAD TOWN—TORTOLA, V. I.—No. ...." in three lines, with a large capital "R" at the left. This is usually applied in purple, though at times in black.

At Virgin Gorda one cancelling stamp has served ever since the office was opened in 1903—a single lined circle, 25 mm, inscribed "VIRGIN GORDA" at the top, and "V. I." at the bottom. The date is in three lines in the center "*—MY 24—12." The rubber stamp used by Virgin Gorda on registered letters, measures 36½ x 14½ mm, and is lettered "VIRGIN GORDA, V. I.—No..........." in two lines, with a large "R" at the left.

The cancelling stamp used by West End, Tortola, is a single lined circle, 25 mm, lettered "WEST END—TORTOLA," separated by leads. The date is in two lines in the center, "FE 2—22." Violet ink is used.

Postage Rates—The Leeward Islands Colony, of which the British Virgins is a Presidency, was among the first to accept the proposals of the U. S. Post Office Dept. for the reciprocal exchange of letters at domestic rates, and on March 1, 1915, penny postage came into operation between the Presidencies of the Federation and the United States, and vice versa. By an Order in Council made August 9, 1916, and effective September 1, 1916, the letter rate from the British Virgins to places in the British Empire outside of the Federation, was raised to 2d (in Antigua, St. Kitts-Nevis, and Dominica, the increase was to but 1½d), and this was made applicable to the United States by an Order in Council made December 29, 1916, effective February 1, 1917. Locally, and between the Presidencies, the letter rate is 1d. On November 2, 1917, the letter rate in the United States was increased to 3 cents per ounce, which was made to apply to letters to the Leeward Islands Colony, and all other countries taking the domestic rate. The 2c rate was restored July 1, 1919.

By an Order in Council dated 9th January, 1922, and effective February 1st, 1922, rates of 2d and 1½d were made effective on letters and post cards, originating in the Colony, addressed to "the United Kingdom, other parts of the British Empire, Tangier, and the U. S. A., (including the U. S. Virgin Islands, Porto Rico, Alaska, Hawaii, and the Canal Zone)", to all other foreign countries, 3d. At the same time, the registration fee was raised from 2d to 3d.

Postal Revenue—The value of postage stamps sold in 1866 was £13.9.7; in 1869, £5.19.2, and in 1870, just under £20. Fifty years later, a considerable change had taken place, for in 1919-20, the P. O. revenue was £1059, with an expense of £65. The total revenue of the group was £14880, and expenditure, £8149. In the following year, the Post Office contributed £328 to the revenue of £11715, with an expense of £67 (total expenditure £9816). In 1921-22, the P. O. revenue was £612, and the expense, £92.

Major H. W. Peebles, appointed Commissioner of the British Virgins, on July 11, 1919, was transferred in May, 1922, to act as Commissioner of Montserrat. Mr. F. C. Clarkson, formerly Asst. Supt. of Public Works, in Nevis, at present acts as Commissioner at Road Town, as well as Treasurer and Colonial Postmaster. To Mr. C. L. Meade, Chief Clerk to the Government, however, is delegated most of the duties in connection with the G. P. O. at Road Town.

CONFEDERATES—AND PRETENDERS.

A CHAT ABOUT FERRARY'S WONDERFUL COLLECTION OF CONFEDERATE STATES STAMPS.

By FRED. J. MELVILLE.

Macon.—All types of the Macon (Georgia) 5 cents were included in the fourth Ferrary sale, with S.G. types 1 and 3, each in pair used on original, the type 3 pair being tête-bêche (Griebert £63). But the rarity of this issue is the Two Cents, black on green, this fine copy of which went cheaply for £107 to Mr. Griebert. This stamp was unknown until the end of 1894 and another was found in 1895.

The Madison Mystery.—Madison (Florida) was only represented by a postmarked envelope, but Ferrary had one of the rare 3c adhesives, which Gibbons values at £300. He had it from the Philbrick collection, which contained the only example known of this stamp for many years, and being the error CNETS for CENTS and the source of nearly all the illustrations that have appeared of the stamp, it was not known until 1896 that the correctly spelt stamp also existed. The late Sir William Avery paid £270 for his copy of the correctly spelt stamp on entire. A detached copy of this stamp with a portion of the Madison postmark was in the Ayer collection. The late E. L. Pemberton, writing of the misprinted one in the Philbrick collection, says "were it not most circumstantially authenticated, I should feel great hesitation in admitting it. It was issued in 1861 by the then postmaster, J. T. Perry, by permission of the Washington Authorities."

Marions.—The first of the Marions (Virginia), a not-too-certain 5c black used on portion of original, went to Mr. Griebert for £94. The 10c unused proved to be a reprint, as also did a 5c black, used, the 5c on azure and on yellow, while the 3c is probably a fantasie—these six curios were sold together for 750 fcs. A 10c black on azure was, however, thought something of, being used on letter (ex Thorne collection), although it had been grouped with some reprints and fantasies (2c, 15c and 20c), the lot comprising nine items, went for nearly £60.

The wording on the Marion stamps, which were issued by postmaster J. H. Francis, reads "Post Office Check," but they were no doubt used in the same way as the other Confederate postmasters' provisionals. The frame and inscriptions were printed without the value on white, sometimes ruled white paper, and the value stamped in with large figures, afterwards. The specimens with small figures are frauds. Messrs. Gibbons and Scott only recognise the 5c and 10c in black on white wove paper as authentic, dismissing the other values, but in a letter to Mr. W. M. Dabney, of Saltsville, Virginia, in 1892, Mr. Francis, who issued the stamps in 1861, wrote, "I filled in the figures—2c, 5c, 10c, 15c, 20c and occasionally 25c." It would be interesting to know why the possibility of the other values existing, as genuine originals has been ruled out.

It will be news to most philatelists on this side that the very type from which these Marions were printed is still in position, and has passed through the hands of various owners, and is now securely locked up in a safe in Boston.

Memphis.—The Memphis (Tennessee) are not big rarities and several used on letters went quite cheaply. A tête-bêche pair of the 5c red used on letter is a scarce item, though one of the stamps was cut; this went to Mr. Colson for £13.

Mobile.—An unused 2c black Mobile (Alabama) was bought by M. Champion for £11 15s; one used on letter fetched £16 10s. This is another well-designed and printed stamp, and may have come from the same atelier as the Livingston rarity.

"The Thistle that was in Lebanon."—This was the freakiest and most amateurish stamp ever produced, the Mount Lebanon (Louisiana) 5c red-brown used on letter, which, although nothing seems to be known about it, fetched £317. It has evidently been engraved by a schoolboy, who, for the purpose of our tale, should be the postmaster's infant son, and he has engraved it as a positive, so that it prints in negative. How it came to light, or what there is to say for it, I have not been able to discover. It crept almost unnoticed into the Scott catalogue in 1909, and slinked away into quiet seclusion and the congenial company of other aristocrats of the stamp world, in the Ferrary collection. It would be a strange commentary on the place names of the new world if carottes grew instead of cedars on the new Mount Lebanon.

Nashville.—The 3c Nashville (Tennessee) was prepared for use but never issued. They were printed from a setting of five varieties, which are easily differentiated. The sheet cost Mons. Champion about £14. The 5c and 10c are in a type similar to that of Knoxville, and the 5c exists tête-bêche. Of such pairs one in carmine used on letter fetched 750 fcs., and two other pairs on letter 2600 fcs., all three being secured by Mr. Colson.

New Smyrna.—New Smyrna (Florida) provides another of the unique items in this group, a 10c on 5c adhesive of the most primitive description, this presenting the variety "01" for "10". Mr. Colson secured it, used on letter, for £235.

Pittsylvania.—The best price recorded for a Pittsylvania (Virginia) was for this 5c red used on letter, and was only £17 10s. The stamp is similar to the Danville, and was printed by the postmaster of that town, which is only 20 miles distant from Pittsylvania. Coleman has stated that he printed these stamps for J. P. Johnson in the same way as he printed his own, merely substituting Johnson's name for his own. The Pittsylvania is much rarer than the Danville although it brought much less than its step-brother at the Ferrary sale.

OLD SOUTH STAMP CO.
6 MILK STREET, BOSTON, MASS.

There was in a mixed lot a curious interloper of the home-made adhesive class, a tall upright oblong stamped "PAID" across the top and "10" in circle below; it may have been an earlier Pittsylvania, but who can tell?

Fleeting Image of a Shade.—Pleasant Shade is not a bad sort of name for a place in fair Virginia—and Greenville County to boot—an unused 5c blue postmaster's stamp of which fetched £30 10s. The late E. L. Pemberton, who was wisely cautious in chronicling the novelties which poured in upon him from the States in the early days, was frankly skeptical of there being such a place—he couldn't find it on the map, but he found "Pleasant Hill," and "of course, every idiot knows that where there's a hill there's a shade—some time in the day. Was Pleasant Shade so incomparably wicked above other cities that it was utterly destroyed, its name eradicated, and its very name lost?" The place was found for Mr. Pemberton by Mr. L. A. Schneider in an 1864 Post Office Directory. It was a very small post-office, and the name probably figured on the gate of the postmaster's residence! The stamps were printed from the same type as the Petersburgs, and show ten types of setting.

Rheatown.—The Rheatowns (Tennessee) were described as doubtful, and three 5c red, and the unlisted 10c green and 15c blue, with some other items, only made 380 fcs. The 5c were the only genuine ones, the others being fakes.

Salem.—The Salem (Virginia) 5c black is only valued at £30 used in Gibbons (probably an error for £300), and this one used on letter fell to Mr. Griebert for nearly £73. It is as home-made a label as one could conceive, a comparatively late discovery, and not to be confused with the envelopes of Salem, North Carolina.

Spartanburg.—A Spartanburg (South Carolina) 5c black, used on letter, fetched £37; interesting; good and cheap at the price.

Tellico Plains.—A strip of three of Mr. M. F. Johnson's stamps for Tellico Plains shows two varieties of the 5c and one of the 10c se tenant, and brought £19 (Colson); there were two similar lots (900 fcs. and 810 fcs.).

Uniontown.—Uniontown in Alabama presents four simple type-set varieties to the catalogue, all rarities, and of these Ferrary had a very pretty lot.

The 2c green on blue, a fine copy uncancelled on the original letter, was bought by Mr. Colson for £223; it came, I think, out of the Ayer collection and was addressed

Drop Letter
Miss Margaret L. Minge
Care David Minge Esq.
Union Town, Ala.

A 5c green on blue, used on letter, sold to Mr. Griebert for £21. The 5c green on white laid paper went to M. Gelli for £29.

A superb 10c red on blue, used on letter, went to Colson for £277, while another 10c used on letter, went to Mr. Griebert for £85.

The Uniontown postmark is rarely impressed clearly on these stamps.

Victoria.—An unused pair of J. A. Moody's green glacé stamps for Victoria, Texas, 5c red-brown on green and 10c red-brown on green, sold for £141. The 10c exists used on original, in which state it is probably unique; it was found by Mr. Albert Steves of San Antonio, amongst the correspondence of

C. Hellenkamp Esq.
Lagrange

(Texas), to whom it was addressed. An unused 10c sold for $850 (£170) at the Worthington sale in 1917.

Ferrary's 10c was a very poor copy, only a film of paper with no back to it. —Stamp Lover.

DEATH OF GLEN W. PERKINS.

By H. C. BUTTERMORE.

Glen W. Perkins, age 36, of 1040 Parkwood Ave., Youngstown, Ohio, secretary of The Photogemic Co., dropped dead February 2nd. Death was due to blood clot in the heart, due to the breaking of a blood vessel in the left leg. He was born in Niles, Ohio, October 23, 1886, son of Charles W. and Nettie McEwen Perkins. The family moved to Los Angeles, Calif., several years ago, Mr. Perkins returning to Youngstown in 1919. He was a member of the Christian Church in Los Angeles. Mr. Perkins was a man of sterling qualities and one whom it was a pleasure to know and transact business with. He owned quite a nice general collection of stamps and derived much pleasure from dealing in stamps in a small way and will be greatly missed by many collectors with whom he has been corresponding.

FOR THE METER STAMP FAN.

Have just received notice today that the Durant Corporation of New York City, will use under their permit No. 94, a 14-cent indicia meter No. 1623. This will be in olive green, the color of the new 14c stamp and will be the first of this denomination ever used in connection with first-class mail. We trust the eagle eyes of the collecting fraternity will be able to catch a good supply of these before they get absorbed by the paper making machines.—A. H. PIKE, Buffalo, N. Y.

U. S. ENTIRE ENVELOPES.

By J. M. WESTPHAL, Joliet, Ill.

The early issues of U. S. postage in very fine condition are scarce articles and many pocket-books will not stand the prices asked, and entire envelopes being next of kin, obtainable at reasonable prices, it is but natural that they will become very popular again, and more so for the reason that the collector who desires used entires can procure the same cancellations that are found on stamps. One can make a collection of entires just as complicated as one of stamps, or it can be made very simple and still have all the watermarks, colors and dies.

The Scott Catalogue from the entire envelope standpoint is very discouraging, as for instance, take the 3c green die B, Scott's No. 2407 listed on white; 2436 on amber; 2455 on cream; 2470 on blue; 2480 on fawn without any reference to a watermark; so that when one sees Scott's No. 2407 advertised for sale and buys, he may not receive "Scott's No. 2407 1874 Plimpton issue" watermark No. 2 or U. S. P. O. D., but most likely may get 3c on white Plimpton and Morgan issue watermarked U. S. P. O. D. 1882, which is worth less money. All envelopes of the 1874 Plimpton issue have a distinguishing feature, and that is the gum, which is called square gum, the later issues having what is called round gum. Many collectors pay no attention to the gum, which is a very important factor in envelope collecting, and in many cases the gum makes a difference in price. I collected envelopes many years by Scott's Catalogue, but was always handicapped when an auction sale or a dealer quoted Scott's numbers, so I determined to secure a Bartels' 1911 Catalogue, which I was fortunately able to do.

It would seem from the number of envelope collectors in existence without any Catalogue but Scott's, that the reissue of the Bartels' 1911 Catalogue would be a profitable venture. It not only would be a boon to envelope collectors, but the Catalogue would be a fine addition to any stamp collector's library just for the general information it imparts. Envelopes are of as much importance as stamps, and no U. S. collection is complete without them, and I find that many of the valuable collections throughout the country are not lacking U. S. entire used and unused envelopes.

The article of "Icker's" says that envelopes are tabooed, etc., but I find from my own experience that dealers do not hesitate to ask 80% to full catalogue for entires, and very seldom do we see any of the 19th Century offered for sale. I also find many dealers having a good stock of envelopes are not tempted to sell 19th Century at all, and many times I have noticed small ads to purchase, hence there is not the tabooing going on that some would like to have us believe. I am of the opinion most of the "tabooing" is done by the dealer just now, but we can not blame him. We as collectors should be picking up these things while the picking is good and not complain later on when we find that the envelopes very much desired have been gobbled up by the dealer.

In regard to the complaint that envelopes are too bulky and inconvenient to handle and exhibit, I think I have done away with this complaint by the use of a loose leaf album of my own construction. I think I am the only collector who has his collection arranged so that any envelope can be handled or looked at as one might the pages of a book, and just as easily. Each album contains 75 varieties, each page or envelope can be removed at will, and if I wish to exhibit the 1853 issue, I simply have to take out volume No. 1—Bartels' numbers 1 to 75, and so on through the entire collection. The albums are contained in a dust proof manila cover and are made just large enough to take in the largest as well as the smallest U. S. entire and are inexpensive. I have tried many ways to handle envelopes easily, but nothing ever filled the bill as my present system and those who have seen the albums wonder that something like it has never been on the market or suggested before. Write me if you so desire.

I have found that the cut square specimen may not be of the regular Government issues to the public, that it may have been cut from a specimen or bidder's sample envelope, which were, and are in many cases, worth much less than those issued to the public. Many cut squares offered for sale in the past have been nothing more nor less than bidders' samples. This state of affairs disgusted me, hence my collecting entires only ever since. Then there is also something very fascinating about the collecting of entires, as they hold the entire interest longer than the stamp itself.

OUR BOOK REVIEW.

"Rare Stamps: How to Recognize Them," by Fred. J. Melville, is a fully-illustrated little book of fifty pages, that has a practical value, that will be appreciated by the outsider and by the collector whose acquaintance with rarities is slight. The book is so replete with cuts of the rarities that it will certainly catch the eye of the one who wants to know to satisfy curiosity, something about fancy prices for postage stamps. The wizardry of Mr. Melville's pen loans itself to the text and all in all, we have a worthy addition to the somewhat curtailed list of books that may be read with advantage both by the collector and the one to whom philately is a terra incognita. Publishers: The Philatelic Institute, 26 Plumstead High Street, London, S. E., 18, England. Price, one shilling.

We have received three new Harris publications that will serve to confirm the reputation enjoyed by Harris Publications, Ltd., as enterprising purveyors of the good grade of literature. We cannot improve on the descriptions of the contents of this book trio that are submitted by the publishers, only interpolating here, the address of the publishers: 87 Emmanuel Road, London, S. W. 12, England.

Stamps of the Flying Post, by W. E. Hughes (1sh).—The romance of the air lends fascination to the special stamps many nations have issued to frank air mail. The whole history of the air mails and their stamps is herein concisely recorded.

The Stamps of Papua, by W. T. Elliot, M. A. (1sh).—Mr. Elliot is one of the leading specialists in these stamps, and with the aid of Mr. Coulson's excellent illustrations he has made clear for the first time much that has hitherto been obscure to the ordinary collector.

Great Britain, the Line-Engraved Alphabets, by H. S. Hodson and E. W. Floyd (2sh 6d).—A study by two recognised authorities of the several different types of lettering in the corners of the earliest stamps, illustrated with eleven pages of enlargements. The work fills a gap, and should simplify matters considerably for the many collectors of these issues.

PAYMENTS BY THE 20th.

We are greatly pleased at the manner in which the vast majority of advertisers are complying with our rule of payment of bills upon presentation. We feel that this rule is absolutely necessary in the conduct of the WEEKLY. A number of advertisers are dilatory in making their payments. Some payments reach us early in the following month, and we must make effective the rule that we have established.

In the future our rule as regards payment upon presentation will be more strictly enforced and where bills are unpaid by the 20th of the month we shall omit advertising from the first issue in the following month. It is our purpose not to add any item of indebtedness to the bills that go out the first of the month.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

Recently we published a telegram from Mr. G. H. Grinnell of Los Angeles, California, in which he said that the case involving the Hawaiian missionaries had been settled, evidently by the return of the money to Mr. Klemann and the stamps to Mr. Grinnell. In the telegram Mr. Grinnell said that he was sending particulars by mail. Under date of the 2nd of February, Mr. Grinnell writes: "I have been delayed in getting good photos. I have excellent plates now and will mail them in a few days"

Minneapolis has established itself as the philatelic radio center of this country through the enterprise of the Burt McCann Company and the able assistance of leading collectors of the Twin Cities. The editor of the WEEKLY feels flattered to hear that thanks were broadcasted to him at one of the Friday evening philatelic lecture hours, recently.

We learn from Mr. C. Gordon Fennell who started the movement for marking repaired stamps as such, that he has respectfully suggested to the board of the American Stamp Dealers Association that it adopt a very small "M" surrounded by a circle, as the insignia of the repaired stamp, and distribute rubber stamps bearing the legend to members of the association. Mr. Fennell offers to bear the expense of providing these rubber stamps. As we have said, there could be no opposition to the proposal that the mended stamps be indelibly identified. Speaking of the marking, Mr. Fennell says: "As long as the stamp is distinctive, the smaller the better, for even though a stamp is repaired, why detract from its value by an undue application of ink on its back?"

Several readers have said that we have not commented on the dispatch sent out by the Associated Press about a month or so ago, in which it was said that for "the first time in American history" the portrait of a woman would be shown on a postage stamp. This statement is so palpably wrong that it does not need to be corrected in a stamp paper. It is hoped that collectors wrote to the papers that published the misleading despatch, correcting the boner that has been made. It is surprising that the Associated Press napped so completely and when one of the A. P. men was asked how the error was made, he countered by saying that the mistakes of this kind were as scarce as Brattleboros.

Mr. Colin Gillespie Jameson, of Santa Barbara, Cal., writes to Mr. Percy C. Smith to say that he has "a 200 reis Brazilian stamp, series of 1922, sent from Rio Janeiro by a member of the U. S. commission to Brazil to reorganize the Brazilian navy, to a gentleman in Chicago. It is cancelled with a handstamp bearing the inscription, 'U. S. Naval Commission to Brazil, Rio Janeiro,' in three lines."

A reader writes to say that when he was in Jamaica last year he heard much of a popular movement on the island that had for its object, the adoption of U. S. currency; and he adds that other West Indian islands speak of favoring the dollars and cents currency scale. Some time ago we remember having read that the British Colonial Secretary had appointed a committee in London composed of men particularly interested in the West Indies, to investigate the currency needs of the islands. Evidently, our correspondent scents a regular orgy of new issues in the West Indies, as a possibility of the future but we do not know as much about any such prospects as he does, it is safe to say.

We suspect that some of the old boys are having the time of their lives peppering away at us when we make remarks about philatelic publicity in the newspapers. When we carol forth lays in praise of outside advertising for stamp collecting, they interrupt our song with cat-calls. Their cavorting is such as to make us pity those who "may be nine years old again but never nineteen." We are glad to find that the most intelligent recognition of philately by the New York Times is likely to be rewarded with good results as we find that recent articles from the Times have been reprinted with credit to the New York newspaper by newspaper leaders, such as the Kansas City Star. When a paper such as the Times gives such handsome treatment of our pursuit, as it does, ironic comment on newspaper publicity loses its point. Do not imagine that the high old-timers who do the rasping are wicked old chaps as they are only having a hilarious time. They merely profess not to see the need of getting publicity for philately, probably thinking that it is not essential to its well-being or continuation.

It is not alone the great newspapers that are hearty in their hand-shake of philately as scores of the smaller papers throughout the land are giving space to stamp stories of a great variety of kinds. The Russian stamp of 22,500 rubles with the attendant description of past and present money values in Russia and the significance of the design affords a story of interest and it has been printed in all sorts of papers. As an example of the original philatelic story, we cite an article in the Dansville, N. Y., Express of January 25th, that tells of "real treasures still hidden away in New York State attics" and of "what to look for and where to look for it." This account is one that is of much interest and the possibilities of stamp hunting are revealed by one who speaks within his rights. In addition to presenting an instructive article, opportunities for practical profit are described; and the finishing touch to the recountal is commended: "If you are lucky enough to find a lot of old letters and are not sure how to dispose of them to the best advantage, write to the Editor of the Hammondsport Herald, Hammondsport, N. Y., and tell him what you have or send samples. He will appraise them for you, or tell you how to dispose of them to advantage."

To pursue the subject of the possibility of a customs or other tax on collections of stamps going into England, we quote from a letter received from Dr. Carroll Chase: "I take the liberty of sending the following extract from a letter just received from Fred J. Melville, of London. He says,—'There is no difficulty with customs tax or anything else in bringing a collection of stamps, or even a whole stock of stamps, into England, as there is not duty or restriction of any kind on stamps here. But if you are not already aware of it there are difficulties in France, and you may be well advised to leave the collection here, and not take it to France with you in the first instance. I do not know whether U. S. collectors are under any misapprehension about collections coming into England being taxed in any way, but if so, shall be glad if you will spread the information that there is neither tax nor any other complication about sending exhibits for May to England."

We have found a reat demand for some smaller size packets d at the same time packets or collections at contain only stamps as listed in Scott talogue. Therefore, we have prepared e different packets. we have but ten of e of them and up to 25 of some of the hers.

Every packet contains both used and unsed stamps, but the majority are mint pies. Every stamp in every packet is sted in Scott catalogue, and the stamps e all between the numbers 322, a copy which is in every one of the packets, d nothing later than Number 592, expt that the two larger packets each contin five or six copies of the officials of is period. Every item is listed in Scott talog, and every stamp a desirable buy the extremely low price we are offering. et the one you want at once, for at this ice these packets should be snapped up ickly.

THE HOME OF THE POSTAGE STAMP, 510 W. 113TH ST., NEW YORK CITY

Harken to the voice of a skeptic! His order: "I may be a sucker—spear me quick . . . " Afterward, "I was born a skeptic, raised a skeptic, and hoped to die a skeptic, but after one look at your Manhattan Conglomeration, my skepticism fled from me and I am now the most cheerful collector in the world—send me another 'M. C.'"

Now, the voice of Prof. Coue, "'Every day and in every way you are getting better and better.' My first Manhattan Conglomeration was so good I have HAD to keep on ordering them, each is so different from the others, I begin to think you must have more than 57 vars. of 'M. C.'s'." We have, and one fellow orders two each week!

Once more, "Until I received your 'Morningside Confiscation' I thot that all cover dealers were robbers. I am now convinced that you are willing to offer a bargain—15 fine covers for $1.02. They are better than you say they are!"

Can we say more? Need we say more? Shall we say more? NO! Just order:

THE MANHATTAN CONGLOMERATION—250 vars. cat. $10, etc.	$1.02
THE MORNINGSIDE CONFISCATION—15 fine covers cat. over $2	1.02

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—Our foreign correspondent, Mr. Lowell J. Ragatz, is to visit Switzerland next, and no doubt he will find much to halt the philatelic eye in the land of Locher and Szekula.

—Mr. Walter Morley informs us that he has been invited to publish "a very interesting and instructive work" on Old Irish Postage Stamps and Franks, which is to be historically correct, as its information will be based upon facts found in the library in the Four Courts, Dublin, now destroyed. We hope that Mr. Morley, 325 Brownhill Road, Catford, S. E. 6, England, will receive many advance orders.

—Month after month we receive the monthly calendar with its picture of a rare stamp each time, together with Mr. Colson's interesting news letter from Mr. Warren H. Colson, Boston, whose sage observations are always of value.

—From a letter from Mr. Harry S. Swensen of Minneapolis, we quote: "With the advent of the radio, a new means of educating the uninitiated public in this king of hobbies has been adopted and this new medium is likely to prove the most effective means of reaching the ears of a mighty audience, with little expense and little effort. A single lecture on stamps broadcasted from a radio station can reach thousands of persons who never heard of stamp collecting except in a vague way."

—Here is the rubber-stamped impression that is placed on short-paid mail originating abroad: "This letter was posted insufficiently prepaid. Please advise your correspondent that the rate of postage on letters to country of address is for first ounce, 5 cents, each additional ounce, 3 cents. (Post Office, New York, U. S. A.)."

—Now comes W. L. George, the English writer who pays his respects to philately by bouncing bricks off the heads of collectors. The crying out loud will come next week.

—We congratulate Madrid Filatelico upon presenting the Hawaiian case so interestingly and exhaustively in the October-December number. Sr. Manuel Galvez of Madrid was one of the important witnesses for Mr. Klemann, both as a stamp expert and as a printing expert.

—Edwin F. Sawyer writes us:—"You will find quite an account of the exploits of Admiral William Brown in "British Exploits in South America" by W. H. Koebel, published in May, 1917.

—The Philatelic Reporter is the name of a monthly publication issued by H. R. Weaver, 2417 Montrose Ave., Chicago, Ill. It is a house-organ but nevertheless of interest from the standpoint of general collecting. A sample copy will be sent upon request.

—A subscriber who signs himself "Stamp Fiend" in a letter to this office revives the agitation for a stamp collectors' catalog, rather than, as he terms it, a "dealer's catalog". Our only observation is that it is very unlikely that the A.P.S. or any single member will ever venture the expenditure of the large sum of money that would be required to put upon the market a catalog such as referred to. The matter of including or excluding certain issues would be a bone of contention in the editing of any catalog.

—Notice has been received of the sale of assets in the matter of Allen Sears, Bankrupt. The sale occurred Feb. 3 at the Lathrop Bldg., Kansas City, Mo. The inventory showed assets of some $3600.

—Quite a number of our subscribers have sent us information concerning the proper translation of a phrase used in a short article, "Austrian Air Mail" (see page 50). We have already made provision for the publication of one of the first letters received, and this notice will serve to extend thanks to all others who have tried to help us out.

—Gustave Larson, 42 Circuit Ave., Worcester, Mass., informs us that he is having a difficult time procuring a book recently advertised, "The Stamps of Norway in the 20mm Type". He wishes to know whether it can be obtained here in the U. S. Ordinarily, notices of this kind should appear elsewhere than in News Gleanings, but there are circumstances that lead us to help Mr. Larson, who has had some hard luck with two British dealers.

—Charles Metz of Philadelphia sends us some information received from John N. Luff relative to Colombian stamps Nos. 360 and 367, and we quote as follows from the letter:—"I have your favor of the 25th enclosing two Colombian stamps showing the panel with "Provisional" placed at different angles. This panel was applied separately to each stamp on a stone and occupies slightly different positions on each one; also, there were several stones made, in which it was applied at quite different angles. We have known of these for a long time, but have not thought them sufficiently interesting to collectors to put them in the Catalogue."

—Charles H. Ball, the well known Buffalo philatelist, has an interesting article in the Buffalo News of Jan. 31 on "Uncle Sam's New Postage Stamps." It is a good story, in keeping with Mr. Ball's other literary work.

—The Metropolitan Stamp Co., 7 W. 42 St., N. Y. City, has just issued a large 1923 price-list of sets of stamps and a Jan. 1 list of "Famous Dime Sets". As the collecting of sets is a favorite way of filling up a stamp collection, we advise interested parties to send for these lists.

—We are indebted to Raymond Bahr for two fine photographs taken in connection with the one-day air-mail service between Springfield, Ill., and Chicago, Sept. 23, 1922. The first trip was also the last one. We are greatly obliged to Mr. Bahr for the favor.

—A. M. McFadden has resigned his connection with the Stamp Shoppe, Inc., of Washington, D. C., and A. C. Mason is the new secretary-treasurer. Harry B. Mason will have the full management of the affairs of the company, which is organized under the laws of the state of Virginia.

—The Shoreham Hotel has been selected for the official Washington headquarters of the A. P. S. convention, August 13-16.

A Real United States Rarity

One of the really rare as well as desirable stamps of 20th century United States is the well known 5c ERROR, IMPERFORATED, which our friend Mr. Scott lists as No. 394a and modestly prices at $750.00. The 5c error is without doubt the oddest variety ever issued by the United States, for this was not an error of printing such as an inverted center, but is an actual error of engraving, or rather of transferring. Not an error made in feeding one sheet to the press wrongly, but the transfer from the wrong die used in completing the plate. In an imperforated condition it takes its place as a real rarity. When you see a fine specialized collection of 20th century U. S., the first things you look for are the 5c imperf. error and the Pan American Inverts. No U. S. collection is complete without them.

I offer a wonderful mint copy entirely surrounded by 2c stamps — a block of twenty-five with the error in the center. The most desirable copy to be had. Price $750.00. Only one on hand, so write promptly if interested. Has never been offered at auction and is seldom seen at private sale. What else do you need in U. S.?

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the address of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—Under date of February 3rd, the Philatelic Stamp Agent at Washington sent out a notice confirming the information previously given in this column to the effect that the new 3c purple, portrait of Abraham Lincoln, and the $1 brown, showing the "Lincoln Memorial" at Washington, will be placed on sale by the Agency on the anniversary of Lincoln's birthday, February 12, 1923. Both stamps, judging from the proofs, are attractive, and it is my opinion that the $1 is among the most pleasing of the series. The former variety is printed in sheets of four hundred while the $1 stamps are from 200 subject plates, ten horizontally by twenty vertically. Before long I will be able to publish some interesting notes regarding the new 20c denomination which we expect to see issued shortly.

Mr. B. K. Miller writes from London that he has obtained two-thirds of a 3c, 1869, used as 2c on the entire cover cancelled in green "Edwardsville Mi(ss) Sep 21" and addressed to New Orleans, La. Mr. Miller states this is one of the few choice items he has located in London, for the dealers' stocks of United States are "very small and exceptionally poor."

Announcement was made in Washington under date of January 28th, that there are now 51,787 post-offices being operated by this government exclusive of the many branches and sub-stations in the larger centers. No other nation of the world has a postal system that begins to compare with ours. The Department however is steadily working to reduce the number, 19,158 having been eliminated since 1902, in which year the largest number of offices in its history were in operation.

Mr. G. G. Ryder informs me that the Boston Post Office will shortly have in use a postmark advertising an exhibition of stamps to be held March 19th to 24th inclusive in the Exhibition Hall of the Boston Public Library under the auspices of the Boston Philatelic Society.

Messrs. F. R. Demerly, M. H. Ganser, L. B. Coley, A. H. Robertson, J. Earl Harlow, C. L. Gabel, W. A. Beach and others inform me that they have seen the new 2c coil stamp which made its appearance more or less unheralded. We also wish to thank Messrs. H. C. Buttermore and F. H. Sackleben for notes of interest.

CHINA.—We have received the following interesting letter from Rev. Warren A. Seager of the American Church Mission at Nanking:—

At the risk of duplicating information which you may already have with regard to the changes of color in the current Chinese stamps, I beg to submit for the MEKEEL'S WEEKLY Chronicle the following information, copied from an official report circulated today among the foreign residents of Nanking. I should like to have sent you the report itself, but it was one that could only be read and signed. However, I made an exact copy of the data with regard to the stamps, as follows:—

"The 7 and 15 cent denominations are to be reintroduced. The 1½, 6 and 13 cent denominations are to be discontinued.

The following color changes will go into effect: 2c from green to brown, 3c blue green to green, 4c red to gray, 7c violet to violet, 8c brown-orange to red, 10c deep blue to dark gray-green and 15c brown to dark blue. The colors of the ½, 1, 5, 16, 20, 30 and 50 cent stamps will remain unchanged.

The dollar stamps will be printed in color in the centers instead of with black centers as at present. The colors will be as follows: $1 chocolate, $2 sepia, $5 dark gray-green, $10 maroon and $20 blue. The frames of the 1, 2, 5 and 10 dollar stamps will retain their present colors. The frame of the $20 stamp will be printed in maroon instead of in ordinary yellow as hitherto.

The introduction of the above mentioned new stamps, etc., will be gradual, and their sale will not be commenced until after the old stocks of the various denominations in each category are exhausted.

A quantity of the 3 cent postage stamps is being surcharged for use as 2 cents and issued to meet requirements."

To date none of these new stamps have appeared in the local post-offices. The writer found that the stocks of 1½, 6 and 13 cent stamps have been completely exhausted for some time. One post-office had just received a small supply of the 6 cent value of the "three head" Postal Commemorative set issued in 1921. The postal officials were unable to explain the arrival of these stamps, and said that they had none of the other values of the same set, and didn't expect to have. This "three head" set was on sale in Nanking for just 5 weeks last year, and it was necessary to travel from one post-office to another to obtain them in any quantity, as the clerks refused to sell more than 10 of a kind.

The increased rates of postage have caused a great deal of comment especially among the foreigners in China. The chief criticism offered is that the Chinese Post Office waited until the removal of foreign post-offices was assured before raising the rates. This is hardly fair, as the volume of business done by the foreign post-offices was but a small percentage of the total amount of activity in China. The current postal rates, even after the increas approximately the same as in the U States, and the local city postage good deal cheaper.

The present rate of 15 cents for eign letter amounts to about the sa several other countries are charging the foreign letter tariff could be even more without exceeding the mum tariff laid down by the U.
In a country where there is as official corruption as in China, the ence of an honestly operated, thoro efficient institution, such as the C
Post Office, is something to inspire fidence in the future of China. An the quick and safe handling of ou eign correspondence those of us have cast our lot in this great co certainly shouldn't begrudge an addi five cents Mex. on our letters.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

THE ANSWERING OF LETTERS.

By JEROME MILKMAN.

(We publish Mr. Milkman's article in its entirety. He has presented the subject from the collector's standpoint and we shall do well to examine it from the standpoint of the dealer. A person has no real right to expect a reply to a letter unless a stamped envelope be enclosed. It is a matter of courtesy only, and the average dealer believes that failure to reply to a letter indicates that the merchandise wanted cannot be supplied. We lay it down as a fundamental principle to enclose a stamped envelope whenever a letter calls for a reply, and this is a good policy to follow.—W. O. W.)

I have been collecting U. S. stamps for some time, and I subscribed to your paper with the idea of getting in touch with some of your advertisers in the hopes that I could purchase some stamps that I needed to fill in my collection. I have written to about 25 dealers, asking them if they had any of the following stamps:—

1914—Revenue, 24c Green Cordials.
1917—Revenue, 20c Carmine Doc.
1919—Revenue, 8c and 40c Blue Prop.

and out of that number I received about three answers. Two were considerate enough to inform me that they did not have them, and the third did not answer my inquiry, but sent me some U. S. Stamps on approval. I feel that I am at least entitled to an answer to an inquiry of this kind, and think it shows very poor business methods on the part of the dealers that did not favor me with an answer. I do not feel that you are in any way responsible for the actions of these dealers and do not regret having subscribed to your paper, as I look forward to receiving it each week and have bought quite a few stamps from a couple of dealers I have gotten into correspondence with through the paper. My reason for writing to you is that you might point out to your advertisers the good business policy of answering correspondence.

FORMER MAYOR GIVEN A START TOWARDS STAMP COLLECTING.

Ex-Mayor Thomas N. Hart of Boston, on his 94th birthday, late in January, was given a Mayor's Club luncheon at Young's Hotel. When he was mayor of Boston, he was known to be an ideal business executive, and now though nearly up to the century mark, he retains his faculties to a remarkable degree. At the luncheon the small pupils of the Thomas N. Hart School presented him with a stamp book that contained stamps from thirty-seven different countries. In connection with the presentation Mr. Hart stated that in his long career he had overlooked one of the popular pastimes of the age and declared that while he had never collected stamps, "never before had he been given such a stimulating start in that direction." We are sending Mr. Hart a copy of the WEEKLY to supplement this missionary effort.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited, as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—R. M. Tribble sends us a new advertising cancellation. It comes from Greenville, S. C., and reads:—"United States Good Roads Convention, April 16-21, 1923".

—E. G.—The Panama book by F. E. Heydon, while listing all varieties, does not price them.

—"In my page ad of January 20th, I made an error in offering Gibraltar Nos. 63, 64 and 65, whereas I had wanted to offer, at same prices, Nos. 72, 73 and 74. The former three numbers it would be obviously impossible to sell at prices quoted. Will you kindly make an explanation in the NEWS for me?"—MAXWELL KRAUSE.

—E. Paimann informs us that a stamp shop has been secured at 75 W. 44th St., N. Y. City. We congratulate this firm upon its enterprise and trust good business will result.

—Thirty-three years ago, the same year that this paper made its bow, the Marks Stamp Co. entered the arena of stamp dealers. The firm has celebrated by issuing a wholesale and retail catalog of 140 pages, announcing packets, mixtures, dealers' stocks, accessories, etc. It is probably the largest list of its kind ever issued. A charge of 10c is made to include the cost of mailing, but the catalog is well worth this price from the standpoint of showing stamp values.

—A. M. McFadden announces elsewhere in this issue that he has disposed of his interest in the Stamp Shoppe and is now doing business from Mt. Ranier, Md. He has taken regular space in the WEEKLY.

—"It was ten years since I had taken an active interest in stamps, but MEKEEL'S has brought back the old enthusiasm, which was started by an exhibit of the Syracuse Stamp Club held at the public library. This Club has been holding another exhibit at the same place during the month of January last past, which has created much interest among non-collectors as well as the elect, and will no doubt result in new additions to the ranks. I believe such exhibits should be held at least annually wherever collectors are organized into clubs, as it is an inexpensive and efficient means of advertising Philately among those not reached by ordinary methods. Like all advertising, it should be given in regular doses year after year."—R. L. SIMONS.

—On Friday, Feb. 2, W. Wesley Hibbard of Detroit radioed stamp collecting through the Detroit Free Press broadcasting station. Will those collectors who heard it communicate with Herman W. Boers, 2673 Maple St., Detroit, Mich.? Mr. Boers thinks that publicity along radio lines would be profitable for stamp collecting.

—We have been made acquainted with a worthy shut-in, George E. Hart, Route 5, Box 28, Salem, Ore. Mr. Hart has not left his bed for nearly a year, and for the past four years has been battling with pulmonary tuberculosis. He has a small collection of stamps and will be very glad to have any additions made to it that are possible.

—Wm. N. Swain, 73 Cornhill, Boston, Mass., returning from Argentine, brought with him a history of that country which contains quite a biography of William Brown. Mr. Swain offers to accommodate the subscriber who was interested in this person and inquired for historical data.

—Columbus, Ga., has recently printed the following precancels:—Perf. 11 (old issue): 1c, 2c, 3c, 3c Victory, 4c, 5c, 6c, 7c, 8c, 9c, 10c, 12c, 15c, 20c and 50c. Vertical surcharge on 3c Victory in two lines. "Columbus, Ga." and horizontal on the rest. The post-office informs me that all precancels are hand printed.—G. S. GOODALE.

IS IT OPERATING ?

The longest and loneliest postal route on the American continent will be opened shortly, with the establishment at Aklaviek of the most northerly post-office in Canada. It is a trading post within the Arctic Circle at the mouth of the Mackenzie River. It will enjoy three mails yearly, two by steamer during the open season and a third during the winter by dog sled.—Newspaper Clipping.

PRECANCEL DEPARTMENT.

By FREDERICK W. ALLEN.

Hundreds of towns used precanceled stamps for the first time during the 1922 holiday season. It is important to chronicle as large a number as possible, and I shall appreciate readers sending in notes for publication and reference work.

Hudson, Platteville, Shell Lake, Stoughton, and Jefferson, all of which are located in Wisconsin, used distinctive hand stamps last Xmas. Boscobe precanceled the Victory Issue with the double lined roller. Mr. Alvin Krause of Pewaukee, Wis., has shown me copies of precancels from these cities.

Martinsburg, W. Va., is a newcomer. It sports an electrotype similar to U-6. All values from 1c to 50c are being used.

Exactly like the above type are the new Manitowoc, Wis., precancels. This old Indian village, which is now an enterprising manufacturing center, formerly employed a handstamp productive of a very indistinct overprint. From now on, though, we shall not have to strain our eyes in locating our Manitowocs.

"Appelten", Wis., occurs in the present issue of Appelton, Wis. This error is very distinct upon a copy of the 1c owned by Mr. Krause. I am unable to state how often it occurs, but advise collectors to be on the lookout for it, as it will command a good price.

Mr. Albert Clattenburg, Jr., of Chestnut Hill, Pa., informs me that Hazelton, Pa., used precancels during the rush at Xmas. A handstamp similar to U-1 overprinted all values up to the 20c and also the Special Delivery.

Buffalo, N. Y., precanceled Special Deliveries, are not catalogued, but they have been out for some time and appear in the regular type.

The first new Special Delivery to be precanceled bears the name of that city which is our most prolific user of precancels—Chicago, Ill.

Shelbyville, Md., joins the host of post-offices boasting the U-18 electro. The 1 cent denomination is all that has fared my way.

Ogden, Utah, has resurrected from the dusty vault their U-1 plate and for the first time since 1913 Ogdens are appearing in that type. They make a nice showing and a set from 1c to 50c exclusive of the 13c makes a striking array. The 1c and 2c dues are also out. Try to annex some from Ogden and find out how scarce they are. No! you cannot buy them from the post-office.

Chadron, Neb., emerges with a new type much like Santa Cruz, Calif., but larger letters. "Cette ville" formerly did their work with a U-8 handstamp.

Pontiac, Ill., is not listed by B. Gordon, but it has floated several issues during the past Christmas seasons. This past rush they used a handstamp having, between bars, about the same size letters as the Peoria electro.

The Eugene, Ore., P. M. has saturated their stamp pad with purple ink, for the precancels emanating from there are coming in that bright hue. A fine 7c double and also a few other values were thoughtfully saved for me by a friend.

Shades of baseball!! Keating, Ore., breaks into the game with a precancellation in thin caps between lines. It closely resembles Type II of Evanston, Ill. Mr. Jack Parker shows me the 6c.

A Mormon stronghold, Provo, Utah, is another new user of the precancel. This post-office canceled but a small number during the 1922 rush, so they are going to be scarce as ambergris. The hand stamped impression pictures PROVO, UTAH, in short, thick letters between heavy bars. I am indebted to Mr. Parker for allowing me to inspect an 11c double and a 30c normal.

Scottsbluff, Nebr., graces the Special Delivery in both normal and inverted positions. This item will be a hard one to gather in, for one seldom sees even a Scottsbluff precancel of the regular issue.

Two interesting double prints on the 3c surface from Nashville, are double inverted, and a double with one normal and one inverted. These occur in Type II.

I shall be glad to hear from fellow collectors at all times and will endeavor to answer questions or impart information upon precancel collecting fully and promptly.

JANUARY ROLL OF HONOR.

Excellent work was done during January in the securing of new subscriptions. W. W. Betts heads the list with 50, with the Fennell Stamp Co. 41 and the C. E. Hussman Co. 36. We prophesied last month that Mr. Betts' work would be emphasized with a substantial increase and his total reaches 90, pushing the C. E. Hussman Co. strongly for second place. We are especially gratified at the manner in which the returns have come in, covering as they do a very wide area. New subscriptions have been received during the past month from all the displayed names with two exceptions. Our roll of honor was begun October 1 and will continue until Sept. 30, 1923. A half page of advertising space will be given the dealer winning first honors for the year and a quarter page will be awarded to each of the two next highest contestants. The leaders for January subscriptions are:—

CALGARY PHILATELIC SOCIETY.

On December 5th the Calgary Philatelic Society held their last meeting for the year 1922, and reports were submitted by the President, Dr. E. G. Mason, and the Secretary, Mr. M. Thomas, showing that the Society had made excellent progress since its formation six months ago.

The membership now stands at fourteen, all members being residents of Calgary, and including the foremost collectors of the city, and the finances of the organization were shown to be in a very healthy condition. Steps have been taken to include collectors residing outside of Calgary amongst those eligible for membership, at a reduced fee, and it is anticipated that this move will greatly increase the membership.

YE TOLERANT ED.

The attention of our readers is called to an article on the first page entitled "Fortunes in Old Stamps." Many persons are interested in stamps, and many a long-closed garret has been opened to see if any old letters cannot be found with the stamps attached. The stamp craze is only a fad, like many another, but if it affords pleasure to a person to spend time and money in gathering them in, let them enjoy it.—Clipped.

A TRIP TO MEXICO.

BEING THE CHRONICLE OF A RECENT PHILATELIC EXPEDITION TO OUR SISTER REPUBLIC.

By CHAS. S. THOMPSON.

It was a dark and stormy night, away out in the southwest section of a large and constantly growing occidental community. Our dexter auditory appendage caressed the mollific profundity of an eider-stuffed pillow, when our one-piece jazz orchestra, Baby Ben, exploded into the internationally-famous strains of "Three O'Clock in the Morning."

Thirty minutes later, having attired ourselves in happy habiliment, we absorbed some of that geographical information which is of such intense value to the philatelically-inclined, to wit: as we inhaled our aromatic brew of Mocha and Java, we discovered that the origin of our nectar was nearer Costa Rica than either Arabia or the Indies Neerlandaises. Having satisfied ourselves of this truth, we commenced the reduction of a second section of fossilized bakery goods, when the raucous growl of the Klaxon on our friend Porkchops Milne's Detroit Cement Mixer fractured the morning calm and all the eardrums in the neighborhood.

Our guns and ammunition were installed in the posterior portion of the Orphan Henry, as we intended a trip to Mexico, the land of the bull, and a bit of shooting might be necessary. My companion remarked in passing that as the guns were double barreled, in case anything went wrong with the cylinders of the Street Cootie, we could saw off an inch from the end of each gun, and have a new set; while by using a bit of a cartridge occasionally in the gas, we could get plenty of kick.

An hour, and we had left the roaring activity and the snoring stillness of the metropolis of the Pacific Coast behind us, and were in the midst of speed traps and midnight motor cops, intently patrolling the state highway for bootleg.

Two hours, and we had passed the last of these outpests of civilizaton, and had reached a point where there was sufficient daylight for us to distinguish the outlines of a powerful car, provided with something besides gasoline and oil. We saw this layout several times on the trip, and noticed that the springs were less depressed each time!

Three hours, and we had to give Lizzie another hypo of gasoline, and a gallon of oil. Four hours, and we saw our first country post-office, with sign out "New Issue of U. S. not yet on sale. Fresh Eggs, 58c a Doz." Five hours, and we had reached a place where the grade of the road was so high that we feared our low-grade machine could never make it, but by getting a bit of salt water from the adjacent ocean, and putting it in the radiator, we managed to reach the top, after which we were able to coast into Sandy Ague, the rising rival of Lost Angie Lees, and there we acquired merit and comestibles.

Sandy Ague is so near to the Mexican water-front that lobster (they call 'em that here—they're crawfish) is in season the year 'round. The writer had his a la Newburg, and they have the sherry in Sandy Ague to make it that way, too. But our friend and chauffeur ordered the usual porkchops, and refused even to consider any exotic feats of gastronomy.

Shortly after we were being searched by a congeries of American boundary officials, who warned us that licker brung acrost the line would make a feller lose a perfectly good Boulevard Bug. Then we received further warnings from a set of Mexicano cut-throats who roosted in the shade of a spreading hooch-hound tree, a little farther down the boulevard, now become a "calle," as we had entered the land of frijoles, wood alcohol, zinc-lined stomachs, and romance.

Being philatelically inclined, we set our hearts to duty, and shunned the deadly pitfalls of gin which line both sides of both streets of Tia Juana, the Anti-Volstead Annex of the Sovereign State of California. We cruised about, between, and around bars, and eventually arrived before a stately edifice of 'dobe and clapboards, which bore the proud designation, painted on a fragment of packing box, "PALACIO DEL GOBIERNO." It also bore a warning, in purest Castilian, that autos, caballeros on horse, and other vehicles were not allowed in the courtyard, probably on account of the fact that said enclosure was already well filled with four- and two-wheeled equipages, saddled mules, and other means of conveyance.

In this government palace we eventually located the "Casa de Correos," the

H. F. COLMAN 2ND NATIONAL BANK BLDG., WASHINGTON, D. C.

Post Office which we had come so far to seek. We were badly rattled on the journey, but not half as much as with the stark magnificence of the postal administration and housing. There was a clerk at the "buzon" or counter who attached the "sellos" to the letters of the honorable garrison of the calaboose just across the way, and he had no eyes, nor any use, for individuals of any other creed, profession, or avocation. He was frigidly aloof when we dragged out our best Castilian by the hair, cast a few pearls, and attempted to hold converse with him. He shrugged his shoulders, rolled another cigarette, using the margin of a sheet of stamps for paper, and advised us to call again in three hours, when the special clerk who waited on Americanos and other gringo abominations would return, unlock his safe, and dispense "estampillas" as long as we had "dinero" with which to purchase, "but just now, Senor, por Dios, we have too much business to attend to to be bothered by a trifling purchase of postage stamps, as we desire to get the mail ready to send away day after tomorrow," or perhaps it was tomorrow after day after tomorrow.

Being thus utterly squelched, we determined to make the best of the affair, and started to view the scenery. We found the interior of the 8 x 12 room constituting the foyer of the post-office to be decorated with long typewritten lists of letters, postal cards, packages, and newspapers which were in the clutches of the federal office-holders, as you don't call for any mail in Mexico unless it is there for you, and they make out these complete lists once every two or three days or weeks for the express purpose of eliminating any undue friction on letters, due to unnecessary handling in seeking a particular missive.

Having found to our complete satisfaction that there was no mail in Tia Juana for either of us, we felt that a change of scene was desirable, and therefore meandered in a lateral direction toward the Plaza de Toros, the alleged bull-ring, consisting of rickety tiers of weather-worn slabs, apparently a decidedly dangerous place for spectators as well as for bulls. On one wall was a list of the famous matadors, picadors, and cuspidors, and other artists who were engaged to furnish entertainment to the brave caballeros and fair senoritas of the beautiful municipality of Tia Juana, and other similar statements which went well with the surroundings.

Heading the list of bull-fighters was the name of one Juancillo Topolabampa de Tipi-tapá, who was declared by the flamboyant poster to be a "temperamental torero." He would probably be much worse than that after about three perforations and one watermark of Mexican booze.

A little farther, on the same fence, we read a political announcement of the "reform" party of Tia Juana. "We will give you a business administration by business men; we will make Tia Juana a second edition of Paradise. Down with the Do-Nothings and Know-Nothings who have controlled the destinies of our fair stronghold of Mexican civilization for so long." And much more bull of the same kind.

Our three hours having passed, we returned to the palace, and discovered that the grandee who purveyed postal paper had returned to his post, and once more we dragged forth our "lengua Castellana" to the light of day and the ears of a Mexican official.

We requested "sellos de el correo aereo," and were informed that His Eminence had never heard of airplane stamps possibly the Americanos had them in Sandy Ague. We asked for the stamps of the "Cruz Roja," and learned that the Double Cross and not the Red Cross is the regular Mexican article. We asked for "tarjetas postales," and we got a lot of postal cards that had been the resting place of many articles and many animals not supposed to park on postal cards. And the second assistant to the first assistant postmaster had to stick two extra one-cent stamps on each one before he sold them to us, whereupon we thought of something else and demanded some of the "estampillas de entrega inmediata," as the Scootalog lists that Mex. special delivery at 40c, and we were determined to lay in a supply. "Si, Senor! Tengo sellos de entrega inmediata! Tengo muchos!" And he dragged forth the whole stock. There were twelve of them in a very large envelope, and seven of them were fit for philatelic purposes. We bought these, and parted with 35c "oro," for all American mazuma is "gold," even if it is only copper. Then we politely asked to be allowed to inspect the rest of the "stock" of stamps, and were allowed to gaze on perhaps seven dollars and six bits worth of stamps of three or four different issues, all religiously stowed in large envelopes of a long-forgotten vintage, judging from the thumbprint signatures of dead-and-gone generations of Mexican officials who had left the impress of their personality on these containers. But we found no rarities, so decided to call it a month, tho we had been in Mexico only half a day.

Then we adjourned to the plaza in front of the "carcel publica," which is what they call a jail here, and asked the commandante if he had any Hawaiian Missionaries to cell. Being answered in the negative, we decided to form a stamp society, and then and there instituted "El Club Filatelico de Tia Juana," elected ourselves members and officers, sent announcements to William Scandolph Wurst and Acie Wrestler, and started for home.

We passed the Mexican inspectors successfully, but the Americanos were more inquisitive. "No booze?" "Didn't take a single drink?" "Loco, sure. Wat did you go over for if you didn't intend to buy any hooch? Postage stamps? Wat can you do with Mexican postage stamps in the United States? They ain't g over here. Fer stamp collectors? S Bill, come over here! These two g went acrost the line an' they claim th never snooted up any an' all they was t' buy postage stamps. C'n you b it!"

A great many items in our stock of early Brazilian stamps have been entirely cleaned out. We can still supply a packet of forty varieties of Brazil from 1866 to 1900 at 50c per packet. The original packets had fifty varieties and the average catalog value was about $8.00 for each packet.

The packets of obsolete British Colonials contain eighty varieties, including Africa and Uganda, Cyprus, Fiji, Sarawak, Malay States, Johore, et cetera; a very fine lot for $1.00.

STAMPS OF THE AUSTRIAN MILITARY P. O. IN THE GREAT WAR 1914-18.

By DOUGLAS B. ARMSTRONG.

One of the most historically interesting series of War stamps issued by the Central European Powers between the years 1914 and 1918 is that supplied to the military post offices of the Austro-Hungarian Army on active service. Actually it comprises four separate and distinct groups of issues—first the general series for use by the military postal service in the occupied regions of Russian Poland, Albania, etc.; second, the special issues of the Italian campaign; third, those for Montenegro; fourth, and last, Roumania—a total of 245 stamps, exclusive of errors or varieties.

At first the field post offices were supplied with contemporary postage stamps of their respective countries without any sort of distinction. Then the offices attached to Austrian divisions made use of the 1913 series of Austria, cancelled with special postmarks, inscribed "K.U.K. FELD-POSTAMT" or "K.U.K. Hauptfeld postamt," and those hailing from Bosnia used Bosnian stamps postmarked "K.U.K." Etappenpostamt," whilst the Hungarian field postmarks were inscribed "Tabori postahivatal" or "Tabori fopostahivatal." These stamps were, of course, only required for use upon postal matter that was not subject to the military franchise, the bulk of the correspondence of the Austro-Hungarian Armies in the field passing free under frank.

I.—GENERAL ISSUES.

In order, presumably, that the stamp accounts of the military post offices might be kept quite distinct from those of the civil postal service, instructions were given to the Royal and Imperial Printing Works at Vienna to overprint a supply of the current stamps of Bosnia (series 1912) with the words "K.U.K. FELD POST" diagonally across the lower right-hand corner for provisional use pending the engraving of dies for a special issue of military postage stamps. This was done, and the stamps delivered to the military post-offices on campaign in Poland between February and April, 1915, in the following quantities:—

1	heller	olive,	160,000
2	"	deep blue,	160,000
3	"	claret,	160,000
5	"	green,	130,000
6	"	black,	140,000
10	"	carmine,	130,000
12	"	olive green,	120,000
20	"	yellow-brown,	80,000
25	"	ultramarine,	80,000
30	"	orange-red,	30,000
35	"	greenish black,	30,000
40	"	violet,	30,000
45	"	olive-brown,	30,000
50	"	blue-black,	30,000
60	"	red-lilac,	80,000
72	"	dark blue,	30,000
1	kr	purple on yellow,	30,000
2	kr	black on dark blue,	30,000
3	kr	carmine on green,	3,000
5	kr	violet on grey,	3,000
10	kr	ultramarine on grey,	3,000

The above exist with the overprint double, or inverted; also imperforate.

They may be found both with the numeral cancellations of the various field post-offices, and with the Polish town postmarks of Dabrowa, Jedrzejow, Miechow, etc.

On July 1st, 1915, this provisional issue was replaced by a series of definitive design, incorporating portraits of the Emperor Francis Joseph struck from the same dies as for the Bosnian stamps, but surrounded by new borders, with the designation "K.U.K. FELDPOST" engraved in one line of white capitals across the top. The series comprised the same values as before, of which the undermentioned quantities were printed:—

1	heller	olive,	1,450,000
2	"	deep blue,	1,250,000
3	"	red-brown,	3,700,000
5	"	green,	7,280,000
6	"	black,	530,000
10	"	carmine	5,900,000
12	"	olive-green,	490,000
20	"	yellow-brown,	630,000
25	"	ultramarine,	680,000
30	"	orange-red,	640,000
35	"	dark green,	360,000
40	"	dark violet,	480,000
45	"	olive-brown,	280,000
50	"	greenish black,	360,000
60	"	brown-lilac,	440,000
72	"	dark blue,	380,000
1	kr	purple on yellow,	130,000
2	kr	black on azure,	138,000
3	kr	carmine on green,	80,000
5	kr	purple on deep green,	43,000
10	kr	ultramarine on grey,	47,500

All the foregoing are known imperforate.

A revision of the postal tariff which came into force necessitated the addition of four new values to the current "Feldpost" series on October 1st, 1916. At the same time the 10 and 20 heller were changed in colour to avoid confusion. Design, etc., as before.

10 heller blue,	?
10 " rose-carmine,	2,700,000
[illegible] " olive-green,	?
80 " yellow-brown,	800,000
90 " claret,	250,000
4 kr purple on grey,	70,000

Following the death of the old Emperor a new series of stamps, engraved with a portrait of his successor, the Emperor Karl, was placed in circulation by the military post-offices in June, 1917, with the exception of the values 1 and 2 heller, which were not released until May, 1918. Of this series there were printed in all:—

1 heller blue-green,	1,950,000
2 " scarlet,	2,535,000
3 " sepia,	3,210,000
5 " green,	2,760,000
6 " violet,	1,050,000
10 " red-brown,	4,120,000
12 " dark blue,	660,000
15 " rose,	2,085,000
20 " chocolate,	2,060,000
25 " blue-violet,	520,000
30 " greenish black,	1,100,000
40 " olive,	1,700,000
50 " dark green,	1,000,000
60 " claret,	1,140,000
80 " steel blue,	2,160,000
90 " purple,	680,000
2 kr carmine on yellow,	3,550,000
3 kr dark green on bluish,	140,000
4 kr carmine on greenish,	115,000
10 kr violet on grey,	120,000

Owing to the difficulty in obtaining paper of the requisite quality, coupled with the absence of qualified workmen to produce stamps by the line-engraved process, it was decided to print the low values, from 1 to 90 heller, by typography. The necessary plates were laid down and a first supply of stamps in the new design printed off in readiness for issue towards the end of October, 1918. Before they could be placed in circulation, however, the events of October 28th had rendered further issues unnecessary. The total printing of these abortive stamps comprised:—

1 heller green,	850
2 " orange,	850
3 " grey-black,	850
5 " bright green,	250,850
10 " brown,	175,850
20 " red,	50,850
25 " blue,	50,850
30 " olive,	850
45 " black,	850
50 " green,	850
60 " violet-blue,	850
80 " carmine,	850
90 " violet,	50,850
1 kr olive on greenish,	1,650

In addition to the foregoing regular postage stamps an issue of newspaper stamps was made on behalf of the Austro-Hungarian military post-offices in August, 1916, and one of charity postage stamps in October, 1918.

The newspaper stamps, in four denominations, bearing the head of Mercury, were provided for franking regimental magazines or journals, which were carried at greatly reduced rates. They were printed in the following numbers:—

2 heller dark blue,	3,500,000
6 " orange,	400,000
10 " carmine,	400,000
20 " brown,	450,000

The charity postage stamps in the "Karlsford" types of Bosnia, with amended inscriptions, "FELDPOST" were only on sale for a few days prior to the Austrian secession of October 28th, 1918. They were sold at a pre-

II.—SPECIAL ISSUES FOR OCCUPIED ITALY.

The establishment of a public postal service under control of the Austrian military authorities in the occupied territory of Venetia was authorised by a decree of April 27th, 1918. Various proposals for the creation of special stamps were put forward, but it was ultimately decided to make use of the ordinary "Feldpost", series. At first these were employed without any distinguishing characteristic, and postally used specimens showing the postmarks of Venetian towns are exceedingly rare. As from July 1st, 1918, however, the "Feldpost" stamps in the type of 1917-18 supplied to these post-offices were, for greater convenience, surcharged with local values in Italian currency, at the rate of 95 centesimi to the lire. Newspaper, Express Delivery and Postage Due stamps were also provided, surcharged in a like manner. The following is an official record of the numbers printed of each denomination:—

2 centesimi	on 1h blue green,	300,000
3 "	on 2h scarlet,	365,000
4 "	on 3h sepia,	375,000
6 "	on 5h green,	125,000
7 "	on 6h violet,	120,000
11 "	on 10h carmine,	200,000
13 "	on 12h dark blue,	100,000
16 "	on 15h rose,	200,000
22 "	on 20h chocolate,	125,000
27 "	on 25h blue violet,	120,000
32 "	on 30h green,	135,000
43 "	on 40h olive,	120,000
53 "	on 50h dark green,	125,000
64 "	on 60h claret,	100,000
85 "	on 80h steel blue,	225,000
95 "	on 90h dark violet,	120,000
2 lire 11c	on 2 kr carmine on yellow,	100,000
3 lire 16c	on 3 kr dark green on bluish,	100,000
4 lire 22c	on 4 kr carmine on greenish,	100,000

Newspaper Stamps (inscribed "K. U. K. FELDPOST")

3 centesimi	on 2h dark blue,	50,000
7 "	on 6h orange,
11 "	on 10h carmine,
22 "	on 20h brown.

Express Letter Stamps (Bosnian series, 1916).

3 centesimi	on 2h orange-red,	50,000
6 "	on 5h olive,

Postage Due Stamps (Bosnian series, 1916-18).

6 centesimi	on 5h carmine,	50,000
11 "	on 10h "
16 "	on 15h "
27 "	on 25h "
32 "	on 30h "
43 "	on 40h "
53 "	on 50h "

These stamps were sold by 22 Austrian military post-offices in Italian territory.

Stamps in the new surface printed type of 1918, additionally surcharged with values in Italian currency, as in the case of the general issue, were "prepared for use, but not issued." The total printing amounted to 25,850 copies each of the values 2, 3, 4, 6, 11, 22, 27, 32, 48, 53, 64, 85 and 95 centesimi, and 20,769 of the 1 lire 6c.

Italian fiscal stamps in four denominations overprinted "Orts Postmarke," together with the Arms of Austro-Hungary and the names of 18 Venetian towns, were prepared to denote the collection of a special fee for the house-to-house delivery of "Town Letters." They are known overprinted with the following town names:—Ampezzo, Auronzo, Cividale, Codroipo, Gemona, Latisana, Longarone, Maniago, Moggio, Palmanova, Piave di Cadore, S. Daniel di Friuli, S. Giorgio di Nog, S. Pietro al Nat, Spilimbergo, Tarcento, Tolmezzo and Udine. With the exception of the last-named, however, which was in use for one day only, they were not brought into use. There are 72 varieties in all, composed of the following denominations:—

1 cent on 5c red-orange (Violet opt.).
2 cent on 1c yellow-brown (Red opt.).
3 cent on 7½c olive (Violet opt.).
4 cent on 2c deep green (Green opt.).

III.—SPECIAL ISSUES FOR OCCUPIED MONTENEGRO.

Seventeen military post-offices were set up by the Austro-Hungarian forces operating in Montenegro during the years 1916-17, which were also opened to the civilian population on May 25th, 1916. Except for a special issue made on March 1st, 1917, to commemorate the establishment of the Military Government at Cettinje, the ordinary stamps of the "Feldpost" series were utilised throughout. This special issue consisted of 50,000 copies each of the 10 and 15 heller values overprinted in three lines "K.U.K.—MILITARVERWALTUNG MONTENEGRO."

10 heller blue.
15 " carmine-rose.

The same stamps overprinted with the word "MONTENEGRO" only at Cettinje were unauthorised, and their circulation was rigorously suppressed by the military authorities.

IV.—SPECIAL ISSUES FOR OCCUPIED ROUMANIA.

The two series of "Feldpost" stamps surcharged in local currency for use by the Austrian military post-offices in Roumania, were fully dealt with in the last number of this journal.—West-End Philatelist.

MR. CORCORAN COMMENDS.

This matter of skilfully repaired stamps is one close to both the heart and the pocket of every collector who is gathering old issues which sell from $10 to $50 or more apiece. I believe the dealer who would sell such a "fake" deliberately is a rare bird and I am going to continue to think so until it is proved otherwise conclusively. But mistakes do happen and they are as serious as costly. This has just come to my own attention in the form of a Nova Scotia No. 1. I have forgotten of whom I bought it. Could I remember I'm sure the purchase price would be returned gladly. But that does not effect the same Corner. Fennell's idea, adopted by all dealers and collectors of standing, would have made impossible such a bit of hard luck—I may say that when the stamp next goes on the market, there will be no doubt as to its imperfections in the mind of the buyer who examines its back.

With two such people pushing the demand for a recognized marking for repaired stamps, the movements should go far. It is badly needed for the protection of beginners quite as much as for the old-timer who is too careless. And the "trade" certainly should get back of anything to further its repute.

COMMUNICATION.

TO THE EDITOR :—

Now that you have given the readers of the WEEKLY a chance to guess on why small towns use the slogan "Address your Mail to Street and Number" on hand stamps, let's get down to the real facts in the case.

These hand stampers are made by E. Baumgarten of Washington, D. C. It has been his business for a number of years to make rubber stamps and has been the successful bidder with the P. O. Dept. for rubber faced hand stampers which are used in all fourth class offices. Third Class offices are supplied with steel faced hand stampers which are made by Chambers Bros. at Lodge, Va. This latter information is given to explain the reason why Mr. B. is not supplying third class offices.

Like any other business man, Mr. B. is looking for business and he naturally wants to sell all the rubber stamps he can find a market for. He conceived the idea of appropriating the "Address Your Mail" slogan to a discontinued design of postmarking stamp which he made some time ago. In order to make this he used an exact reproduction of this part of the die used on machines manufactured by the International Postal Supply Co.

This new design of postmarking stamp Mr. B. offered for sale direct to postmasters and out of several hundred price lists which he sent out he succeeded in selling at least fifty or more to postmasters. This impression was unknown to the P. O. Dept. when we wrote the Fourth Asst. Postmaster General in May, 1922. At this time we sent the P. O. Dept. impressions from several offices using this stamp and a short time after this the postmasters at these offices discontinued their use. We took it for granted the Dept. requested them not to use it.

The explanation is all right that mail in small towns is not generally addressed locally and that in a roundabout way these markings educate the "rustics," but there is not much use in making a scientific subject out of an ordinary business deal. If the P. O. Dept. had authorized these or had given their permission for their use, we could look at them in a different light, but in reality they were sold and placed in use contrary to previous rules and regulations which should have been familiar to both postmaster and manufacturer.

In Sept. issue of the Collectors' Digest on page 154, is given a list of forty-four post-offices at which these postmarking stamps had been used up to that time. Several new ones have been located since. In the July 29th (1922) issue of the WEEKLY this postal marking was illustrated and described and much of the above information was included.

To those who read the philatelic press closely they can find many of these little things explained (?) by those who imagine the answer rather than take the time to look up the facts. Every little while some one sends in to Beverly a foreign mail permit. These are chronicled as metered mail. Metered mail so far has never been used outside of the United States. The Postage Meter Co. have their meter covered by patents. After nearly a year's work the Mail-O-Meter Co. of Detroit have secured a patent on a postage meter but separate from the printing mechanism. They have a machine in use in the wholesale house of Marshall Field, in Chicago, and one in their office in Detroit, but these are the only two machines they have completed and sold.

There is a vast difference between a mail permit and a meter mark, almost as much difference as between a postage stamp an an oil painting. It may seem immaterial whether all these are referred to as permits or as meters until we understand the subject, but when we do understand it it sounds ridiculous. The best philatelists in the U. S. subscribe and rely on the WEEKLY for information and I have replied to hundreds of letters from collectors who want to call these foreign permits meter marks simply because the WEEKLY calls them meters.

The mail permits they are using in Germany and other foreign countries are nothing more than what you have seen on U. S. mail for years, simply a permit for Third Class Mail without stamps affixed. They are printed in red and have a more distinctive design than the three or four straight printed lines that have been used here, but the numbers included in what we would call the canceller is the permit number and not a meter number.

Please refer to the Booklet No. 43 which you issued on mail permits and on pages 8 and 9 the five types of U. S. permits are illustrated. Types A, D and E are meter marks but more strictly speaking only Types D and E are meters and both of these have the letter M or the word "meter" which the government insists must be included in the indicia. Firms using metered mail can mail one or ten million letters at a time, those using the other permits even though first class but without a meter must bring to the post-office not less than 300 exact pieces and pay for them when delivered. The P. O. Dept urges the use of meters, and discourages the use of ordinary permit mailing for first class mail.

I am not getting excited over this lack of understanding. I have spent a great deal of time and money on this subject in order to know the game. Perhaps I don't know it yet, but what I don't know I am going to do my best to find out rather than guess at it.

Sincerely, A. H. PIKE,

ANGUILLA.

By HARRY E. HUBER.

While Anguilla has a Post Office, and stamps of both the Leeward Islands, and the St. Kitts-Nevis Presidency series are on sale, there is no special marking to distinguish the stamps used there from those used in St. Kitts. The cancelling tamp used at Anguilla is an old one sent over from St. Kitts, and it, as well as those used by all the offices in St. Kitts, are similarly lettered, i. e., St. Kitts, the only difference being that some re larger than others. That at Anguilla has a diameter of 20 mm (with date in the center in two lines, JU 27 — 22), and is used in conjunction with an obliterator, in the form of an eclipse on end of graduated bars (three above, three below, and one at each side) with A 12 inset.

There is a fortnightly mail service by ailing boats between St. Kitts and Anguilla. Mail received at Basseterre from Anguilla is generally backstamped with cancellation, a single lined circle, 25 mm., with the date in three lines in the enter—C — JU 29 — 22. The registraon stamp used at Anguilla (an upright val, enclosing a large "R") measures 5 x 24 mm; that at Basseterre measures 0 x 26 mm.

Anguilla, the most northerly of the Leewards, 60 miles to the northwest of t. Kitts, of which it is a dependency, 16 miles long, varying from a half to miles in width, with an area of 35 quare miles. It is flat and low, and of oral formation. Over two-thirds of its rea is unfit for agricultural purposes, ut the remaining third is very fertile. Its population of 5,098, mostly blacks, is ngaged in breeding cattle and raising mall crops of Indian corn, tobacco and ome cotton, which find a market at St. Thomas in the American Virgins. Salt nd phosphate of lime is also exported. Whites are conspicuous by their rarity. magistrate represents public authority mong these law-abiding people. There re five schools, under Government upervision.

A cluster of rocks to the northwest. nown as the Dogs, and whose only roducts are guano and phosphate of me, is a dependency of Anguilla.

The island of Anguilla was discovered y Columbus in 1493; colonised from St. Kitts in 1650, and in 1689, the settlers aving been greatly mistreated by the ish and French, were removed to Angua. The name Anguilla means snake, ut it is generally conceded that Herrera, he earliest historian of the Spanish-merican colonies, really called the land Aguila, the eagle, and its present ame is a corruption of the original.

On September 15, 1922, the island was sited by the hurricane, which did such amage at Barbuda, off to the southast, and over 700 were made homeless.

Water is a problem in Anguilla, just s it is in many of the smaller of the aribbean islands, and in a recent report the Secretary of State for the Colnies, the Government Geologist wrote hat eventually, due to the comparative ailure of wells, the people of Anguilla must fall back on storing rain water. At present the inhabitants of West End illage are content to walk 3 miles each ay for water, and the inhabitants of rocus Bay prefer to climb a steep hill, 20 ft. high, and down the other side to he Valley well, a total distance of nearly miles, there and back, rather than tch the water off their own roofs, and his just because it has been the custom om time immemorial to do so."

COLONIAL COLOURED PAPERS.

he Genesis of the New Yellow Paper.

By C. J. D. LEES.

BLACK AND RED ON YELLOW.

The majority of stamps printed in black and red on yellow paper are of the d value, but it is necessary to include so several 25c values, the 2 rupee Ceyn, the 96c British Guiana, 1 dollar Kedah and 2/6 St. Helena new type.

Apart from the great changes in the olour of the paper in this value, there the even more important change in the watermark, from the old Mult. CA to the new type Script CA. Whereas the colour of the 3d is changing from purple on yellow to blue, it is intended to continue the 4d value in black and red, but on the new Script paper.

As in the case of the 3d, this value exists in numerous varieties as follows:

A. The Original Paper, 1912-13. This paper appears shiny on the face as well as at the back, the quality being good, and the texture thick.

Two minor varieties exist: (i) Surface: Grey-black and red on yellow. Back: Orange-yellow. (ii) Surface: Black and red on yellow (centre foncé). Back: Lemon-yellow or yellow. N.B.—both sides alike.

B. The well-known white Back variety, 1913-16. Surface: As A. Back: White or buff-white.

C. The Lemon Paper, 1916. This paper is coloured throughout as "A," but a much brighter yellow than formerly and with quite an unmistakable green tinge. Surface: Yellow. Back: Lemon.

D. The Provisional Papers, 1919-21. There are two distinct types of these provisional papers, which are the first step towards the new paper. (i) The "Experimental" Paper. Quite distinct from any of its predecessors, in that it is of a dull or brown-orange colour. This paper tends to reduce the coloured type on the face of the stamp to a pale shade, which some people term "buff." Surface: Pale black and red on yel.-brown. Back: Dull orange-brown. (ii) A paper similar to the 1920 issue of the 3d Gilbert and Ellice, which forms a happy dumping ground for doubtful stamps. A pale paper, but not so pale or thin as the new yellow paper, and generally accompanied by small spots at the back. Great care must be exercised not to confuse this variety with the new yellow paper, and it is perhaps as well to mention that the colour on the face in this instance is deeper than the back, whereas in the case of the new yellow paper both sides are alike. Surface: Pale red and black on yellow. Back: Dull yellow.

E. The New Pale Yellow Paper, 1920-22. The paper employed in this issue varies, being thick for surfaced and thin for non-surfaced stamps, but the paper in either case is thinner than previously. In some instances the yellow can be washed off the stamp leaving it white. Surface: Black and red on pale yellow. Back: Pale yellow. N.B.—Both sides are alike.

F. The New Pale Yellow Script Paper, 1922-3. The new script paper used for the first time to produce stamps coloured throughout. Surface and Back as before. It is perhaps hardly necessary to point out that the back of the stamps is the place to look in diagnosing the different variations. The order of rarity, except perhaps for a few isolated examples, is C, D, E and B equally rare, then A, and of course F, the pending issue. The "rarities" are the 4d Lemon Jamaica, which in my estimation stands alone; Mauritius 25c "white back" and "experimental paper;" East Africa and G.E.A. 25c experimental paper; Fiji lemon and experimental 4d.—Philatelic Magazine.

THE TRIALS OF MR. RUFFO.

(From the Musical Record.)

The trials of Tonio in a troupe of strolling players or the misfortunes of an Amonasro in an Egyptian landscape à la Verdi, are naught to compare with the "slings and arrows" that beset the path of the philatelist in these days. It is easy to sustain one's reputation as an "international baritone" when one has a voice like Mr. Ruffo, but the problems of an internationally known stamp collector are fraught with difficulties. When the celebrated singer wears a worried look and hastens from the opera house with a preoccupied air it's odds on that some member-state of the Little Entente has brought out a new week-end issue of stamps. In this piping period of "self-determination" there is nothing for the Philatelists' League to do but affiliate with the unions concerned and organize a strike against the printing of new postage stamps until all recent issues have been catalogued.

PAYMENIS BY THE 20th.

We are greatly pleased at the manner in which the vast majority of advertisers are complying with our rule of payment of bills upon presentation. We feel that this rule is absolutely necessary in the conduct of the WEEKLY. A number of advertisers are dilatory in making their payments. Some payments reach us early in the following month, and we must make effective the rule that we have established.

In the future our rule as regards payment upon presentation will be more strictly enforced and where bills are unpaid by the 20th of the month we shall omit advertising from the first issue in the following month. It is our purpose not to add any item of indebtedness to the bills that go out the first of the month.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

W. L. George, the English writer, in one of his recent daily articles, distributed in this country by the United Features Syndicate, deals with "Collections" in a way to make the judicious rave. Evidently, Mr. George wants to shatter any shred of self-complacency that we may have as stamp collectors; and he wields his pen as a club with a berserk at one end in a skin-full of fire-water. He says that he believes that there is something "slightly imbecile" in any form of collecting, even though there are matured folks who collect stamps; and it is alleged that they know nothing about the beauty of a stamp. He thinks that if you are a collector, you are diseased and that you are much akin to the opium addict. Mr. George collected stamps and other things until he began "to live" when all objects became trivial, in comparison to the outlook afforded by the world. He begs his readers not to confirm their faith in collecting of any kind and above all not to confine within the covers of an album the power to participate in the joys and sorrows of life,—unless you want nothing more from life. Only the ages of adolescence or senescense are the proper periods for collecting. We have quoted only skippingly as we can conceive of nothing more humiliating than to be called down for infringing on the copyright that throws its protecting cloak around these pearls of thought. Mr. George's essay is such a round-robin of exaggeration that it may be refuted at any point. We must say that we know of a few collectors of stamps that are living in the world; they are found "in the van of human progress" and they are not soft but sophisticated. They have been known to pat the python on the back and lean against the south pole; they have led armies and have ruled at sea and altogether have entered into life in a way to make the theorist who thinks he knows the world a jellyfish, in contrast to a porpoise.

Snooping through the Illustrated London News of January 18th, 1845, with its impression in red of the one penny newspaper fiscal tax, we find a reference to "the subscription raised as a testimony of the sense entertained by the nation of the value of the reform introduced into the post-office by Mr. Rowland Hill." The hope is expressed that the amount subscribed to the fund "will form a gift worthy of a great nation to a great benefactor."

We have not seen the January number of "History", MacMillen Company, two shillings, but according to the Spectator, Mr. B. D. Reed contributes an article to it that "shows how philately or stamp collecting illustrates political changes and how it may be made to assist the work of the teacher of history." Here is corroboration of no little importance, first that "History" recognizes that the political changes of a nation may be reflected in its stamps; and secondly, that the Spectator selects Mr. Reed's article for definite mention.

A Spanish contemporary says that the tendency in stamp design is to substitute for "royal or presidential" portraits, designs that are truly characteristic of the countries of issue. The example of Malta is cited in breaking away from custom. We invite the attention of our contemporary to our new U. S. set, which while adhering to the best in traditional treatment adopts as well the modern idea to advantage.

An addition is made to purely philatelic postmarks through the enterprise of the Boston Philatelic Society, Inc. On a letter postmarked, Boston, Feb. 8, 10-A. M., 1923, the box cancellation reads: "Philatelic Exhibition, Boston, Public Library, March 19-24, 1923." The following notice was enclosed in the envelope: "The Boston Philatelic Society, Inc., will hold an exhibition of postage stamps at the Boston Public Library from March 19th to March 24th inclusive, 1923. As a souvenir of the coming event you are receiving this notice enclosed in a cover with special cancellation, of which there are only three hundred and ninety-nine bearing its first date of use. B. F. Borhek, Chairman Exhibition Committee."

An esteemed correspondent says that recently he picked up a copy of the five cent of 1847 with numeral cancellation, 7, in black; and he adds: "Are they not rather scarce?" Casting aside our tendency to qualify the simplest of statements, we are almost inclined to asseverate in answer to the question so archly asked, that the owner of the stamp is well within his rights in saying that it is "rather."

A letter from Vienna says that it is becoming inconvenient, if not difficult, to buy postage stamps, as many of the places at which stamps formerly could be obtained no longer stock them. At the comparatively few offices at which stamps may be had, there is a crush of people bent on getting them. No little complaint is heard against this condition which imposes hardship on many of the people.

The postal beginnings in America are of much interest and until the time comes when all information about them is presented in book form, we shall have to cull accounts of early postal affairs from a wide range of publications. In "The Relation Between the Virginia Planter and the London Merchant," by John Spencer Basset of Trinity College, published in the annual report of the American Historical Society, 1901, we find: "A similar inconvenience was the irregularity of the mails. The post-office was introduced into Virginia in 1692. Before that time, letters were left to the rather uncertain accommodations of ships. . . . . . Sometimes the letters went astray through being forwarded in any chance ship that came to Virginia. By this means they might be sent in a James River ship and be as difficult to get on the banks of the Potomac, where Fitzhugh lived, as if they were still in London. The direction was to leave letters at Cooper's, who would forward them safely, or give them to any captain who was coming to the Potomac River in Virginia. This condition of affairs evidently produced serious trouble when, as in 1693, there was not a London ship in the Potomac."

We have been informed that Mr. Joseph Hoffman of New York City, from whom we have heard recently from Cuba, by-the-way, has undertaken to plan for the rehabilitation of the Society of Philatelic Americans whose difficulties were discussed at the last convention of the organization. The S. P. A. has been luckless in some ways but in meeting the situation squarely, as it evidently is the intention to do, the loyal members of the society are to be given credit. The hope is held that a working basis will be established whereby just results will follow and it is something to know that a policy of conservation has been adopted.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—A. C. LeDuc, 1094 Boyd Ave., Johnstown, Pa., is of the opinion that there are sufficient stamp collectors in that city to organize a stamp club and he would like to hear from those who are favorably inclined. We are pleased to publish this notice.

—The Syracuse (N. Y.) Herald of Feb. 11, contained a cartoon "As Seen from the Herald's Airship." In it are pictured A. Atlas Leve and D. Cady Fulmer having a stamp talk together. Mr. Leve is shown true to life with magnifying glass passing judgment on one of Mr. Fulmer's treasures.

—Edward E. Goodchild sends us a letter received by him from a member of the House of Commons in which it is stated that there is every indication that Canada will soon establish a philatelic stamp agency. The scope of the agency will necessarily be limited, as the number of Canadian issues is comparatively small.

—Rev. Henry W. Mercer of San Francisco, an A. P. S. member (2628), passed away last week at a ripe old age. He was an ardent philatelist and a bidder at an auction held a few days before his death.—E. P. SEEBOHM.

—Craig P. Smith, informs us that Bowie & Son are sending out old Borneo Exhibition stamps as new issues. Are there other subscribers who have had a similar experience?

—Henry Perlish sends us a clipping from a recent issue of the New York Tribune which is of more than ordinary interest. It is an editorial with the caption "A Great Year for Stamps" and it says of stamp collecting:—"It is really a valuable scientific pursuit." Had we the space we would gladly publish the editorial in full.

—Henry Lacks of St. Louis sends us the particulars of the annual banquet of the St. Louis Stamp Collectors Society, held Jan. 30, at the Peacock Cafe. A nice chicken dinner was enjoyed. W. D. Helman, president, introduced A. W. Johnson who served as toastmaster. Short talks were made by Messrs. Diamant, Eilers, Smith, Marston, Swatek, etc. The club is going finely.

—Frank A. Goldsmith has shown us the following new advertising cancellations:—"Better Homes Exposition April 2-14" from Hartford, Conn. and "Don't Miss 300th Anniversary Celebration Gloucester, Mass.. August 1923."

—The Toronto, Ont. Globe has lately started a stamp column, under the head of "The Circle of Young Canada Stamp Club." Interesting articles are printed in each Saturday issue, with illustrations Toronto is an important center of stamp selling and collecting and the series should be beneficial all around.—CHARLES H. BALL.

—"A new issue of stamps has been ordered for Newfoundland and the designs will contain views of different parts of the island, with the exception of the 3c which will depict the statue of "The Fighting Newfoundlander" in Bowring Park, St. John's. The issue will include a 13c stamp."—JOS. V. WELLS.

—"In your issue of February 3, Mr. Washburn explained at great length the manner in which parcels put in the mails abroad are delivered to destination through Customs brokers. But he did not state on what authority this is done nor how to avoid it, which I imagine are of more vital interest. The answers to these questions you will find in the U. S. Official Postal Guide, July 1921, page 185, in section 219 of the "Foreign Mails" section under the heading "Official and semi-official or express service."—H. E. KLEIST.

—"I have been collecting envelopes for some years, and find that the so-called drug on the market, is due to the fact that they are not properly classified in our Standard Catalogue. Allow me to make a few suggestions. First, that they be listed according to dies (this wouldn't necessitate the changing of numbers, use the old ones and add letters to new varieties). Secondary, get both dealers and collectors interested in this matter and take it up with the publishers."—WALTER M. GREENWOOD.

—We are advised of the death of Henry O'Neil, who for many years has been a subscriber to the WEEKLY and especially interested in British Colonials. He resided at Dorchester, Mass., and for many years has been a staunch philatelist. He died suddenly January 22.

—E. J. Newcomer, Yakima, Wash., would like the present address of A. F. Gamber, formerly of Fargo, N. D. Mr. Newcomber says that he has written several times to the Fargo address but can get no replies.

—Mrs. Maria E. Garcia, 122 West 90 St., New York, who has for a long time been in close contact with a number of collectors in Spanish America, informs us that she is about to publish a philatelic paper in Spanish with the purpose of getting together the American dealer and the Spanish collector.

—Leon Minassian, 120 W. 116 St., N. Y. City, desires information concerning his collection of Levants, Crete and Turkey which were stolen from him at the time of his hurried departure from Smyrna. His collection of these stamps was practically complete and he feels that some dealer either here or abroad may offer these stamps for purchase.

—Mr. Vallancey's want list of back numbers of the WEEKLY has been much reduced. We now wish to secure Nos. 53, 60, 81, 170, 176, 650, 744, 1155 and 1160. If you can furnish these, kindly drop this office a card.

A Real United States Rarity

One of the really rare as well as desirable stamps of 20th century United States is the well known 5c ERROR, IMPERFORATED, which our friend Mr. Scott lists as No. 394a and modestly prices at $750.00. The 5c error is without doubt the oddest variety ever issued by the United States, for this was not an error of printing such as an inverted center, but is an actual error of engraving, or rather of transferring. Not an error made in feeding one sheet to the press wrongly, but the transfer from the wrong die used in completing the plate. In an imperforated condition it takes its place as a real rarity. When you see a fine specialized collection of 20th century U. S., the first things you look for are the 5c imperf. error and the Pan American Inverts. No U. S. collection is complete without them.

I offer a wonderful mint copy entirely surrounded by 2c stamps — a block of twenty-five with the error in the center. The most desirable copy to be had. Price $750.00. Only one on hand, so write promptly if interested. Has never been offered at auction and is seldom seen at private sale. What else do you need in U. S.?

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the address of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—The new 3c purple, front face portrait of Abraham Lincoln, together with the $1 violet brown, showing a front view of the recently dedicated "Lincoln Memorial" in Washington, were placed on sale at the Philatelic Stamp Agency at Washington, D. C., on Monday, February 12, 1923, the 119th anniversary of the birth of our 16th President. A supply of the 3c were also sent to Louisville, the central accounting station, for transmission to Hodgenville, Larue County, Kentucky, his birthplace, while the $1 was sold on the first day at Springfield, Illinois, the last resting place of this great man.

The homely features of Lincoln really make the stamp attractive and to my way of thinking it is the most pleasing Lincoln stamp ever turned out by the Bureau. The same portrait is used as found on the $5 Federal Reserve Note. The stamp like the Roosevelt variety has the background omitted, making the head stand out clearly. The same general frame decoration found on the other low values is used. As mentioned before all future new portrait stamps will have the background missing and it will not come as a surprise if the background is in time dropped from those already issued.

The $1 is similar in size to the 3c with the long dimension horizontal. The central design is within a semi-circle surrounded by a panel which is supported on either side by acanthus scrolls. Within the panel and above the design appear the words "United States Postage" in white Roman letters. On a ribbon below the design are the words "Lincoln Memorial" and under this at the bottom in a white edged panel appears the word "Dollar" while at either end of this panel in the lower corners within circles "1." The entire stamp is enclosed within a single white line border, with triangular white line ornaments in both upper corners.

The 3c is printed in sheets of 400 while the $1 is in sheets of 200. These are of course cut into post-office panes of 100. The first sheet as usual was signed by the Postmaster General, Hubert Work, the Director of the Bureau, L. A. Hill and the Third Assistant Postmaster General, Warren Irving Glover. The 3c was from plate No. 14297 while the $1 was plate No. 14268. These two plates are the only ones completed as yet of these values, consequently all placed on sale the first day had the same plate number.

The $2 I am now told will appear in March, and it is hoped that the 12c will be ready to place on sale on the anniversary of the birth of Grover Cleveland. The $5 may be ready about the same time with the 14c not far off. Die proofs of the $5 have been submitted for approval and this will no doubt have been approved before these notes appear.

Mr. A. H. Pike writes to state that he as well as others in Buffalo are of the opinion that the 25c shows a view of the Canadian Falls rather than the American Falls as mentioned in this column some time back. Although my first information was official I have taken the matter up again and am assured that my first information was correct. It is from a photograph of the American Falls, taken from the extreme end of Goat Island.

New booklets of the 2c Washington are being placed on sale, and as the booklet plates for the 1c value have not been completed, some of the first combination booklets will have the old 1c Franklin and the new 2c Washington. Would it not be nice if we had the coil stamp printed from a combination of the two issues so that we could obtain pairs showing both issues?

Messrs. E. B. Sterling, R. H. Langdon and E. B. Chamberlain write to state that they have covers showing early uses of the 2c coil stamps, from a number of different towns, so that this variety has been pretty generally distributed.

Through the courtesy of the Boston Philatelic Society, I have received a cover, postmarked at Boston, February 8, 1923, and reading "Philatelic Exibition—Boston Public Library—March 19-24, 1923," the second philatelic cancellation ever officially used in this country. A printed card within advises that it is sent as a souvenier of the coming event and that only 399 were sent out on the first day. I am informed through a valued correspondent that these were cancelled in the presence of certain postal officials as well as Mr. B. F. Borhek, of the Boston Society. It is said that even the tryout slips used to try out the die were destroyed so that only this number of first day impressions exists. The die was placed into general use on the following day and will continue until the close of the Exhibition.

Washington will no doubt follow with the third at the time of the A. P. S. convention in August, and if those boys take advantage of their opportunities even more in the way of a philatelic oddity may be obtainable.

From Mr. Charles J. Phillips, formerly of Stanley Gibbons, Inc., of London, but now located in New York, I have received a very attractive 54-page cloth bound booklet, describing in detail the wonderful philatelic treasures gotten together by the late Mr. Henry J. Duveen. The booklet lists all stamps and items valued at more than $50 and covers practically all of the countries that issued the so called classics.

In United States I note especially a 10c Baltimore, a Brattleboro, a "R. H. M New York, besides the three plates the St. Louis reconstructed. In gener issues he had a wonderful lot, includir one of the finest assortments of bloc ever gotten together. There is a blo of the 10c 1847, several of the 5c, and wonderful block of the 1851 1c, showir types I and III. A unique mint blo of the 5c is on hand with blocks of t 10c and 12c. All of the 1857 are prese in blocks, including the 5c brick red, ar in the '61 issues I especially note bloc of the 3c pink, the 5c ochre and the 2 steel blue. I am under the impressic that the 5c is unique. Many blocks the grills are there, including singles the 5c and 30c, entirely grilled as well a 3c, 18x15. All of the 1869 are repr sented by blocks, including a block six of the 90c. Used singles of each the inverts are mentioned. )ffices in China.—During the latter art of January there was real excite- ent in New York, for the last mail om Shanghai had stamps of the $2 on value overprinted in magenta by eans of a rubber stamp. They were ncelled in Shanghai, and the fact that en doubles were to be had simply led e purchasing dealers to think that the ork was hastily done, hence the errors. ashington was communicated with and ey advised that they had not authorized e overprinting, but in November they d filled a requisition for unsurcharged amps after they had cabled to learn if rcharge stamps had not been wanted, fact, Washington wanted to know why ey wanted more stamps at all when the ice was going to close so soon. They re advised that large shipments would me forward the last month.

It now turns out that certain employes a large silk importing house in New rk were in the habit of selling the rcharged stamps to New York dealers. hen a quantity of the $1 stamps arrived the last mail without overprint they ply saw so much money gone. Some ght genius thought of supplying the ciency by means of a magenta ink d and a three-line rubber stamp read- "Shanghai $2 China." As long as y stuck to the stamps on the Shanghai kages it was impossible to discover fraud, for no information had come ough official channels from Shanghai. e demand, however, was so great and profit so attractive that they en- vored to take care of the dealers by ing the cancelled $1 stamps in New rk. Result, Shanghai stamps cancelled Boston, Washington, etc. At the time writing these notes I have not learned to what action has been taken by the rauded dealers.

EYLON.—Mr. R. Roberts reports the grey on script watermarked paper.

HAMBA STATE.—Mr. R. Roberts ad- s of the appearance of the 1a brown a, type A58, and the 2a6p of India h the two line surcharge "Chamba te" in black.

ONGO.—We are indebted to Mr. Henry oreman for sending to us three values a new design of stamps for this ony. The stamps are square and pic- a native girl facing to the left in the 10c green value while the 15c olive brown shows another young woman facing to the right. The other value, 15c brown, pictures a native weaving a basket. At the top of each stamp are the words "Congo Belge" while at the base "Belgisch Congo." At the right of the 10c are the letters "BALVRA" and at the left in the next value "Babvende." The 15c has "Vannerie" at left and "Mandewerk" at right.

OUR CHINESE OFFICES CLOSED

By S. R. SHELDON.

The readers of your paper are no doubt aware that the P. O. authorities in China have contemplated enlarged revenue from new postal rates. I understand that a new issue of stamps was in readiness with colors changed to agree with the 50% increase in rates which was to have gone into effect. There has been a general protest against the increase both from the Chinese and from various foreign governments which has resulted in the withdrawal of the order. The last two days of the American P. O. witnessed a great sale of the surcharged stamps, collectors stood in line waiting for lots. I am informed that only the 1c, 2c, 8c and 12c values of the second printing were put on sale. On that basis I should consider the rest of the second printing as sold in Washington as in the class of never issued or at least never put in use. Therefore the first printing, all of which were in use, should bring a considerable premium over the second printing, many values of which have never been in Shanghai. The following from the China Daily Press will be of interest:

At midnight tonight when the clocks striking 12 usher in 1923, the American Post Office—the only American postal agency outside the actual borders of the United States—will close its twenty years existence in Shanghai.

The post-office is handling the last mail it is to handle today—mail from the President Jefferson from Manila, and the Empress of Canada from Canada, Europe and the United States—and will receive the last mail it will except for trans-shipment to the United States at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The office will remain open until 12 o'clock tonight to complete the last details before closing for all time, and after the New Year holiday—on Tuesday—workers will begin dismantling the office by removing the mail boxes.

The local American post-office, which has been the only American postal agency in China, has been in existence for 20 years, being founded shortly after the Boxer troubles in China. The United States was one of the last of the powers to take advantage of the opportunity, opening its own postal agencies and only opened the local office after it became increasingly apparent that China was unable to properly look after the mail of Americans in China. Likewise the United States was one of the first nations to recognize that China had now made every effort to build up a modern and efficient postal service and took the lead at the Washington Conference in returning postal privileges to China.

During the existence of the post-office three postmasters have served in Shanghai. Mr. John Darroch was the first American postmaster and served the longest term of any of the three. He was succeeded by Mr. Ed Everett, who, after serving his term, returned to the United States and is now located in San Antonio, Texas. Upon the election of President Harding, the present postmaster, Col. Clyde S. Ford, was named and assumed office. He retires with the closing of the post-office tonight after having efficiently served the American public here during his short term of office.

RARE CURIOS
FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD
SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE
Stamps, Coins, Den Curios

For twenty years I have been gathering rare curios from all parts of the world. I have one of the greatest accumulations in this line to be found outside the large museums. If you have a den or cabinet, or wall space in your hall, that you wish to fill with odd and rare specimens, let me hear from you at once. I am reducing my stock very rapidly; my aim is to devote more time to stamps and coins, so I wish to dispose of my old guns, pistols, long spears, swords, daggers, war shields (from nearly every wild tribe), flint and stone specimens (over 20,000 specimens in stock), beaded Indian trappings, minerals (some showy cabinet pieces in this lot), fossils (rare slabs of fossil fish that are very fine in this collection), rare coins.

Navajo blankets (suitable for rugs), some beauties on hand just at present, typical Indian designs, gaudy colors, A1 specimens, ranging in price from $18.50 to $125.00.

As for stamps, my stock is large and varied. I can generally please all classes of collectors. I am especially long on scarce U. S. and B. N. A., good condition or a trifle defective.

Will send approval selections. Write today with reference, stating the line or lines you collect; I will treat you right. Curio list 5c.

"LEE"

By Edwin B. Hill, Ysleta, Texas.

For H. A. M.

There are no old book-shops in the neighboring city of El Paso Del Norte. I miss them greatly. "Back home" I haunted those seats of learning, as my book-shelves attest. In lieu of the genuine article, however, the multitude of second-hand furniture stores have a few books on sale, picked up in the purchase of household goods. These I glimpse during the surcease of space between the witching hours of twelve and one.

"There's a place you should really see, down in Fifth street," said the friendly dealer after I had picked up a couple of "items" from his shelves. "A Mexican runs it," he added. "It is a sight. Go down, and let me know results."

The following day I sauntered forth into the Mexican quarter. The way is through the Chinese quarter. I passed three or four Chinese shops, and then a sign caught my eyes: "Lee Hong Yep. Merchant." I was back in retrospect forty years. As a boy, in the classic shades of Ann Arbor, Michigan, I met a Chinese of that name. Everyone called him "Sam". For some unknown reason I did not adopt the American nomenclature. To me he was always Lee. This pleased the man. The acquaintance eventually ripened into friendship. From him I learned much of interest to a boy. My friend was an ardent tea-drinker, for the bouquet of tea alone. He made it in a quaint tea-pot, and drank it out of the finest and most delicate China. One day he asked me to try some new tea which had recently come to him from China,—for he was an importer of silks and teas and chinaware and bronzes,—exquisite bits I first learned through him to appreciate.

That was the beginning. I have ever been a devotee of the gentle herb, made in the Chinese fashion, unto this day.

The weeks slipped by, and the months, and the years. I thought occasionally of Lee, and the quaint stamps he saved from his letters for his American friend. There was a real affection on both sides. I missed him greatly. Inquiries made were to the effect that he had been suddenly called to San Francisco. The deliverer of the message informed me that Lee Hong Yep said he would see me some day, afar off. At that time I seemed firmly rooted in the middle west life. Later, ill-health sent me into the woods and the desert places of the far west.

I had almost passed the store. I stopped, read the sign again, and went in. A Chinese sat at a desk, writing. He looked up.

"I saw the sign as I was passing,—Lee Hong Yep. It is the name of a very dear friend I knew back East when I was a boy. That was fort years ago. I thought perhaps you could inform me if by chance it is the same Lee Hong Yep?"

The lids of the Chinese man's eyes fluttered. Then he spoke, in perfect English, softly, almost without inflection

"You are the friend for whom he has been waiting. He told me today you would come soon. My father is very old, but he remembers. You are—" And then he spoke my name, in full. He smiled, and added:

"Father always called you 'Ed Please come."

I passed behind the little railing, went down a passageway. The stopped, drew aside a portiere, spoke:

"He is here."

I entered. An aged Chinese ar held out both hands to me, and in soft, slow speech—the tones of w I remembered so well—spoke my na

"Lee! Oh, Lee!"

That was all I could say, as we clung to each other's hands and t to see each other's faces through mists of years and tears.

Then we sat and talked of the days. We drank tea as we discou of the dear dead days—of the rav of Time.

"It is a long time for Youth to looking forward; but, oh! how q are the years behind us!" My fr looked upon me again. "I rememb all the days you were friendly and familiar. That, with my people, is in all. It is the spirit we love—fri liness and faithfulness and rever and love. Yes, and remembrance. is good. The others are inherent. oh my friend! have passed through fire. You are like a bit of br chastened and refined."

I waved my hand in depreca But who besides myself and those and dear knew the ravages and chastenings? So much does the W Plague do for us, its victims.

"And the stamps I gave you, in old days? They have all passe know; but there are days ahead, and the old love, so long somnoler reawakened?"

Then I told my old friend of passing of the collections, and the newal of interest. He smiled, as clapped his hands. An old Ch came to the doorway. Lee spok few words to him—first in Eng then in Chinese.

"He does not speak our langu Lee said, in explanation.

I smiled inside, for "our" lang seemed quaint at first. But it was language, in fact.

The Chinese returned with

The Stamp Follies of 1923

VOL. I, NO. 4. CONDUCTED BY SILAS WEATHERBY, PH. P. FEB. 24, 1923.

Editorial.

Contributions to this dept. are now in order, so if you can shake a humorous self filler don't be backward about coming forward with your best efforts, either prose or poetry as you may elect.

They say, that he who can grow a smile where a smile never grew before deserves credit, therefore, as we want to grow miles of smiles, we must have lots of credit-ors.

Tickling the funny-bone has been the means of putting many big things over, and it will help to make Philately more attractive and boost our hobby, so please remember this—

If you can't be a pine on the top of the hill,
Be a scrub in the valley—but be
The best little scrub by the side of the rill;
Be a bush, if you can't be a tree.
If you can't be a sun, be a star—
Be the best little booster whatever you are.

Consider the Acorn.

It is a nut, yet when it falls from the tree it has wrapped up in its shell an unalterable resolution to produce an oak tree.

It is a nut, but it needs only the environment of earth, warmth and moisture to accomplish its job.

It is a nut, but it never produces a bean vine, a lemon tree or a huckleberry bush.

It is a nut, but it specializes on oak trees and never fails.

You, too, may be a nut, but if you have the acorn's same high purpose, the same firm resolve, no human power can stop you.

Consider the acorn; it, too, is a nut.

Eva Dently.

The post-office system seems like the most ancient of orgynyzations when it is claimed that the first male was sent out from the Garden of Eden.

"Twenty little reprints
Fastened on a sheet,
Twenty fancy prices
Marked below so neat;
Guaranteed original
So the dealers say,
He who thinks he knows it all
Buys them like a jay."

The New Collector.

"Sympathy, sentiment, goodness of heart, should all be cultivated," said the teacher. "For instance, now, suppose you were to see an old lady reading and crying over some old letters that she had received from dear ones years before, what would you do? Johnny, you may answer." "Please, mam, I'd ask if I mightn't have the stamps."

"And Silas Sez."

Lots of folks get religion cuz ets free—but nobuddy evur can expect tew git a stamp colleckshun that way, By Heck.

My Stamp Journeys.

Very often in the evening with early lighted lamps,
I take a pleasant journey traveling with my stamps.
In the ingloo huts of Iceland I stop a little while,
And then in Nova Scotia I give Queen Vic a smile;
Amid the scenes of Newfoundland I spend a pleasant hour,
And tarry in New Brunswick to pluck a tiny flower.
When I land in Canada the time is in the past;
That evening journey's ended; two hours have gone too fast.
When I take another trip it will be by aeroplane,
I'll cross the old ocean wide and start my trip with Spain.
Upon the common Portuguese I'll take a little peep,
Among the stylish French I'll spend about a week.
The early German states will claim a passing glance,
As I hurry on to Belgium and back again to France.
Helvetia, too, must have its ancient place,
And many kings of Italy will fill up many a space.

With many miles of travel my trip has just begun,
I'll have to start again back at Number One.
The U. S. A. is IT with all its noted men,
I spend an entire evening from six o'clock to ten.
I missed a lot of Europe, and Afric's tropic clime,
And for Asia and the Islands I did not have the time.
In Central and South America I did not make a call,
The islands of the sea, I've had to miss them all.
In India and Australia where I would like to stop,
I'll have to see again when I take a hop.
With your stamps you can always take a trip,
It's not a bit of bother, for you never lug a grip.

—E. D. K.

ooks, which he placed upon the table. Ve drew up our chairs. Lee opened he first volume. Here were Chinese tamps, on and off covers — pairs and trips and blocks — all beautifully nounted, and written up, in both Chiese and English. I grew absorbed as ee related the history of the stamps in letail. He was more than a collector—e was an expert philatelist.

"All this came to me from friends. ut you were the first who interested ne—back in our old home. Since then have collected. It has been the stamps f my country solely. It is now comlete."

The second volume was akin to the irst. There were uncatalogued rarities, nd points only an expert would heed. ee pointed them out to my eyes—bits ere and there which even the informed ollector unknowingly would pass unless e had studied the issues.

Then we talked of stamps and of the ife behind us.

"When I left Ann Arbor, I sent a nessage to you, but you were not at ome," said Lee. "I knew, some day, ve should meet. I knew you were of he unspoiled people, and that the spirit vould be you although Time may have hanged you outwardly—which it has. ut I knew you at once. I have waited ere four years."

"Oh, Lee! Why didn't you write me, r send me word?" I was greatly overome, that four years should have seen s within a few blocks, comparatively, ach unknown to each.

"It is the Law," said Lee, humbly. It is written."

Then we fell silent, each sorrowful ith his own thoughts.

Outside the dark was falling. Inside e delicate light and the odor of sanalwood wafted me back time after time the boyhood days.

"Tonight we go home—my son and I. ou remember we talked of him when u were with me back east?"

Lee smiled at me, sitting there, deep thoughts of the "days that are no ore."

Remember! Could I ever forget, while fe lasted?

We held each other's hands long and ally. I knew I was looking upon his ce for the last time. Then we parted. The next evening, upon my arrival at e place we call home, my daughter met e at the door.

"Daddy! Daddy! The most beautifully annered man came this afternoon — a hinese. He left a gift for you. He id you would understand — that there as no message."

Upon the cases which hold a fragment my library, falsely so-called, was the ost exquisite bit of bronze inlay I had er seen. The vase was perhaps six ches in height, but beautiful beyond ords. It was an antique. I took it my hands. There was a bit of paper eping from the top. I drew it forth, d opened it. The delicate odor of ndalwood impregnated the air.

"To my beloved friend—with thanks yond words."

This was the message, and attached s a stamp — the replica of a Chinese issue, the very first given me by my Chinese friend.

A fortnight ago a friend, who is a connoisseur, dropped in to gloat for the fiftieth time over a quaint old Navajo blanket, much worn but still beautiful, which had been given to me by an old chief over in Arizona. He saw the vase, and the rug was not.

"Where did you get it? Where?" he asked, incredulously. "Man! it's worth a soul's ransom!"

Then I told him the story, as I am telling it to you, gentle collector. It was not only worth a soul's ransom, as my friend inadvertently declared, but to me it was worth far more—the ransom of two souls, long separated, but nevermore, here nor hereafter. The Spirit of Life walketh always with them who know and who understand.

HISTORY FROM POSTAGE STAMPS.

By CHAS. G. WILSON.

Peter The First, once King of Servia, whose portrait appears on Servian stamps issued from 1904 until that country was united with Jugo-Slavia in 1918, was an interesting character.

He was born in Belgrade in 1846 but left the country of his birth in 1858, with his father, who was banished in exile. Peter went to school in Hungary, made many visits to Russia, and finally entered the French military college of St. Cyr. He graduated into the French army as an officer in time for the Franco-Prussian War. He served with great distinction; was captured three times by the Germans and three times made his escape.

Returning to the Balkans he lent his aid in the rising of 1875-1876 in Herzegovina which culminated in the Russo-Turkish War of 1877-1878 and brought about the complete establishment of Servian independence.

After a period of roving he went to Montenegro and in 1883 married the Princess Zorka; which marriage connected him to the Russian and Italian Courts.

From 1890 to 1903 Peter, though a recognized pretender to the Servian crown, lived quietly in Switzerland. But in 1903, King Alexander of Servia and his Queen Draga were murdered and four days later Peter was elected to the Kingship.

Peter was a loyal supporter of constitutional government but fully sympathized with national aspirations for a greater Servia. He made bitter protest against the annexation of Bosnia-Herzegovina by Austria-Hungary in 1908 and again in 1912-1913 when the Dual Monarchy took from Servia the territory she had wrested from Turkey in the Balkan War and which gave Servia access to the Adriatic. From the strained relations which kept growing worse between Servia and Austria-Hungary proceeded the Great European War.

When the Great War began Peter took the field with his troops and with them led the life of a soldier. Thrice the Austrians invaded the little nation and thrice were they expelled. In the third invasion they took Belgrade, the capital, but after seventeen days' hard fighting and a hundred-mile march in three days Peter rode into Belgrade at the head of his army on December 15, 1914. And when they came to the cathedral as many as could crowd in entered. "And lacking some one to say mass, the King became a priest—which is an ancient function of Kings—and as he knelt, the officers and soldiers and people knelt. There was a vast silence for a moment; and then, in every part of the church, a sobbing."

JUST A FEW POINTERS
from a man who has studied stamp game for over thirty years. I urged collectors to buy old U. S. and B. N. A. stamps over three years ago. Those who heeded my advice are well pleased. I feel just as optimistic for the future on these stamps as I did when I urged everyone to buy three years ago.

I have a wonderful lot of these old issues, because I have given my time to and invested my money in these alone. The fellow who spread out trying to hold stamps from every corner of the globe finds he is shy the stamps of his own country, while many of the foreign issues are still with him.

U. S. are growing more popular every day, so get on the band wagon before it gets out of sight. Yours for old U. S. and B. N. A.; fine, good, poor, which do you desire to see? Give ref. and let me know your wants.

SOME PRECANCEL NOTES.

By FREDERICK W. ALLEN.

Already some adverse comments on the prices of the Aeroplane, Victory and Pilgrim precancels in the new catalogue have reached my ears. I fully expected this, but I wish to impress a few points on precancel collectors in general.

Who will question that Dr. Mitchell is not the foremost authority on precancelled stamps and an unbiased judge of values? When he consented to price my compilation of the three special issues mentioned above, I felt that the result would be popularly received. It has been in the majority of cases, but there are a number of collectors who are disappointed that certain stamps did not soar sky high and that others took such a tumble. What Dr. Mitchell has done in the new catalogue is the greatest boon that the precancel game has received for some time. He has regulated the prices of stamps which for the past two years have been running wild. He has created a sensible standard which should be a valuable guide to all. But greatest of all contributions, he has dealt the speculative issues a crack under the belt which they have long deserved. The prices are meant to be net, figuring fine condition as full catalogue.

Since the completion of the catalogue a few new items have appeared, some of which were issued during the regular course of business and some which were not.

Hastings, Nebr., in the new electro, has appeared on the 1, 2, 5c Pilgrims and undoubtedly are made to order. This is a city which ought to get a knock and not a boost. Although we find many worth-while stamps coming through the regular mail, there are others which emanate from there which rather spoil our taste.

Bedford, Pa., on the 6, 16, 24c Aeros, 3c Victory and 1, 2, 5c Pilgrims coming normal and inverted look very much like made to order stuff, and they are held at very lofty prices.

Van Buren, Ark., on the Pilgrims is to be looked upon with a careful scrutiny.

St. Meinrad, Ind., on the 1c Pilgrim comes only in one variety which is a commending point in itself.

Lancaster, N. H., also is using U-18 on the Pilgrims and as Lancaster always has had a pretty good reputation, notwithstanding its location, these seem all right. The 1c normal and 2c up are all that I have heard of up to date.

Fernald, Ia., seems to have a speculative taint. If the regular issues and no others had appeared no comment would have been forthcoming. But with the Aero's, Victory and Pilgrims dragged in and the overprint coming in the four positions, things don't look regular. The high prices asked for them are absurd. Come down, Mr. H! Come down!

The Fitchburg, Mass., postmaster claims that they have never had any Aeroplane stamps in the office, so that any on the market are precancelled to order or faked. The Victory in U-8 was used in the regular course of business, but this stamp was also precancelled to order when not in stock.

Recently I dropped a line to the postmaster of Derby, Conn., and enclosed a copy of the 3c Victory printed in black capitals between lines. He wrote the following letter in reply: "The cancelled stamp attached to your letter is not an authorized precancelled stamp in the sense that you use the word. The stamps (I mentioned Victory and Pilgrims) were placed upon several packages and cancelled the same as any other parcel post stamps would be cancelled, except that at the request of the addressee we used a little more than ordinary care in cancelling the stamps. This office issues no precancelled stamps nor do we precancel any for our own use even in the busy Christmas season."

Richford, Vt., Types I and II are one-at-a-time handstamps. The proof I have of Type II shows no triangular ornaments as described by Bushnell. That the two handstamps are wielded in and out of season turning out as possible to oblige a Mr. G. is apparent.

I earnestly desire to hear from all collectors wishing for information along the line of precancels and wish that anybody desiring to take issue with me on any of my statements would write me without delay.—Precancel Gazette.

LEEWARD ISLANDS, PLATE 10, 1921-22.

By HARRY E. HUBER.

The first of the Leeward Islands series to appear on script watermarked paper were the ½d and 1d, late in 1921, followed by the ¼d in April, 1922, and the 2d in June. The ½d and 1d were released in London by the Crown Agents several months before issue in the Islands.

These stamps were printed from plate 10, introduced in June, 1921, sheets of 120 stamps 2 panes of 60, separated by a narrow gutter. The plate number appears twice in the lower margin, in the usual positions, the upper margin being blank. A marginal line surrounding each pane is broken at each line of perforation with but one or two exceptions.

The 1d carmine on script paper was never on sale in St. Kitts-Nevis, their stock on the old paper lasting until the summer of 1922, by which time a color change had been effected; and the ¼d on script was not issued there until November, 1922. Up to the first of July, 1922, Antigua and the British Virgins were without the ¼d brown, ½d green and 1d carmine stamps, with script watermark. The 2½d ultramarine, and 6d dull violet and red violet, on script paper, were issued July 13, 1922, overprinted "Barbuda," but in unoverprinted state they do not yet exist.

1921-22. King George V, Postage and Revenue. Watermarked multiple Crown and script CA. Perf. comb 14. Plate 10.

¼d brown,	April, 1922.
½d green,	October, 1921.
1d carmine,	October, 1921.
2d gray,	June, 1922.

NEW VALUES ADDED, 1922.

On 3rd January, 1922, increased parcel rates (in some cases the increase was almost a hundred percent), came into effect, made by an Order in Council of December 1, 1921, and by an Order in Council dated 9th January, 1922, effective February 1st, 1922, the rates on other matter were increased, the principal increases being: letters for the British Empire, and the U. S. A. 2d; to foreign countries 3d; post cards, 1½d, and registration fee, 3d. Stamps of other denominations than contained in the series now became desirable, and an Order in Council, made January 9th, authorised the issue of 4d, 5d, 2s, 3s and 4s stamps.

Order In Council.

"Whereas by an Order in Council dated the 3rd day of September, 1901, and published in the Leeward Islands Gazette No. 46 of the 5th September, 1901, the several values of stamps for use throughout the Colony were fixed at ½d, 1d, 2d, 2½d, 3d, 6d, 1s, 2s6d and 5s.

And whereas, by an Order in Council dated the 20th day of February, 1909, and published in the Leeward Islands Gazette No. 11 of the 11th March, 1909, a stamp of the value of ¼d, was added to the values of stamps before mentioned.

And whereas, it is expedient to add to these values stamps of the following values, namely, 4d, 5d, 2s, 3s and 4s.

Now, it is hereby ordered by the Governor in Council under the authority of the Leeward Islands General Stamp Act, 1890, as follows:—

On and after the 1st day of April, 1922, there shall be in addition to the several values of stamps fixed by the hereinbefore recited orders, stamps of the value of 4d, 5d, 2s, 3s and 4s.

And it is hereby further ordered that the proper dies and other implements to be used in connection with the said new stamps be provided accordingly.

Made in the Executive Council of the Leeward Islands this 9th day of January, 1922.

E. D'A. TIBBITS,
Clerk of the Council."

These stamps were printed from plate 10, in sheets of 120 stamps, 2 panes of 60. They were received in St. Kitts late in April, and issued on May 12, 1922. The figures and letters of the value tablets are in color on a plain ground, within a hexagonal frame. The duty plates for these five plates are provided with a broken marginal line, so that completed sheets have a double marginal line, that on the inside belonging to the keyplate, and that on the outside, to the duty plate, and being printed in the colors of their respective impressions.

The 4d is on pale yellow paper, creamy in appearance, with the multiple Crown

The shilling values are required for use on parcels, and the 4d and 5d for combined letter and registration charges on inter-island, and Empire letters, respectively.

May 12, 1922. King George V, Postage and Revenue. Watermarked multiple Crown CA (4d, 2s); multiple Crown and script CA (5d, 2s, 3s, 4s). Perf. comb 14. Plate 10. Chalk surfaced paper for all values.

COLOR CHANGE, 1922.

To conform with the regulations of the Universal Postal Union as to colors (green, red and blue), for those denominations of postage stamps most used in the international mails (formerly ½d, 1d and 2½d, but now ½d, 1½d and 3d, on printed matter, post cards and letters, respectively), a re-arrangement of the Crown Agents' color scheme for the lower values became necessary.

In some Colonies, (Grenada, St. Lucia and Trinidad & Tobago), the 1d was printed in brown, but for the 1d of Leeward Islands, a new color was introduced, officially termed "blue purple," which is in reality, a deep violet. In August, 1922, this value, from plate 10, in deep violet, was issued in St. Kitts. In July, 1922, the 2½d and 3d of the St. Kitts-Nevis Presidency series were issued in brown and blue, respectively, followed by the 1d in deep violet in August.

1922. King George V, Postage and Revenue, watermarked multiple Crown and script CA, perf. comb 14. Plate 10.

1d deep violet, August, 1922

GOVERNMENT.

The Leeward Islands Colony is a federation of five presidencies, formerly separate colonies, i.e., Antigua, St. Kitts-Nevis, Dominica, Montserrat and Virgin Islands. There is one Governor and Commander-in-Chief for the Colony, who is resident at St. John's, Antigua. In Antigua the government is administered by the Governor of the Colony; in St. Kitts-Nevis and Dominica by Administrators, and in Montserrat and the Virgins, by Commissioners. The present Governor and Commander-in-Chief is Sir Eustace Fiennes, Bart., (late Governor of Seychelles), who arrived at St. John's, Antigua, and was sworn into office on Sunday morning, December 4, 1921.

The expenses of the Federal establishment are voted by the Federal Councils, and apportioned among the Presidencies; the following are the figures for 1922-23:

HISTORY FROM POSTAGE STAMPS.

By CHARLES G. WILSON.

The stamps of British Zululand of 1888 (English stamps of the issue of 1887 surcharged BRITISH ZULULAND) recall to mind the Zulu War of 1879, which England fought to free Cape Colony of the forays of the savage Zulu Nation. But this war is remembered to many by the death at Zulu hands of Louis Napoleon, Prince Imperial of France, before the fall of the Second Empire.

At the outbreak of the Zulu War Prince Louis left his home of exile at Chislehurst, England, and went to South Africa as a member of the British Army. On the 7th of June the Prince was riding with a reconnoitreing force of a few men near the Blood River. They were suddenly attacked by Zulus when resting and in the melee the Prince was unhorsed and slain. The surviving British fled.

The next day a search party found the mutilated body of the young Prince pierced by nineteen spear wounds. The remains were taken to Durban and then borne to England on a battleship, and there with great ceremony, with Princes of the Royal houses of Europe as pallbearers, and with 40,000 Frenchmen and 200,000 Englishmen in attendance, Louis was laid to rest with his royal father, Napoleon III, in St. Mary's Church, Chislehurst, England.

Why Are Gallant's Packets Popular Among Stamp Collectors ?

Unsolicited testimonials coming in every day. To publish them, I had to use the entire edition of the WEEKLY. Mr. W. Zimmerman, Easton, Pa., writes as follows: Your stamps received and more than pleased. Mr. F. Hennig, Ridgewood, N. J.: Received my last order and I am always satisfied with your stamps. Mr. C. M. Young, 5872 Julian Ave., St. Louis, Mo., has to say in his last letter, February 3rd, 1923: I must say that Gallant have given me more value for the money spent with them so far than any firm I have ever dealt with. It is a pleasure to do business with you.

Did you get Gallant's 1923 Price List? You cannot find in the whole U. S. a more complete list of sets and packets. It's free for the asking.

THE STAMP ILLUSTRATION BILL PASSES HOUSE AND SENATE.

Philatelists generally will be interested in knowing that the bill permitting the illustration of U. S. and foreign stamps, to which reference has been made in the WEEKLY, has passed the House by unanimous consent. Our correspondent indicates that no trouble is anticipated in obtaining the concurrence of the Senate in case it can be brought to a vote. The time is so short that the measure may fail and thus go over to the next Congress. At the last moment at the suggestion of the Department of Justice an amendment was added to the bill that stamps cannot be illustrated without the printer or publisher having first obtained the written consent of the Secretary of the Treasury for such purpose.

LATER!

Just as we close our last form we receive the following important and welcome Western Union telegram, which speaks for itself:—

WASHINGTON, D. C. Mar. 1, 6 P. M.

"Conference report passed the House this morning and passed the Senate this afternoon. It now goes to the President for his signature.

TWO STAMP FIRMS WITH SAME NAME.

By H. A. WHIPPLE, Omaha.

The last few days I have received several inquiries asking if the Western Stamp Co. had moved to Florida. Failed to understand the why of the question. Just received the issue of Feb. 3, and note the adv. of the Western Stamp Co. of Jacksonville, Fla., which evidently is the foundation of the question.

Will you be so kind as to advise your readers that the Western Stamp Co. of Omaha, Nebr., has not removed its location but is still doing business at 308 Leflang Bldg., Omaha, Nebr. Been doing business right here for over 25 years and we will be here 25 years more and our advs. will appear regularly in the WEEKLY. Absolutely no connection between the two firms.

NEW IRISH STAMPS, DESIGNERS, NEW POST OFFICE, INTERNATIONAL AERIAL AND WIRELESS SERVICES.

(Copyright.) By W. WARD.

At last, out of the darkness of the night that is nearly past, the riot and burnings of the past year, the beginning of the end is in sight, hold-ups are getting more hazardous, though the few who escape the meshes of Law and Order manage individual destruction on country railroads and country houses. Despite the glaring news from day to day it is becoming a strange fact that the majority of the mails get through, and where organized raids on the post-offices have recently taken place, while actual cash and records have not been touched, that the seizure of the stamps which have eventually been destroyed are mainly those of the new map and "Saorstat" overprinted issues.

On February 2nd the new 1½d map value made its appearance, in the official colour of "maroon," in a few days the penny value in the same design will appear, and in the course of a week or so the following will appear:—½d, 5d, 6d and 1sh, "Sword of Light" (Claidheamh Salius); 2½d, 4d and 9d, Arms of the Four Provinces (Munster, Leinster, Ulster and Connaught; 3d and 10d, Celtic Cross.

Designs are being prepared for the higher values (2s6d, 5sh and 10sh) which are intended to be the last word in the printer's art, and will show the original Parliament House (at present the headquarters of the Bank of Ireland—which incidently I had the pleasure of being taken through accompanied by an armed guard fingering an automatic!), the old G. P. O. in Sackville, O'Connell Street, at present in ruins, and the Custom House, besieged in 1916 by the British Navy.

The designers of the stamps are:—Map of Ireland, Mr. James Ingram, Glasnevin, Dublin; Sword of Light. Mr. J. J. O'Reilly, Westmoreland St., Dublin; Arms of the Four Provinces, Miss M. Girling, School of Art, Dublin; Pictorial designs, Professor Atkinson, Dublin, and Celtic Cross, Miss Lily Williams, Ranelagh, Dublin.

It is interesting to note that the last mentioned also designed the Celtic Cross "Sinn Fein" stamp that was so extensively used for propaganda purposes several years before the European War—and recently brought out again as a souvenir of the Irish "Rebel and Civil" wars—from which Miss Williams adopted her present design.

It is given on good authority that one of the new designs, essayed to be the "Sword of Light," will be issued on March 17th, St. Patrick's Day, in commemoration of the 1,500th Anniversary of the Patron Saint's Missions (A. D. 423-1923).

INTERNATIONAL MAILS AND AIR SERVICES.

Addressing a deputation a few days ago Mr. J. J. Walsh, the Irish Postmaster-General, stated that already regular mail services had been establishe daily between Dublin and France, an Dublin and Germany, with direct lett and parcel mails weekly to New Yor Philadelphia, and Baltimore via Cob (Queenstown). A further service w being considered between Cork and Bre for French and Continental parce traffic, which would serve a special pu pose for the export of bacon produ and linen industrial manufactures, et Also the Irish Free State Governme were in course of negotiations for a air service between London and Cobh, extension of the present French, Germa and Dutch airmails.

Special wireless services were to brought into use that would either supe sede or maintain the present interrupt telegraph and telephone services.

MONTHLY SELECTIONS

I make a practice of sending out approval cards once a month to customers wishing to have their names on my monthly list. These cards contain British and French Colonies, some early United States, but nothing of a speculative or suspicious nature. They are bound to interest the collector who likes stamps catalogued above 25c but not more than $5.00. Prices are more reasonable than you expect. May not have your request for this service, together with the customary references and the date on which you prefer to receive sendings?

My 18th Public Sale was a great success, with 200 mail bidders and 80 on the floor the first night, 60 the second night, when only foreign stamps were sold. Bidding was remarkably brisk and very high prices were obtained on U. S., but even so, there were a good many bargains.

My 19th Sale is in preparation for late April and will contain some very fine U. S. as well as the pick of a fine general collection. Catalogues will be sent to bidders in any of my three last sales. To others only by request.

I am breaking up several good general collections and could take care of a few more first-class approval accounts or want lists. [78

METROPOLITAN STAMP CO., 7 West 42nd Street, NEW YORK CITY

this end, Mr. P. Mulligan, who until recently held a similar position in the British Post Office, London, had been appointed Engineer-in-Chief. (Mr. Mulligan was largely responsible for the present London service).

The old General Post Office in O'Connell (Sackville) Street was to be rebuilt, and would take the place of the many small sub-offices at present undertaking the G. P. O. work, to which end the British Government had agreed to pay £85,000 towards the expeneses of these and additional premises.

Mr. Walsh also mentioned that owing to the British Post Office confiscating Sweepstake Circulars sent from Ireland, these were now being mailed in England, which was meaning a loss of thousands of pounds to the Irish Post Office. (Actually the same Sweepstake Circulars which are being posted in England, are being mailed in small numbers from various post-offices throughout the country, in order to avoid the chance of discovery, and which might also have been done in Ireland, but the promoters found that they could save 25% by posting in England where the single letter rate postage is 1½d, against 2d in Ireland—plus of course the fact that there is yet no organized customs between Ireland and Britain, though from Britain to Ireland all passengers and goods are searched by the British authorities for firearms and ammunition!)

While the Irish Post Office had always been run at a loss, it was hoped, Mr. Walsh said, that these innovations would result in a definite turnover, and it was fully believed by the Government that a turn for the better had taken place.

It has since been stated that the Free State Government had been offered an exchange of Aerial Mails to Egypt, Palestine, Mesopotamia and to India with a continuation on to Australia.

At present owing to labour troubles which have nothing to do with the political situation, the only mail communications are via Dublin and Holyhead, even the Welsh direct route via Fishguard being suspended, mails going to Dun Laoghaire (Kingstown) and Dublin, and being thence transhipped via sea to Cobh and Corcaigh (Cork).

BOOK REVIEW.

We have received from B. Gordon Bushnell the "Perf. 12 Section" of his standard Precancelled Stamp Catalog. It lists the precancelled stamps of the United States perforated 12, with the universal type system and other illustrations. The book is a monument to the industry of the publisher, Mr. Bushnell, and represents a great deal of painstaking labor. Blank pages are provided at the end of the book in which to enter any additions, corrections or remarks. The price of the book is $1 post-paid. It is uniform with the catalog issued under date of 1921-22, and may be obtained from the publishers at 2648 Northwestern Av., Indianapolis, Ind.

PAYMENTS BY THE 20th.

We are greatly pleased at the manner in which the vast majority of advertisers are complying with our rule of payment of bills upon presentation. We feel that this rule is absolutely necessary in the conduct of the WEEKLY. A number of advertisers are dilatory in making their payments. Some payments reach us early in the following month, and we must make effective the rule that we have established.

In the future our rule as regards payment upon presentation will be more strictly enforced and where bills are unpaid by the 20th of the month we shall omit advertising from the first issue in the following month. It is our purpose not to add any item of indebtedness to the bills that go out the first of the month.

EDITORIAL.

We have received a most remarkable letter from Mr. George H. Grinnell of Los Angeles, California, bearing directly on the biggest story that ever "broke" in philatelic circles. Recently, we quoted a telegram that had been received from Mr. Grinnell, in which he promised to send an account of the later developments in the Hawaiian missionary case; and we now have his communication before us. It is needless to say that Mr. Grinnell's words will fall on listening ears: "Enclosed are the photographs of the entire find of Hawaiian Missionary stamps. One photo shows the entire lot of twenty-six stamps that I did not sell. The other shows the forty-three sold to Mr. Klemann: and also the two (in upper right corner) which were taken from Mr. Wood by Capt. Walsh in 1919. I am thoroughly convinced that the stamps are genuine for this reason: they were given me by Mr. Shattuck who said they were among his mother's things when she died in 1856. He had kept them in his own possession ever since that time. He did not know anything about stamps, philatelically. When I said that I thought they were of value and wanted to pay him something for them, he would not listen to any such proposal but said that I was welcome to them. He remarked that they would probably be burned up after he was gone, anyway. He said that there were two other letters which he had saved. They were in envelopes that had 'Sandwich Island' stamps on them but he could not find them at the time. It is significant that his daughter testified at the trial that there were three letters among his effects after he died, which belonged to his mother, in view of the fact that other testimony of hers was to the effect that all of their things were burned in a fire in 1890; and therefore he could not have had anything that had belonged to his mother. Mr. Shattuck's son told my attorney and me in an interview that he burned all the letters that were among his father's things, soon after his death. At that interview he said that I must not bother his mother in any way, and that if either side should summon her to court as a witness in this affair, he would go on the stand himself. He seemed very outspoken against me and the daughter seemed in the same frame of mind." We make a division in Mr. Grinnell's letter here as in the next paragraph he takes up an important phase of the case.

All of the Missionaries in Mr. Grinnell's lot as sold to Mr. Klemann revealed minor points of difference from the known originals and that Mr. Grinnell has concerned himself about these discrepancies in the production of the stamps is shown by the following: "The important point is that my stamps do not match up with any of the known originals that were produced in court, and even those did not match up with one another; and further, all of mine seemed to be identical in all respects. I can only account for this upon the theory that those which were brought into court for purposes of comparison were printed at different times from movable types, while mine were printed from stereotype plates. My stamps so nearly accorded with one another that it strongly indicates that they were printed from stereotype plates, or, as Champion says, by lithography. (See Champion's Bulletin for October 25, 1922, page 24.) In Henry J. Crocker's book 'Hawaiian Missionaries,' Page 22, referring to the Hawaiian Missionary stamps, he says: 'The Numeral Stamps—of this and subsequent issues—were struck off in the Government printing office in this city as they were required from time to time, ...' In the paragraph above this one, Mr. Crocker refers to the Missionary Stamps as follows: 'These were the first numeral stamps which were set up from types, with the figured or pattern border around the numerals and plain double line border around the whole.' This shows conclusively that the word 'Numeral' as here used was intended by the author to include both the Missionary Stamps and also the later numeral issues. I believe that there are some more of the same printing as mine somewhere in the world which are well authenticated and which can be found through a thorough publicity campaign." Some time before the trial last year, Mr. Grinnell expressed to us his conviction that his Missionaries were indubitably genuine but were of a printing, officially made, of which his stamps were examples; and he hoped clearly to prove that the specimens originated on the islands. By the process of elimination, all Missionary Stamps that differed from the accepted stamps cannot classify, on looks alone, as genuine stamps; and so Mr. Grinnell wants the supporting testimony of other stamps of the character of his own stamps." Truly, "faith is the substance of things hoped for," and, it may be added: "There are no tricks in plain and simple faith."

We follow Mr. Grinnell in his letter and come to the human interest element that is developed by Mr. Grinnell: "I think that Mr. Klemann believed the stamps to be bad when he brought suit but as my attorney relied upon a point of law involving the question of warranty, which was not sustained by the judge; and further, since I was unable to secure any other stamps for comparison, those which were presented in court having all been selected by Mr. Klemann, I cannot feel otherwise than that an injustice has been done in this matter. If the stamps are bad, I will burn them rather than have them again on the market. If they are good, I think that they will be vindicated before long. Mr. Klemann has made concessions in this settlement which represent a very considerable loss to him and while I feel that he first should have checked up the history of these stamps rather than condemn them without investigation, yet I am not willing to criticize his motive, not knowing all of the facts of what took place immediately following his arrival in New York, at the time he purchased these stamps. My own greatest mistake was in not getting a lengthy written statement from Mr. Shattuck. I thought that a statement from him could be had at any time but I delayed getting it too long and when I wanted it, he was dead."

It becomes evident from a reading of Mr. Grinnell's letter, which is printed substantially as received, that the case may be reopened, in-so-far as the genuineness of the stamps are called into question, at any time. If happy circumstances should attend the endeavors of Mr. Grinnell and tend to prove that Mr. Grinnell's contention is well-advised, the thought of "truth, crushed to earth will rise again" will sing in Mr. Grinnell's mind. We have the two large photographs showing the Grinnell lot of stamps and we shall decide upon what course to take to show them to best advantage. No doubt we shall be able to obtain from Mr. Grin-

The latest surcharges from Dutch Indies, Syria, Palestine, Lithuania and The Levant. The newest high values — 100, 200, 300 Marks, 1 & 2 Drachmas, 2 & 3 Diners, 500 & 1000 Knones, 100,000 Rubles. Colombian Airmail, New Danzig, Finland, Mexico and South America. In brief—all the stamps are current, or have been within two years. We can do this only because we have exclusive rights to the mail of four of the largest international corporations in the city. Into this M. C. we shall put the newest issues as they come in. No two lots will be exactly alike.
We know that the skeptics will say that ½c each is too high for any packet—but you know that a skeptic should not be considered a criterion. Even tho you bought a Manhattan Conglomeration, you will find plenty to interest you in The Metropolitan Consternation. We cannot give a catalog value, but we assure its worth.
THE HOME OF THE POSTAGE STAMP, 510 W. 113TH ST., NEW YORK CITY

nell sufficient text to make them stand as the features of a story that would indicate wherein the differences between the pictured stamps and the admitted originals were most pronounced. It is apparent that the history of the Missionary Stamps is to receive an addition but how significant a one, remains to be seen.

The following letter which is self explanatory has been received from Mr. John A. Klemann. "I beg to advise you that the bill introduced in Congress to allow the printing and publishing of illustrations of foreign postage and revenue stamps has been amended to admit of illustrations of parts of United States stamps enlarged. This bill has been reported favorably from the House Judiciary Committee and is now on the House calendar.

As you must know, it is vital to the best interests of philately that this bill be passed, for as matters now stand, all illustrations made and printed are a direct violation of the law and those making them are subject to criminal prosecution.

In order to make sure of its passage at this session, it is necessary that organized effort be made by your organization both collectively and individually by writing to each member of your state delegation as well as all members of the Judiciary Committee that you are interested in the passage of this bill.

The time is short as the session ends on March 4th and all legislation not acted upon at this session must be introduced again before it can be acted upon, and as Senator Frelinghuysen who introduced the bill retires at the close of this session, considerable delay might occur.

Be sure to refer to Senate Bill No. 2703, House Report No. 1547, House Calendar No. 281, and be sure that you write immediately as it is necessary to get this bill through in order to legalize the making of any illustrations. It is now a question of getting this or nothing at all."

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—Frank A. Goldsmith has shown us the first of the new issue precancelled. It is the 10c precancelled for New York City. We suggest that our subscribers who wish us to note these new precancels, write direct to F. W. Allen, 521 S. 4th St., Grand Forks, N. D., the editor of our precancel department. Will subscribers please note this request?

—J. C. Matthews has just issued a pricelist of bargains in sets. A specimen will gladly be sent on application. Address him at Olympia, Wash.

—The Holyoke (Mass.) Daily Transcript in its issue of Feb. 16, reprinted the stagecoach article that appeared in a recent number of the WEEKLY. Full credit was given our publication.

—Thanks to Perry D. Dye, Jr., we are able to give the following information in regard to the sale of Lincoln stamps at Hodgenville, Ky., Feb. 12, the birthplace of Lincoln. 5000 of the 3c stamps were placed on sale on the date in question and about 500 letters and 50 parcels were mailed, though the exact count was not kept. Thirty-three orders were received from stamp dealers on Feb. 12 and about twenty-five came later. The largest order filled for any single person or firm was for $5.

—Richard Lamprecht sends us a pair of German stamps that were used upon the back of an envelope and are uncancelled. They are the 5m brown, large numeral, bearing an inscription dealing with a stamp dealer's convention to be held at Leipzig, March 4-7, 1923.

—We have received from Nelson B. Gaskill a copy of the Jersey City Telegraph of Feb. 24, 1849. Upon the first page is found an official notice by the postmaster of Jersey City, that he has received a supply of postage stamps from the P. O. Department at Washington and "persons can be supplied at the post-office."

—"February 3rd, I read, 'Mention was made, many months back, of the fact that although the report of the Director of the Bureau showed that a good quantity of the 40c Documentary had been overprinted 'Stock Transfer' and 'Future Delivery,' no copies had ever been reported in the hands of collectors." I do not know how many months back you refer to, but I have had them in my collection for six or seven months.—FREDERICK BROCKMAN.

—J. A. U.—We answer your question publicly as our answer will be of general interest. You are one of many long-time subscribers and we appreciate your desire to have a complete file of our publication.. It is not however practicable for us to attempt to devise a system whereby the WEEKLY can be continued beyond the expiration of the subscription, with bill to follow. Notice of expiration is plainly indicated upon the wrapper four weeks before discontinuance, and a bill is also enclosed within the issue of the paper for that week. This is as far as we can go with the vast amount of detail involved in handling a subscription list of 8000 names. Or if you prefer, compare your number on the wrapper with the number on the first page of the WEEKLY.

—After four years of editorial connection with the Baltimore American, C. Lat. Wilhelm has been compelled to discontinue his stamp department in that paper. This announcement is made for the benefit of exchange publications.

—Frank A. Goldsmith has shown us two new advertising cancellations. One is of special interest and indicates a splendid piece of publicity work upon the part of Boston philatelists. The inscription "Philatelic Exhibition, Boston Public Library, March 19-24, 1923" is wrought into a cancellation in a very handsome manner. This cancellation is doubly attractive in that it marks the second time that mails have been used to advertise a philatelic event. The second cancellation was used at Augusta, Me., and reads, "Winter Carnival, Augusta, Me. Feb. 15-16-17, 1923."

"LEFLANG" NOT "EFLANG."

A curious mistake occurred Feb. 17, in the advt. of the Western Stamp Co. It is so self-evident that no miscarriage of mail can result but the name of the firm's office building is "Leflang" and not as stated. An "L" lost, strayed or stolen.

DID YOU OBTAIN a copy of the new 1923, 3c purple, Lincoln, used on the day of issue—February 12th—from his birthplace, Hodgenville, Larue County, Kentucky, the 114th anniversary of his birth? The official announcement of the issue on the first day from this village came so late that possibly very few were used. Can furnish a neat cover clearly postmarked for $1.00. CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the address of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—Since my last Chronicle announcing the issue of the 3c Lincoln at Washington on February 12th, I have received through the kindness of Mr. Warren P. Ware, a cover showing this stamp used on the day of issue from Hodgenville, Larue County, Kentucky, the birthplace of Abraham Lincoln. As it was not known until almost the last minute that a supply of these would be ready in sufficient time to send to this village, the official announcement was not given out until just a few days before the event.

We can now semi-officially announce that the $2 will appear in March possibly along with the 12c Cleveland which they hope to place on sale on the anniversary of his birth, March 18, 1923. Heretofore they have issued two or three stamps at the time, I believe to make it easier for the Philatelic Stamp Agency to take care of the great demand promptly and efficiently. If they came out just a day or two apart it would mean that some writing for early supplies to Washington would have to be disappointed. They have taken on several new clerks as well as larger quarters, but with the Land Office business that they are doing, even the increased force cannot more than keep things a-going.

While speaking of new things from Washington, announcement comes of the fact that we are likely after all to be able to illustrate United States stamps under certain conditions. For years the Secret Service has been strongly against it, but it seems now they are willing to see such a bill pass Congress. From their past attitude, one would have thought such a move was in the far distant future but through the activities of Senator Frelinghuysen and Congressman Ackerman, such a bill has gone to the proper committee and will without doubt have become a law by the time these notes appear. Everything is being done to bring action before the close of this session on March 4th.

Mr. H. W. Porter kindly sends me a block of the 1c Franklin from plate No. 14192 wherein the horizontal spacings differ between two rows, and it is possible to get a block of six, showing a difference in the two spacings.

Mr. B. K. Miller writes that while abroad, he had the pleasure of viewing the collection of Sir Nicholas Waterhouse and found that he had the entire 1861 series in the September print on the August paper. It has been known for a long time that most of the denominations of the September issue appear on the hard, thin, brittle paper of the August issue, but this is the first time I recall where they have all been together. Scott recognizes the 10c September on the August paper in their specialized catalogue but makes no mention of the others. For the last two or three years, they have been listing the 24c in a second shade of "grey lilac" and I have seen the copy in the Scott reference collection from which the variety is listed. It is undoubtedly on the August paper but surely this does not prove that it is the August variety any more than the other denominations on this paper. As a matter of fact it is doubtful if any of them except the 10c and 24c are more than printer's samples, if we may designate as such stamps that were never postally issued but were prepared by the engravers possibly as finished proofs to be submitted to the government as samples.

The Waterhouse collection also contains several of the September, 1861, stamps, used on dates previous to the earliest that we have seen listed heretofore, namely the 1c on August 29th, the 5c on the same day and the 24c on October 4th.

Mr. F. R. Demmerly sends for inspection a copy of the large series A playing card stamp, perforated 11½. These, we understand, are issued by the department imperforate and the means of separation applied by the playing card companies. This however is the first time we have seen the variety perforated.

Shanghai.—It is understood that the Postal Agency at Shanghai, China, was closed on December 31, 1922. I have however, just received a letter from Shanghai posted on January 24, 1923, with two of the surcharged 2c on 1c green and cancelled with the regular Agency cancellation on that day, the postmark being very clear. This I cannot account for but am making inquiries.

ANGORA.—The Economist Stamp Co. advise of the issuing of two values of stamps, one of brown color and the other bright red, both with the picture of a public building in the centre and the star and crescent in the upper corners.

CHINA.—Mr. A. W. Tyrrell shows us a mysterious provisional, used on a parcel, in the shape of the $2 blue and black (dollars type of 1913-19) overprinted in red with some Chinese characters over the inscription "Republic of ESTHONIA.—Prof. M. Loewy has sent to us for chronicle a copy of a 1m in the type of Scott's A10. The stamps are imperforate and dark brown in color. The Economist Stamp Co. have also shown us the same stamp perforated.

FINLAND.—The Economist Stamp Co. have shown us the new 2m blue stamp. It is perf. 14.

IRISH FREE STATE.—We have good authority for stating that it is unlikely that the date in the "SAORSTAT" overprint will be changed to "1923," the date "1922" being that of the setting up of the Free State.—Gibbons' Monthly Circular.

Mr. Michael Francis O'Donnell sends us a copy of the 1½d in the new permanent set. The color is red lilac and the stamp was placed on sale the 2nd of February. Mr. O'Donnell also adds that the Saorstat issue is now complete from ½d to 10sh. The last value to be issued was the 4d which was offered to the public on the 20th of January last. The following is from the Irish Times of Jan. 27th:

"Mr. J. J. Walsh, Postmaster-General for the Irish Free State, yesterday told a representative of the Irish Times what some of his plans were for the development of the Post Office, and what his intentions were with regard to the extension of the telephone system and the improvement of the telegraph.

He showed a sheet of 1½d stamps which, he said, would be issued to the public on February 2nd. The design is the same as that of the 2d stamps, but its colour is maroon. Penny, threepenny, and tenpenny stamps, with a Celtic Cross design, will shortly be issued, perhaps before the end of February. Halfpenny, fivepenny, sixpenny, and shilling stamps, bearing a representation of the Cliadeam Soluis (Sword of Light), were being printed, and the 2½d, 4d and 9d stamps would bear a representation of the Arms of the four provinces. The designer of the stamps, which bear a map of Ireland, is Mr. James Ingram, of Crawford avenue, Glasnevin. Miss Lily Williams, Lower Beechwood avenue, Ranelagh, the designer of the first Sinn Fein stamps, is also the designer of the Celtic Cross stamp. Mr. J. J. O'Reilly, 8 Westmoreland street, is the author of the "Sword of Light" design, and Miss M. M. Girling, of the Dublin School of Art has contributed the Arms of the Four Provinces. There are special designs for stamps of values from 2s 6d to 10s. These are by Professor Atkinson, Dublin, and will include representations of the Old Parliament House (Bank of Ireland), the Sackville street General Post Office, and the Custom House (before its destruction)."

MESOPOTAMIA.—The designs for the new issue, now in preparation, include winged Cherubim from Solomon's Temple, Babylonian Sculpture, Ruins of Ctesiphon, Serpent-headed Date-palm, Mosque at Muadhdham, Guffah scene, Tribal Camel Standard and Mosque at Kadhimain. The Mosques are of the Sunni and Shiah sects respectively. Meanwhile supplies of the current issue continue to be despatched.—Gibbons' Monthly Circular.

PORTUGAL.—Our Oporto correspondent, Mr. C. C. Tait, writes:—"In consequence of the fall in the value of Portuguese currency, new scales of charges for both internal and international postage appear in the 'Diario do Governo' (or Official Gazette), and are published in today's papers (January 11th).

The following new values or colours are announced:—5c sepia, 15c black, 20c deep green, 25c deep rose, 40c chocolate, 60c carmine, 75c magenta, $1 deep blue, and $1.50 slate.

The ¼, ½, 6, 7, 12, 24 and 80 centavos will no longer be printed. The 7 centavos mentioned is evidently a mistake, and should be 7½c.

The values thus rendered obsolete, as well as those whose colours have been changed, are available for use until the present stock is exhausted.

Nothing is said about any change in the design, so it may be assumed that it will be the same as at present."—Stamp Collecting.

RUSSIA.—As we expected, the fantastic famine "stamps" of Odessa have been denounced by the Soviet authorities as bogus. Scott's M. J. illustrates another long set, equally quaint and mysterious, with which we have not yet been troubled on this side. The Editor is very doubtful of its status and we share his doubts to the full. Readers should beware of these "stunt" issues until those who are working for the good of the hobby are able to get accurate information regarding their status.—Gibbons' Monthly Circular.

SARAWAK.—The Economist Stamp Co. have shown us the 12c, 1918 type, in a new color. This time it is blue.

Counterfeits and Damaged Stamps
Wanted

Am mounting a large reference collection of counterfeits. I am trying to match them with damaged genuine originals, any condition but stained or heavily cancelled. Will buy lots of both, or trade if you do not want to sell.

NOTE.—This collection is being compiled in the interest of Philately only, not as a money making proposition. It will be available to collectors free of charge. Selections will be loaned to clubs or responsible parties for exhibition purposes.

HISTORY FROM POSTAGE STAMPS.

By CHAS. G. WILSON.

The "garter" watermark which is on several of the issues of Great Britain from 1855 to 1880 is derived from the insignia of the Order of the Garter. This Order is the oldest of British orders of knighthood. There is much question as to when the Order of the Garter was instituted, as all the original records of the Order prior to 1416 have perished. And the reasons for the origin of it are not known, several different legends being given by historians. The most generally accepted story of how the Order began is:

In the course of a royal ball given at Windsor by Edward III in the assembly, a lady (some say the Queen, some Katherine Montacute, some Joan the Fair, Maid of Kent) dropped her garter. The incident caused much tittering and nudging. The King hastened to relieve the embarrassment of the lady and picked the garter up and placed it on his own leg. Turning to the assemblage, he said: "Honi soit qui mal y pense" (Evil be to him who evil thinks).

Such a happening occurring at a time of general festivity when devices, mottoes and all sorts of emblems were adopted as ornaments or badges of knights and worn at jousts, would naturally have been commemorated as other royal expressions seem to have been by conversion into a device or motto for the dress of knights.

When the Order became permanent, its members were assigned stalls either on the Sovereigns' or Princes' side of St. George's Chapel at Windsor. This custom has come down to the present day and the visitor can see the stalls each with the heraldic banner and shield of the knightly occupant above them, and on each stall are metal placques telling of the succession of knights who have occupied them.

ONE THING HE HAS ESCAPED.

I've lived my life of awful sin and quaffed forbidden nectar, but glory be! I've never been a wild-eyed stamp collector. They seek for stamps from far away, from Timbucktoo and Jolo, and waste a lot of time that they might spend at bridge or solo.

The symptoms of the scourge are these, the victim cuts strange capers and starts to trembling when he sees waste baskets full of papers. He dives right in with dancing eyes and probes down to the bottom, and finding two frayed stamps he cries, "Hooray, at last I've gottum!"

You ask, "What earthly good are they?" The stamp collecting brothers will feign a high brow air and say, "To trade 'em in for others." They paste them in a book and o'er it spend a lot of labor. It serves no use except to bore acquaintance, friend or neighbor.

A find will make him strangely wrought and make his breath sound wheezy—a stamp that some wild Hottentot has licked in far Zambesi. He'll throw a fit of keen delight, this postage stamp retriever, to find a stamp some Muscovite has carried in his "beaver."

Old Europe's sliding down the chute, abroad is famine's spectre, and yet conditions there should suit the eager stamp collector. They have laid new states and kingdoms out so fast it makes one dizzy, and each will print new stamps no doubt to keep collectors busy.—Seattle Post-Intellgencer.

EXPEDITION INTO TIBET

By LEONARD A. GIBBENS.

To those with the eye to see and the will to read, a stamp collection has much to tell. We philatelists who have mastered the alphabet of stamps may read the very charming "paragraphs" set across our albums and thereby learn of the downfall of kings, the creation of republics, and even of some tiny isle hemmed in by the seas at the remote ends of the world, whose dim existence is brought into some sort of prominence by the trifling squares of its postage stamps.

Further, if one has the patience, one may read records of conquests and of discoveries, and the harvests of the Grim Reaper are frequently marked on the pages of the stamp album. Of these, the most common perhaps is the fate of an unfortunate and unenvied president of some fanatical republic, whose portrait confronts us in all serenity on that country's postage stamps, and the subsequent issues tell us of his premeditated and cruel assassination. These are but a few of the incidents we may find expressed across the pages of a well-filled stamp album.

Today I am writing of an artist, a stamp designer, whose end is shrouded in mystery, and the very existence of that unfortunate gentleman would not have come into my perspective had it not been for philately.

In the year 1894 the lithographic department of a printing establishment in Japan was occupied with the manufacture of a series of nine stamp values, each one of which had one word of English embodied in its design. In due course the printing was completed and the supply of stamps dispatched to China, the country for which they had been prepared, the set being officially issued in China on November 17th, 1884, in honour of the sixtieth birthday of the Dowager Empress.

The design of these stamps is distinctly Eastern, and it would seem ludicrous to associate with them in this connection the work of a Western hand. However, essentially Eastern as they may appear to the Western eye, which is perhaps inclined to be a trifle unappreciative and prejudiced, the types of the stamps of this issue appear bare and almost unattractive, with the possible exception of the 24 candareen, which bears a centrepiece somewhat reminiscent of the old Willow pattern plates still hanging on the walls somewhere about the house.

The hand responsible for the designs of this celebration issue was that of Mr. R. A. de Villard, an artist resident in China.

It is fortunate that the customs of China are not those of this country, for—twenty years ago at least—in that Eastern clime the autocrats ruled the aristocrats and democrats—and with an iron hand. The slightest offence against the rules of these great personages and the offender, whoever he might be paid a heavy penalty for his indiscretion—either decapitation or exile to some country universally shunned and despised.

In designing the stamps for this issue Mr. de Villard innocently offended certain Chinese conventions. His offence, if such it may be called, had to do with abbreviated inscriptions and, at a later date, insult was added to injury by the introduction of a forbidden colour for the 20 candareen. The colour was imperial purple, the use of which is said to be permitted only to Chinese royalty. For this interesting information we are indebted to Mr. Melville's "Postage Stamps in the Making," which also tells us "It will probably never be ascertained with certainty whether Mr. de Villard's subsequent surveying expedition to Tibet was in the nature of a death sentence, but in setting out upon it the artist wrote to Mr. Whitfield King that his letter would probably be the last he would ever receive from him and from that time no further news has been heard of him."

Several years have elapsed since those lines appeared, during which period further news as to the fate of the artist may have come to light, and all philatelists, and others, would, I am sure, be deeply interested to hear of any later reports.

As it is, we are left to interrogation. Did Mr. de Villard return from his ostensible surveying expedition? Does some corner of the Forbidden City hide his place of burial? Tibet does not strike one as being a particularly cheerful place either to live or to die in. The climate is characterised by the excessive dryness of the atmosphere and the severity of the winter, and from October to March vegetation is almost dried up, whilst the cold in winter is intense.

Perhaps some philatelic journal has dealt with this subject and given fuller particulars. Perhaps Mr. Whitfield King himself could tell more, or failing that, maybe some reader of this magazine can and, we hope, will throw more light on this mystery.

I consider matters such as I have dealt with in this short article are of great importance in stimulating interest in philately, and doubtless there are many more of similar character, and it would, I feel sure, be fulfilling a useful purpose to again put them in print, as doubtless collectors of the present day would find in the reading much that is original and of interest.—*S. REMINISCENCES OF EARLY DAYS.

By CHARLES J. PHILLIPS.

(A Talk at the Collectors Club Feb. 21.)

In the very year that I was born—1863, Mr. Stanley Gibbons made the best purchase of his life, and one upon which he based his future success.

At this time young Gibbons was an assistant to his father, who was a well known pharmaceutical chemist, at 13 Treville St., Plymouth. E. S. Gibbons was allowed to use one portion of the window to show samples, and one morning two sailors passing the shop saw them, and went in to ask if anyone there bought stamps. Next day the men turned up, one of them with a large kitbag over his shoulder.

They were asked into the back parlor, and turned out the contents of the bag onto a large round table. The stamps were all triangular Cape of Good Hope, thousands and thousands of them, many in large blocks and woodblocks, and Perkins Bacon printings all mixed up. Gibbons asked the men how they had got a sackful of triangular Capes, and one of them replied:—

"When our boat got to Cape Town we had leave, and some of us went on shore for a spree, and me and my mate here happened to go in a show we found folks crowding into, and found a bazaar going on. Some ladies persuaded me to take a shilling ticket in a raffle, and we won this here bag of stamps which the ladies had begged for all around Cape Town for this bazaar."

Well, the men were very pleased to get $25.00 for the sack of Capes. And I should fancy Gibbons was equally pleased with his purchase.

It may interest you to know the rates at which Gibbons sold Capes in those early days. The figures I quote are authentic as I found Mr. Gibbons' letter book for March to June, 1864.

On March 16, 1864, he wrote to A. Rosenberg:—"I can supply you in any quantity 1d, 4d and 6d Cape of Good Hope, twenty cents a dozen, genuine old woodblock 75c a dozen." Next month prices were up, as he sent Mount Brown three dozen woodblocks at $2.50 a dozen.

About the same time he sent J. Pauwels of Torquay some 1s Capes at 35 cents a dozen, and quoted him $1.00 each for 1d blue and 4d red woodblock errors. By June, 1864, the price of Cape Errors had enormously increased as he was then offering them at $3.75 each! ! !

In the same year young Gibbons wrote to his agent in Cape Town, and ordered some of the new rectangular 1d and 6d stamps, and at the end of the letter said "Please not to send me 1d triangular, unused, as they are no good to me."

He had so many unused that he could not use more at face value of 2 cents each.

Mr. Gibbons vouched for the truth of the following incidents, all of which he well remembered.

He had many correspondents in South America, one was a Mr. Georges Nunes, who sent him many thousands of the early Brazils. Among these there were some hundreds of the sloping figures 180r, 300r and 600 reis.

From a student in Stonyhurst College, whose father was in Bolivia, Gibbons had scores of thousands of the Bolivia 1st issue Eagle, among these he estimated he had quite 5,000 of the 10c brown.

A wonderful lot came one day from Georgetown, British Guiana. This consisted of between three and four hundred of the circular stamps of 1850. There were some scores of the 4c orange, a smaller number of 8c green and the rest consisted of over 300 of the 12c circular.

About 1863 Mr. Gibbons began to import stamps direct from the British Colonies, and got many consignments that in later days turned out to be rarities.

The Postmaster at Albany, Western Australia, in sending $100 worth of stamps for which Gibbons had remitted, apologised for charging 12c each for some new 2d stamps printed in the color of the 6d, but he had to do this as the higher authorities had charged him 6d (12c) each. This 2d proved to be the rare error of 1879. Gibbons did not know what they were and sent them out at $1.25 each. This price he gradually rose to $10.00, at which price his supply was exhausted.

From 1885 to 1890 I dealt in stamps in Birmingham, before I moved to London and purchased the business of Stanley Gibbons. I can remember a couple of good purchases of these days. About

H. F. COLMAN 2ND NATIONAL BANK BLDG., WASHINGTON, D. C.

1887 I had a large parcel of Italian proofs and essays and other stamps, that a London dealer named Bannister wanted. He could not pay cash but he brought down a large parcel of other stamps which I took in exchange.

These consisted of many hundreds of the large 10s and £1 stamps of Great Britain watermark, both cross and anchor. The 10s were taken at 25c each and the £1 at 60c each. There were also several dozen of the £5 stamps for which I had to allow $1.85 each in exchange.

About 1888, I was up in London one week end, and visited a dealer in Cullum St., off Fenchurch St., in the city. On a show card in his shop window I saw a fine horizontal strip of three of the 1s New Brunswick, used and quite perfect. I got this for $50.00. I wonder what it would fetch at a Morgenthau auction today?

From 1890 I lived for a few years at No. 8 Gower St., London. One evening a man came in with one of those old Lallier albums well filled with nice old stamps. He asked me to make an offer, but as is usual in the trade, I said "no, you are the seller, you must name your own price."

After some talk he told me he had a catalogue at home and that he would value the book and come in the following evening. I was ready for him with a good wad of nice, clean Bank of England notes, as I expected to have to pay a few hundred pounds.

The next evening came and so did the man. I said "Well, have you fixed on your price for the album?" He replied that he had worked at it nearly all night and fixed the price at $150! After I had paid him, and got a receipt, and the album, I asked him what catalogue he had valued the stamps by, and he then gave it to me. It turned out to be one of Mount Brown's 1864 editions.

This was, I think, the cheapest collection I ever purchased. Most ordinary straight issues up to 1863 were complete. I found in it lots of rare errors. I remember two in particular:—New South Wales 1856, 2d blue diademed, the exceedingly rare error wmk., double lined "II". Western Australia 1869, 1s bistre, error in the color of the 1d, and I believe the only copy known. I sold this to Ferrary in 1895.

In 1891 we opened our first shop in the Strand. This was close to Charing Cross, and exactly where Coutts Bank now is.

One day a lady came in with a dirty and dilapidated Lallier album. We looked through it and found it an awful lot of rubbish, but there was just one stamp in the book worth having so we asked the lady what she would take for the book. She said she did not want any money, but had a fancy for Russian locals, and she was more than delighted when we allowed her to select all she wanted. In fact, she could have had all our stock of the locals for her old book, but $50 worth more than pleased her. I should mention that the one stamp in all that rubbish was the United States 1869, 30 cents, with flags inverted and unused. This we sold to Sir William Avery, and when Peckitt bought that collection he sold it to Mr. Worthington.

Dealing with a large number of stock books and collections which a considerable number of clerks have to handle, there is no wonder that mistakes in pricing or in placing a stamp often happens. One such occurs to me in which the joke was on me. I was in my office one day, when Lieut. Napier was announced. As I was engaged with a client, I sent word for him to wait in the shop for a short time. In due time he came up to my room and then showed me a rare Transvaal, saying "Don't you want to buy this for your stock?" It was the 1d of 1877 with the wide space between the V. R. and TRANSVAAL, a variety that only occurs once in a double pane of 80 stamps. I said I would buy the stamp if reasonable and we closed the deal at $50.00, at which price I was well content. I then said to Napier, "Where did you find that scarce variety?" He replied, "Oh! I bought it downstairs while waiting to see you, out of your own stock book where you had it priced $1.85!

You all know how very rare the India 1854, 4 annas, with the frame inverted is. Well, some 20 years ago a client at Southampton sent us up a large correspondence from India with about a hundred 4 annas, all on covers or pieces of covers, and quoted an average price for the lot of about 50 cents each. In going over them I found two copies of the "frame inverted," both cut to shape but used on one cover. These will be found illustrated in the Monthly Journal. One of these copies is now in the Duveen collection.

Some of the old time collectors who kept their old stamps for many years after they ceased to collect were astonished at the enormous profits they made when they sold their nearly forgotten treasures.

PAUL A. ROGERS, TUSCARAWAS, OHIO

Mr. W. Hughes-Hughes started his ollection in 1859, and kept a strict acunt of all he spent on stamps. In this ase it was $345.00. We bought this colction in 1876 for between $14,000 and 15,000.

Mr. Theodor Pauwels of Torquay ade a collection which cost him $1,800 p to 1871, when he put it on one side nd left it untouched until 1898. We en bought it for $20,000.

A collector at Hampstead, North Lonon, made a small collection as a boy, nd some 50 years afterward found it in is library, and was about to give it to is little grandson when a friend advised im to send it to auction. It was handed Puttick & Simpson who only found ne stamp of any value in the book, but at was the Mauritius 2d blue "POST FFICE" unused and the finest copy nown. This was purchased by H. M. ing George V for $7,250, and this copy ould bring about $17,500 today.

There is a curious history attached to many stamps if one only had the time to think them up and then to write them down. A case in point occurs to me about the famous British Guiana 1850, 2c rose. Many years ago the late Mr. Henry Duveen heard that a pair of these stamps had been found in Demerara. He commissioned his friend Mr. V. Gurdji, then of New York, now living at Nice, to go to British Guiana to buy these stamps. Gurdji started and got, I think, as far as Trinidad; there he got typhus fever, and never got to British Guiana, but the stamps did get to the Duveen collection, and their history is as follows:

The pair of the 2c stamps on a cover addressed to Miss Rose, Blankenburg, were found by a lady in British Guiana, I think in Georgetown. She gave them to the clergyman of her church who sold them for $1010.00, to Mr. Luard. He in turn sold them to our firm for about $4,250, and in due course we sold them to Mr. Henry Duveen for $7,250. Now some 20 years later the same pair of stamps is valued at $15,000.00.

Some twenty years ago my late firm bought several large parcels of early issues of British Colonials. One of the best bargains we had was with a lot of about 145 mint copies of the ½d yellow Malta. The owner sold them to us at the price of 60c each, the value of the common variety, quite overlooking the fact that his parcel were all the first issued on blued paper, and without watermark.

When I first went to London, one of our happy hunting grounds was at the shop of J. W. Palmer, behind Booksellers Row, Strand. Palmer had a wonderful lot of large albums in which he stuck all the stamps he considered forgeries: Large numbers of these were genuine, and Castle, Ehrenbach, Griebert and myself used to have lots of fun and profit by hunting through these "forgeries" and picking out some fine plums at a few cents each.

Early in the 80's the Paris paper Galignani's Messenger wrote as follows:—"Collecting Postage stamps is an innocent amusement, and it has been remarked that most persons addicted thereto are of the honest, calm, and harmless class, easily amused, and as easily kept in order, being themselves most orderly."

Extracts from the reports of auction sales some 20 to 30 years ago, are instructive as serving to show what a wonderful investment the collecting of old issues of postage stamps, has proved to those who bought and kept their stamps.

The original Stanley Gibbons was often confused with greater men of the same name, I remember two cases:—In 1893 our fellow member Dr. E. Diena wrote to us from Rome that one day he was in a small stamp shop there and the proprietor asked him if he had heard that the great Stanley Gibbons had arrived at the Hotel de l'Europe. Diena went to the hotel and sure enough the great Stanley was there but it was the famous African Explorer, H. M. Stanley.

A collector went into a book store and desiring a Gibbons' catalogue asked the Shop Man "Have you a Gibbons?" He replied, yes, sir—and brought him "Gibbons' Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire" in eight volumes!

A great deal of interest has been taken in the rare issue of British Guiana of 1856, (that is the large oblong stamps), since the purchase made by our member, Mr. Arthur Hind, at the Ferrary sale, of the unique error "one cent" in the color of the "four cent." I think I can give you the history of this world famous error. About 1888 I was Secretary of the Birmingham Philatelic Society which I founded. One evening we had a little gathering of our President, Mr. James Bottley, Thomas Ridpath, the Liverpool dealer, and myself.

Ridpath started telling us some of his experiences in his early days, and said that some years before he had a correspondent in Trinidad who wrote that he could get him some of these large 4c of 1856 and asking what price he would pay. Ridpath wrote and offered $5.00 each and in due course received a fat envelope full, and a draft, drawn at sight for the value; this he said was so large an amount for him then, that he had some difficulty in meeting it. In this consignment he found the famous error. Mr. Bottley had first call on what Ridpath got, as he financed him. Bottley however did not care for the copy as the corners were slightly clipped, and as he had a selection of the 4c stamps at about $10.00 each for very large and superb copies. Ridpath thereupon sent the stamp to Ferrary, I do not remember the price he said he got, but I do not think it was over $125.00.

OUR BOOK REVIEW.

"Looking Backward, or Fragments from a Checkered Life," the condensed life story of J. E. Handshaw, as told by Mr. Handshaw himself. A keen interest has already been manifested in this book which has just been published, and especially among philatelists because of Mr. Handshaw's long connection with philately. Indeed, the book is flavored to a considerable degree by items of interest to stamp collectors, and the descriptions of the various ocean voyages and land journeyings are strong features of the book. There are twenty-nine chapters, such as "Leaving Home," "A Great Revival," "A Barrel of Stamps and a Serious Accident," "A Dream About to be Realized," "A Third Ocean Voyage," and "Buying a Corporation." The book is illustrated with a number of half-tone engravings, including some taken in foreign lands. Quite naturally J. W. Scott, the veteran stamp dealer, figures in the book due to Mr. Handshaw's long acquaintance with him and the fact that he bought his entire stamp and publishing business. The book is nicely printed on fine paper, bound in cloth, price $2.25, postpaid. Imitation leather, gilt, $3.00, postpaid, but of this latter binding only a limited edition is offered. Mr. Handshaw will devote all of the profits of this enterprise to philanthropic work. The book is a handsome production and should have a large sale.

PRICE TREND OF U. S.

By MUNSTER D. URBANUS.

Very good evidence of present market prices of several U. S. stamps was afforded by the Kelton & Sloane auction at the Collectors Club in New York Saturday afternoon, Feb. 24. The sale consisted of 517 lots of U. S. stamps only. Of these the first 67 lots were of the New York 5c black postmaster's provisional, some 54 stamps, and many proofs, essays, reprints, etc. The stamps came used, unused, on and off covers, both pairs and singles.

Following the New York's came nearly 40 lots of 5c and 10c 1847, the 5's in good variety of condition, also including some pairs and cancellations.

There were 16 lots of the 10c 1851 issues, and a fair showing of the other values. 1857, 1861, 1869 and later issues were well represented.

The professional character of the bidding lends particular value to the results. Probably 90% of the bidders were dealers, so one may safely assume that 10% to 20% must be added to the prices realized to arrive at current retail prices.

Three stamps proved themselves outstanding favorites; they were the 5c New York, 5c '47 and 10c 1851; among which no really fine postmarked copy failed to bring full catalog, while many left the nominal quotations far in the rear. Even somewhat defective copies brought a large percentage of catalog in the case of the favorites.

Pencancelled copies of the New Yorks in fine condition ranged along between $41.00 and $51.00, though a fine copy of No. 2 on the plate fetched $65.00 in pencancelled condition. The postmarked copies when not cut into brought as high as $90.00 for a single off cover. Stamps cut close on one side or slightly creased sold at $30.00 and more. A very pretty pair on a small piece of cover was bid up to $126.00.

Fine covers, with postmarks or pencancellations "tying" the stamps to the cover, all went well above catalog. No. 38 with the ordinary red Paid falling not too neatly on stamp and cover commanded $69.00. No. 42, pencancelled and also tied on with Paid, $65.00; No. 43, $72.50; No. 44, $61.00. Less attractive covers, some of them far from works of art sold from $35.00 to $40.00 and even damaged copies fetched over $20.00. Two copies on one cover to Buffalo sold for $104.00, while a pair on cover with address cut out and one stamp close, cost $102.00.

Only one fine copy of the 5c '47 sold for less than $7.50. The first one offered, lot 69, with good margins but an ordinary shade, slipped by at $6.75. After that the prices ran $10.00, $9.75, $8.25, $9.75. All pretty copies with ordinary red grid cancellation. All rated under that elastic word "superb" but nothing to put one's eye out. The "very fine" copies with some sort of margins all 'round sold without exception (at auction) at from $7.50 to $8.25. Copies cut into or creased brought $4.00 to $4.75, and a nice pencancelled stamp $4.50. If to these figures is added a small percentage to cover inevitable ove sights and a working margin of pro it seems obvious that the present mark prices of the 5c '47 in average to go condition is about $7.50, technically "fin copies; and very fine about $12.50. The prices for red grid cancellation on or nary shades.

There were no extraordinary fine ca cellations offered. The Philadelphia Paid in oblong frame on a fine dark brown shade sold for $21.00 off cover; a nice red "5", $18.00; rather messy magenta grid, $14.00; brown grid, $14.00. Two nice pairs, ordinary shades, one with small margins at top, brought, respectively, $36.75 and $32.50. All the 10c '47's were defective and sold from $15.00 to $26.00, with $33.00 for a big shift with one side cut away.

The only "early" in the sale I thought truly superb—that is, with good margins, fine color, lightly cancelled—was a 5c 1851, which sold at $58.00! It was a fine, bright stamp, early impression, but margins not so large as to show any of the surrounding stamps.

Three nice copies 3c 1851, a red grid, red town, and star cancellation, sold for $6.75!

The 1c '51's were not fine but averaged more than full catalog.

All of the 10c '51's sold well. The copies with fine margins sold from $6.25 to $6.75, good stamps of no particular character, at $3.30 to $4.75, stamps cut into $1.40 to $2.50. A nice copy of full scrolls $14.00, with a nice pair quite liberally cancelled going at $31.00. These figures seemed to fix current retail prices at $8.00 to $10.00 for very fine copies, $6.00 to $7.50 for fine and full catalog for ordinary stamps.

Poor copies of the 12c '51 found no favor, but a fine copy with fair margins all round brought $11.25, a pair close on two sides but small sheet margins at left, $32.50 and another pair one stamp showing shift in label, $42.00.

Except for the 10c of the 1857 issue, Scott's Nos. 49 and 50, which sold above catalog for good copies, the showing was not good enough to furnish figures of any value. There were no fine copies of the 5c red brown or brick red, and the later printings of the 5c all sold below catalog. A well centered copy of the 12c sold at $5.50, a nice 90c at $17.75.

Nine copies of the 1c '61 went in a lot at $3.50, but two nice pairs sold for $3.25 and two vertical strips at $4.50. The 1c on laid paper sold for $14.40. Two nice copies of the 24c red lilac got $7.50 and $7.60 and a pair of No. 78, off center but reddish cork cancellation, sold at $8.00.

There was nothing interesting to me in the offerings of the 1867 issues, and not much in the 69's. Then a very nice copy of the 24c sold at $9.60, and copies with slight defects at $4.00 to $5.00. A good 30c went at $5.00.

The bank note issues sold well, though nothing of importance was offered. Four pairs of the 12c Continental brought $13.25.

High value Columbians lightly cancelled were in good demand and brought 75% of catalog figures. All really fine copies of the high values in the 1894, 1895 and 1898 issues sold at large percentage of catalog.

Departments had to be very fine to bring anywhere near catalog but the 90c Justice brought $29.50 and the 90c State $6.90.

The few fine copies of Confederate States offered all sold above catalog. The 5c New Orleans on blue at $8.50, a marginal copy of the 5c green general issue at $6.00, or double catalog; a superb o. g. copy of the 10c rose at $17.25, cats. $12.50, and a used copy of the same close at top, $8.75.

Revenues were also strong—a strip of three $1.00 Manifest, imperf., $6.75, cat. $4.50; strip of $20.00 Conveyance, one creased, cat. $6.00, sold at $10.00. The $20.00 Probate went at $26.00; $20.00 blue and black was knocked down at $14.75, the $25.00 same issue at $20.00 and an off-center copy of the $50.00 at $12.25.

The sale was carefully catalogued and such few errors in description as were found to exist were announced during the sale. Out of town bids for these lots were withdrawn.

PULLING UP THE COLONIES.

The Secretary of State for the Colonies has again issued instructions to the Colonies respecting the production of unnecessary issues of stamps. Messrs. Whitfield King & Co. forward to us the following letter received by them within the past few days from the Colonial office:—

"I am directed by the Duke of Devonshire to refer to your letter of the 3rd January, addressed to the Crown Agents for the Colonies, a copy of which has been forwarded to this Office, and to inform you that he has already had under consideration the desirability of limiting as far as possible, new issues of Colonial postage stamps.

I am, however, to point out that in some recent instances, such as Kenya Colony, and Malta, an alteration in the status of the territory seemed to call for a new issue of stamps, while in the case of Tanganyika and Iraq, which had previously been using surcharged stamps, it was clearly desirable that a separate issue should be made.

A further source of new issues during recent years has been the introduction of paper bearing the new Script watermark, and it is possible that a revision of the colours of the different values may be required in some Colonies as a result of international agreements.

His Grace has, however, instructed Governors of all Colonies and Protectorates that they should not put forward proposals for new issues of stamps unless some satisfactory reason can be adduced, and has stated that he cannot allow the prospect of revenue from sales to collectors as an argument in support of proposals for a new issue."

Messrs. Whitfield King & Co. inform us that "the above letter is in reply to one which we addressed to the Crown Agents for the Colonies, protesting against the issue of unnecessary stamps, created mainly for the purpose of sale to collectors, and especially citing the new stamps of St. Kitts and Nevis, avowedly made with the object of raising funds for providing a public park for the people of the Colony, towards which the subscribers to our New Issue Service will have contributed over £1,000 when our February distribution, now commencing, is completed. We believe that all collectors, whether they subscribe to a new issue service or not, will welcome the drastic action of the Colonial Office in putting a stop to future issues of commemorative and unnecessary stamps."

EDITORIAL.

We learn that the dream of many years has become a reality, and if ever philatelists had occasion to felicitate themselves, now is the appointed time. The news is to the effect that at last the privilege to illustrate United States stamps, under restrictions that are not improper, has been bestowed upon the body philatelic by a Congress that has listened to reason. Our first tidings of gladness came from Mr. Stanley B. Ashbrook of Cincinnati, one of the most effective and earnest workers in the cause, who wrote: "I have just heard that the Amended Bill permitting U. S. illustrations has not only passed the Senate but also the House. It looks as though we had obtained everything that we asked for. . . . . The American Philatelic Society certainly is to be congratulated on this legislation."

House Report 1547, accompanying Senate Bill 2703, gives the whole story; and the bill that passed the Senate on February 17, 1922, is as follows: "An Act to allow the printing and publishing of illustrations of foreign postage and revenue stamps from defaced plates. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That nothing in sections 161, 172, and 220 of the Act entitled 'An Act to codify, revise, and amend the penal laws of the United States,' approved March 4, 1909 (Thirty-fifth Statutes at Large, at pages 1118, 1121, and 1132), shall be construed to forbid or prevent the printing or publishing of illustrations in black and white of foreign postage or revenue stamps from plates so defaced as to indicate that the illustrations are not adapted or intended for use as stamps, or to prevent or forbid the making of necessary plates therefor for use in philatelic or historical articles, books, journals, or albums, or the circulars of legitimate publishers or dealers in such stamps, books, journals, or albums; and nothing in said sections shall be construed to forbid or prevent similar illustrations, in black and white only, in philatelic or historical articles, books, journals, albums, or the circulars of legitimate publishers or dealers in such stamps, books, journals, albums, or circulars of such portion of the border of a stamp of the United States as may be necessary to show minor differences in the stamps so illustrated, but all such illustrations shall be at least four times as large as the portion of the original United States stamp so illustrated."

Important Notice

Our attention has been called to the fact that rumors have been circulated throughout the trade to the effect that our 1923 Postage Stamp Catalogue has been completely sold out and no further orders can be filled.

This statement is untrue. We have an ample stock of both styles to meet the requirements of the trade for some months.

On February 6, 1923, the following report, in part, as presented here, was referred to the House Calendar and ordered to be printed. The report was by Mr. Hersey from the Committee on the Judiciary, and we reproduce only that text that is not duplicated in its meaning by the bill that has been copied: "The committee amendements above stated are recommended by Hon. W. H. Moran, Chief of the Secret Service Division of the Treasury Department, and there follows a copy of letter received from Mr. Moran, dated January 26, 1923, giving his approval of the legislation: Washington, January 26, 1923. My Dear Congressman: Upon returning from an extended official trip, I find your letter of January 15 awaiting me, and am returning herewith a copy of a bill amending sections 161, 172, and 220 of the Criminal Code, suggesting the following slight changes in phraseology in order to meet the objections I first raised to the amendment. The second proviso, as the bill was introduced in the Senate, provided that none of the illustrations sanctioned by the amendment would be made in colors, nor should 'such illustration or plate be of a stamp of the United States.' These objections are not met in the bill submitted. I would, therefore, suggest that on line 8, after the word 'illustrations,' the following be incorporated: 'in black and white of foreign.' With this change I can see no objection to the amended bill. Very truly yours, W. H. Moran, Chief." This letter was sent by Mr. Moran to the Hon. Ernest R. Ackerman, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C. We continue: "The bill is also approved by the Department of Justice; the letter from Assistant Attorney General Crim approving the same is also printed herewith as a part of this report: Department of Justice, Washington, D. C., November 17, 1921. Hon. Knute Nelson, Chairman Committee on the Judiciary, United States Senate. My dear Senator: I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your letter of November 15, transmitting a copy of bill S. 2703, and to say that I can see no objection to the proposed legislation. For the Attorney General: John H. Crim, Assistant Attorney General."

We believe that the bill as passed by Congress is acceptable to stamp collectors and that its provisions in a working sense will meet the expectations of philatelists generally. It is something to know that the American Philatelic Society has planned for years to accomplish the result and those who have had experience in dealing with proposals of this kind in a legislative way can understand that the achievement is one that gives every reason for rejoicing. The efforts of the different committees of the society having the objective in view constantly, seconded by the co-operation of our philatelic representatives in Congress are rewarded; and now collectors may give themselves up to pleasant reflections of the possibilities and advantages to be derived from the victory. While a full showing of philatelic strength may not have been made through the requests by letter of the philatelic constituents of senators and congressmen for favorable action on the bill by reason of calls, latterly for a demonstration of the kind by collectors, yet in response to the word that was passed around by some of the philatelists who were in possession of direct information, some showing was made in this particular.

One finds it interesting to ponder the benefits that will follow the practical application of the boon conferred by the bill. First, the thought comes that now the issues of our country are released from the handicap that attends the collecting of United States stamps, complexities that have discouraged not a few philatelists in studying the stamps of this country will now be removed. It has been somewhat ironical that our stamps have been so dependent on variations that cannot well be described in text for much of their collecting popularity; and the prohibition of our laws to make the difference clear by picture has imposed a burden on the average collector. Withal, the interest in United States has mounted to a degree that has been the wonder of many and, now, that it is to be said that all restraints to collecting our stamps have been thrown off, it is felt that the present acute interest in our issues will be accentuated. Indeed, philately in the United States has been immeasurably strengthened by the congressional act of courtesy.

BOSTON EXHIBITION.

The Boston Philatelic Society will hold an exhibition of postage stamps in the exhibition hall of the Boston Public Library during the week beginning March 19, 1923.

This exhibition will include not only rarities of interest to the advanced collector, but it will also be along historical and educational lines to interest the general public in philately.

Roland M. Baker, postmaster of Boston, has promised his co-operation in obtaining material for a Government display.

Ralph N. Hall, Esq., will deliver an illustrated lecture on "Stamp Collecting as a Hobby" in the lecture hall on the opening night of the exhibit.

THE HOME OF THE POSTAGE STAMP, 510 W. 113TH ST., NEW YORK CITY

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—Carroll Chase, M. D., informs us that he will leave for England and France, March 17, and expects to return about June 1. He requests that no R. R. cancellations be sent him until after the first of June.

—The Edward Ludwig Stamp Co. informs us that they have discovered a specimen of 1sh Victoria blue on blue, type A13, with double lined numeral 1. Scott's catalog lists this stamp with watermark single lined only.

—We have received from Gustave Larson of Worcester, Mass., the particulars of some counterfeits of Swedish stamps, based upon an article by Harry Wennberg in the Svensk Filatelistisk Tidskrift. Four stamps have been found with counterfeit surcharges, Scott's Nos. 423a and 424b having been discovered in a new and somewhat different type from the old and well known forgeries of this issue. Scott's 98a was represented with inverted surcharges both at top and bottom. Five of the air-mail stamps, 301a, 302a, 303a, 304 and 305, have been seen in counterfeits. Expertly cleaned copies of Scott's 103 have appeared and have been offered as No. 95.

—A former advertiser, Harry Ioor, has returned to our columns and his announcements will hereafter be seen regularly in our paper. He is now permanently located at 801 State Life Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind., and will be pleased to see local collectors.

—The Michigan Stamp Club of Detroit celebrates its ninth annual banquet at the Hotel Wolverine on Saturday, March 17. Mr. Boers will no doubt send us an account of the event.

—E. E. Homes, 614 Ave. A, Bethlehem, Pa., can get no replies from letters addressed to C. W. Rumsey, R. 3, Box 47, Dushore, Pa.

—A good many clippings come to our desk that are not sufficiently newsy for us to reproduce in the WEEKLY, but we are grateful to our subscribers for their co-operation in sending them in. George K. Whitney sends us two clippings that we are very glad to receive. One is from the Independent Inter-Weekly for Schools entitled, "The First Postage Stamp and What Came of It," by Gardner Teall. It is mighty interesting and has no fewer than six illustrations. It will prove a valuable publicity producer. The Boston Transcript of Feb. 21, had a large page feature by W. J. Voss dealing with the new set of stamps. It is finely illustrated, with a picture of W. Irving Glover, Third Asst. Postmaster General.

—The fourth annual banquet of the Syracuse Stamp Club, Syracuse, N. Y., will be held Friday evening March 16, 1923, at the Chamber of Commerce banquet hall in the salt city. This is the Philatelic event of Central New York. The committee promises six or seven hours of solid Philatelic enjoyment for only two dollars the plate. Besides stunts there will be stamp talks, an exhibition of rarities and a stamp sale. A. A. Leve is publicity manager of this growing stamp organization.

—Kent B. Stiles refers to our editorial of Feb. 17 which commented upon the sending out of an Associated Press despatch relative to the first use of the portrait of a woman on our postage stamps. He states that the A. P. found out its mistake and tried to correct the error, but various newspaper editors disregarded the "kill" and published the story.

—The San Diego Stamp Club was formed by twenty-five active collectors, January 1st, and is now holding regular meetings at 7.30 P. M. the first and third Mondays of each month, to which stamp collectors and visitors are cordially invited. The rooms of the club are located in the Snyder building, 835 Sixth street, room 6, and the club's officers are as follows: President, P. A. Coffard; Vice-President, C. Lee Tubbs; Sec.-Treas., J. W. Snyder; Librarian, A. H. Wright; Sales and Exchange Officer, D. A. Lobenstein.—JOHN L. FOX.

25% DUTY ON U. S. STAMPS AND ENVS.

By J. M. BARTELS.

A very startling piece of information, isn't it? Just like a bolt out of a clear sky, but it is so. This law went into effect last September and is now in force, though we are just beginning to feel its effects.

"Foreign Postage Stamps, Envelopes and Postal Cards" have been free from duty since about 1893, but nothing is said of our own home government product. A law was enacted in September last declaring that any United States product which has been exported can only be reimported free by the original exporter, but no one else. A careful search of every rubric and paragraph fails to reveal any clause which will admit free of duty any of the above or even U. S. securities or bonds.

The writer purchased from an estate in Europe last summer a very fine collection of U. S. Stamped Envelopes, expecting its delivery about October 1st. It is still held by the custom officials for the payment of several hundred dollars import duty, as envelopes manufactured in the U. S., declared at a specified figure on which 25% is charged. An appeal to the highest port authorities has brought no results. The case is now in good hands in Washington, where it is hoped a special ruling by the Treasury Department will be secured again placing stamps on the free list.

Needless to say that this change in the statute was not intended to import a duty on U. S. postage stamps, however, they have been caught in the net which was spread to prevent the reimportation of goods sold at low prices in Germany by the army officials when the forces of occupation were withdrawn. We learn that several other dealers have had trouble and in some cases been compelled to pay duties. Nothing should be left undone to bring about the needed whip without delay.

Did you read my several recent advertisements asking for United States stamps, either collections, duplicates, stocks or even singles? As a result, I purchased several very attractive properties, as well as some unusual single pieces. Still in the market for more, and especially want fine collections as well as mint blocks and unusual covers. If you are thinking about selling, write me before closing elsewhere. Will purchase outright, sell on commission, or offer excellent exchange.

Let me hear which spaces are still vacant in your album, and tell me what condition you wish to see, that is, whether A1, ordinary, or slightly imperfect, you know how elastic your pocket-book is, so if it is the best, we have them, at fancy prices; if the other sort, cost you less money.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the address of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—Mr. Emile Yost as well as Mr. E. N. Costales of the Scott Stamp & Coin Company have shown me copies of the new 2c red, Washington, perforated 11 x 10 on unwatermarked paper. These stamps it will be recalled are made from the coil waste and it will not be surprising to see at some early date copies of the same variety perforated 11. The former, by the way, are from the perforated coil waste while the latter are made from the imperforate waste. The block which Mr. Yost submits shows the open star and plate number 14099 in the upper left corner of the sheet.

1923, Rotary Print, Perforated 11 x 10.
2c red, Washington.

In an earlier chronicle mention was made of the fact that the Bureau was in need of 2c coil stamps for filling requisitions and had to distribute the new variety previous to the day announced by the Department for their issue. While January 15, 1923, was the day they were officially placed on sale, Mr. L. B. Coley now shows me a cover with this variety cancelled in St. Louis on the 13th.

Through the courtesy of the Postmaster, Mr. R. B. Thurman, of Hodgenville, Larue County, Kentucky, we are able to inform our readers that about 500 letters and packages passed through his office on February 12th and this number included all of the 3c used on the first day in addition to the normal local mail.

Mr. E. N. Costales calls attention to the fact that he has located two very distinct double transfers on both the 1c rotary, perforated 11 x 10, and the 1c Pilgrim. It is not definitely known upon what sheet the rotary varieties occur but the Pilgrims are the 47th and 48th stamps on the lower left pane of sheet 12418.

Through the courtesy of Mr. L. A. Hill, Director of the Bureau of Engraving & Printing we are able to bring our list of plate numbers up to and including February 20, 1923.

14332-339	2c	Ord.	1922	400
14340-341	2c	Ord. Cvd.	1922	170

In the above list we find the first of the 3c, the $2 and the $5 plates of the new series as well as the first 400 subject rotary plate of the 1c stamp. Only one of the four 3c plates, namely 14297, was completed in time for use in supplying the stamps issued on the first day. It will be noted that the $2 stamp like the $1 is made from a 200 subject plate, while the $5 like all of the two colored stamps turned out by the Bureau will be engraved from a 100 subject plate. This work is done slowly on a hand press and with such a denomination it will be so carefully watched that we need not look for an invert. A second set of new 4c coil plates is upon this list in addition to a lone plate which no doubt takes the place of one of the other four which is possibly defective. As the $5 is printed in two colors it will be understood why a border and a center plate are made.

Mr. H. Clay Reed informs me that he has located several new provisional envelopes not listed heretofore.

BELGIUM.—Mr. Henry Hooreman and the Economist Stamp Co. have submitted for chronicle a set of five stamps for parcel post use of a new design. The values and colors are as follows: 5c brown, 1.50frs bright green, 1.80frs lilac, 2.10frs yellow green and 2.40frs purple. Also the same correspondents advise of the appearance of a 40c brown and 1fr purple in the postage due series.

DANZIG.—The Economist Stamp Co. call our attention to the following new items of this country: 150m violet and carmine on grey, 250m violet and carmine on grey, 500m dark green and carmine on grey and 1000m dark brown and carmine on grey. The 150m value is in small format, with the Arms of the Free City supported by lions salient; while the design of the others is a traverse elongation of the 1921 type for the values of the 5m and upwards, with the difference that the heads of the supporters are turned outwards.

HONDURAS.—Mr. F. W. Budde informs us that a Government notice has recently been issued stating that a new series of postage stamps have been contracted for in Germany, and it is expected they will make their appearance in August. At the same time a commemorative stamp will be issued and the proceeds of the same to be used to build a new postal administration building in the capital city.

HUNGARY.—We have received a set of five stamps issued to commemorate the centenary of the Hungarian poet Petofi. There are five denominations, 10, 15, 25, 40 and 50 korona, each of a different design. The only inscription the is the word "Magyarorszag" an value. TURKEY.—A correspondent informs us that letters reaching Mosul from Turkish territory bear a new stamp issued by the Angora Government. The design consists of a soldier holding a rifle with fixed bayonet, and a Turkish inscription reading "Independence is the right of my nation. My nation worships the truth and my flag is the flag of the free." We have not seen copies and no information is forthcoming as to denominations. —Whitfield King & Co.'s Bulletin.

TURKS AND CAICOS ISLANDS.—Mr. R. Roberts sends us copies of the following values in a new design: 2½d purple on yellow, 4d red on yellow, 5d sage green on white, 6d purple on white, 1sh orange, and 2sh carmine on emerald, 3sh black on red. All are on script paper except the last two values which are printed on paper with the old watermark.

OUR 2c LETTER-POSTAGE RATES.

Reports have come from different parts of the American continent and the Old World that the two-cent postal-letter-rate zone has been extending rapidly for some time and still is extending. The changes from higher rates came so rapidly at times that people who correspond here with others in foreign countries which had not the two-cent rate but later adopted it were sending their letters for months at the old postage rates before they knew of the change.

The United States now gives more long-distance postage service for the money than any other country in the world. New Zealand comes within the two-cent-stamp zone. American business men, it is said, reap considerable benefit from the low postage rates which it has been possible to establish with other countries, but it is now generally felt that this is not the greatest gain. A low postage rate results always in increased correspondence between countries, which means, it is also contended, the growth of international understanding and friendship.

Spain and Argentina are the latest countries to come within the two-cent-letter zone, and the Canary Islands, the Palearic Isthmus and other Spanish possessions also come within the two-cent ruling. To the surprise of many, Australia does not yet come under the two-cent ruling. The British Empire, generally, however is in the zone. England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales can be reached by letter for two cents, but correspondence with India or Egypt is more expensive. Many South American and Central American countries, including Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Colombia, Costa Rica, and adjoining countries are most of them in the zone. France has not yet come within it. Before the war there was a two-cent rate for letters sent to German ports in German ships, with no movement in sight to restore the old rate.—Popular Magazine.

THE BAER COLLECTION.

In the WEEKLY of Jan. 27, appeared an advertisement of the purchase of a notable collection by the Economist Stamp Co. It was a very strong collection of Confederate provisional postmasters' stamps, the property of M. S. Baer of Baltimore, Md. It is probably the finest lot of Confederate issues that has changed hands for a long time. There are many good things in the collection, including such gems as the Danville 5c red, the Petersburg stamps, the Nashville provisionals, the New Orleans postmaster issue, and the Spartansburg, on original. Mr. Stern is to be congratulated upon the acquisition which will no doubt be easily broken up to the satisfaction of many specialists in Confederate issues.

WILL IT PAY?

¶ You naturally ask yourself that question before subscribing to my Special Bargain Lists.
¶ These lists are issued weekly and are sent regularly to subscribers only.
¶ The Subscription Price is 50c for 50 consecutive numbers—just the price of postage.

¶ Why are they not sent free?
¶ Because they are meant for active buyers only and active buyers will save the subscription price many times over.
¶ Because I pay all printing and mailing expenses, which amount to considerably more than the postage.
¶ Because the number of subscriptions I can take is limited.

¶ What Do They Offer?
¶ They offer all New Issues as issued.
¶ They offer Special Bargains and "Snaps", many of them unusual. No. 217, for instance, offered a Mint Edward Colonial Cataloging $20.00 for $5.50.
¶ They offer, also, many single "Hard-to-Get" items that are hunted out especially for the benefit of subscribers.

¶ Because subscribers get first chance at the Special Bargains and most of them are never advertised elsewhere.
¶ Because you will be certain to find in them new issues that interest you as soon as issued.
¶ Because they will Save you the Subscription Price many times over.

100 SUBSCRIPTIONS

¶ I will accept 100 more subscriptions—not more.
¶ Sample Lists will be gladly sent on request.
¶ Collectors who are not active buyers are earnestly requested not to subscribe.
¶ These lists will interest and help you — the service they offer is unique.
¶ Send 50c in unused stamps and take advantage of this offer.

THE POST-OFFICES IN FIJI.

By FORREST SHREVE.

The interest in cancellations that has made such a great growth in recent years with respect to our own early issues has also spread to the collecting of many foreign countries. While some of the older issues are still the prime favorites for this type of specialization, there is, nevertheless, a growing interest in the collecting of recent postal markings on Twentieth Century stamps. In most of the smaller colonies of Great Britain, France, Portugal and other countries the machine cancellation is little used, and the postmark falls mainly on the stamp itself. This makes it possible to secure a series of stamps bearing the cancellations of all post-offices in the colony without having to get a piece of the cover, as is necessary for machine cancellations.

In collecting the town name cancellations of a given colony it is always desirable to have an authentic list of the post-offices, not only for the sake of knowing how complete one's collection is getting to be but for the equally useful purpose of identifying names that fall only partly on the stamp. A very neat little field, and by no means an easy one, is afforded by the postmarks of Fiji. There is not much of interest in the markings on the earlier issues of this colony, as numerical cancellations were never used, and the most common obliteration is the cluster of radiating lines used at the General Post-Office in Suva, the capital. At the present time the commonest type of marking is a circle enclosing the town name and abbreviated date, the letters of the name usually being rather large. At some of the small offices the cancellation consists simply of the name in a straight line, without boxing, and in small Roman letters. This type is used, for example, at Ba, and this is probably the smallest official obliteration ever applied to a stamp.

For the benefit of those who are collecting the town names of Fiji, or have the hardihood to begin it, the following list of offices is presented. The names are taken from an official printed list dated January 1, 1922. It is of some interest to note that with the exception of Ellington and Richmond the names are all of native origin. If any collector has the names of obsolete offices not on this list he will perform a service by sending them to the WEEKLY. As most of the offices do an extremely small business any collector who has more than 45 out of the total of 67 names should make early application for admission to the Order of Obliterative Merit.

Ten Thousand Varieties

Here is a collection "de luxe" and one that we can recommend to any collector, as it not only contains a large number of medium-priced stamps of the slippery, hard-to-get type, but also a lot of good ones from British, French and Portuguese Colonies, Europe, etc., cataloguing up to several dollars each. Practically all countries of the world, from the oldest to the newest, are represented, and there are scores of attractive picture stamps, new issues, and other novelties. The collection is also desirable for any dealer with counter trade, as it is neatly mounted in ten ruled approval books and needs only to be priced and put on sale. Never before have we been able to offer such out-and-out value in a medium-priced collection—just think of getting 10,000 all different stamps at just about 1½ cents each! Send in your order immediately on our Money-Back Guarantee—you will never regret it! PRICE $155.00

FREE PREMIUM! To convince the most conservative and in order to doubly show our sincerity and desire to prove the excellent value of this collection, we will present to every cash buyer, absolutely free of charge and with our compliments, all of the following: 1 set Trinidad Nos. 81-2-3, lightly cancelled (cat. $30.50), 10,000 Superior Hinges in boxes (value $1.50), 1 Peerless loose-leaf album (value $2.50), as well as a Surprise Package containing a magnifying glass, pocket stock book, stamp tongs and other philatelic articles for your "Stamp Den." Send in that order today—YOU CAN'T LOSE!

Twenty Thousand Varieties
PRICE $895.00

Words cannot do justice to the aristocratic and thoroughbred appearance of this excellent assembling, nor to the fineness and quality of the stamps contained therein. It is easy enough to get together 20,000 stamps of a kind, including telegraphs, cut-squares, and other unlisted varieties, but it is a different matter to obtain a collection of the same number of standard varieties, all in the pink of condition, and containing a number of the scarcer stamps cataloguing up to $10 or $15 each. We will back the quality of this collection against all comers, and the best proof of our sincerity is our guarantee of "Complete Satisfaction or Money Back." The collection is mounted by countries in twenty ruled books and is ready for immediate transferring into your albums. All countries of the world are represented, 20th century and new issues are quite strong, but the older issues are by no means conspicuous for their absence. All in all, a wonderful buy for the man who has the money to spare if he is assured that the investment and value are there! SPECIAL PRICE $895.00

USED PAIRS AND BLOCKS.

By Thos. H. Drake.

There is no doubt that in the future "pairs and blocks" of stamps, especially the lower denominations, will form a great part in collecting, and if you thought it worth while to mention it in your paper, no doubt many philatelists would take notice in their future postage and ask their friends and clients to do the same.

For instance, I have just mailed a letter to Germany with 10 cents postage, franking it with a centre block of four 2c and a pair of 1c, which in time will be much scarcer than one 10c stamp, especially they being used, hence a matter of value.

I have now a good collection of pairs, strips and blocks and find it, besides being very interesting, in some cases very difficult to obtain them, even in very common stamps (postally, if possible) used. There always seems to be plenty of unused to be got.

I never divide any I get in the above form and always mail in pairs or blocks if possible vide this letter.

A parcel received from England with 3 separate 1sh stamps would have been something worth having with a "block of four 9d."

PRECANCELS.

By H. S. Dickey.

The earliest history of Precancels shows New York City using precanceled postage dues in a very pretty lettered N. Y., struck through a dotted circle; these are among the earliest precancels to be generally used in quantities; and if you'll look over your sets of U. S. dues of 1880 to 1890 you will probably find that you have several of these precancels.

Today New York City, New York, is using what is perhaps the prettiest three line type precancels that exist; even though you may not be a precancel collector, it would pay you to take the trouble to mount up a set of these just to see how pretty they are. Someday some of these "common" New Yorks are going to sell for fancy prices; the 13c does already.

Among the new cities using precancels I have found Golden, Colo.; Mexico, Mo.; Framingham, Mass.; Flushing, N. Y.; Boonville, N. Y.; DeKalb, Ill.; Dearborn, Mich.; Warren, R. I.; Peru, Ind.; Meriden, Conn.; Ripon, Wis.; Oskaloosa, Iowa; High Point, N. C., etc.

With the new U. S. stamps starting to come on the market, I believe all stamp collectors will welcome them gladly; I have seen the 5c Roosevelt and 6c Garfield, and to say that they are pretty doesn't half tell it; they are indeed works of art. I'm proud of the engravers that turned out those two stamps; I understand the rest of the set is just as pretty too; and when the precancel fans start to collecting these new stamps won't there be a jolly scramble to get your sets complete.

Many new cities used precancels at Christmas time in 1922 and quite a few of them will be quite valuable later on as they will soon be superseded by the new issue of U. S. stamps.

The present fancy type precancels of Rochester and Brooklyn, New York, are among the prettiest sets extant, and they are easy to complete; mount up a set and see how pretty they look in your album.

GEORGIAN COLONIALS WITH INVERTED WATERMARKS.

By G. B. TALBOT.

The question as to whether a stamp with an inverted watermark is a collectible variety or not has always been a vexed one, some collectors maintaining that it is, at best, only a very minor variety, whilst others again consider that the carelessness which provides us with inverted surcharges, errors of colour, etc. (which have always been considered collectible) is also responsible for the inverted watermark.

In this, as in all similar questions pertaining to Philately, the decision is best left to the individual collector; after all, we collect stamps for our own enjoyment, to please, principally, ourselves, and if it pleases some to collect only 1d blacks, it pleases others to collect varieties, minor or otherwise.

I believe that the following list, incomplete though it be, will prove of interest to many, and any additions which readers may be able to make will be gratefully acknowledged.

HISTORY FROM POSTAGE STAMPS

By CHARLES G. WILSON.

Queen Victoria's portrait has appeared on more postage stamps than that of any other woman in the world's history. From 1840, beginning with the famous "penny black" until 1901, her features graced the stamps of England, and all her colonies and the portraits themselves are an interesting study of the development of the Queen as they range from showing her as the slim young maiden she was when she ascended the throne to the stout, worldly widow of the closing years of her reign. The world well knows of the golden reign of Victoria, of the many civic, military, national and international triumphs which transpired during it, but Lytton Strachey in his witty, intimate book "Queen Victoria" tells of an amusing incident in the domestic life of the young Queen which shows how human are Royalty after all and how "the Colonel's lady and Judy O'Grady are sisters under their skins."

On the 10th of February, 1840, Queen Victoria was married to her German cousin Prince Albert Emmanuel of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha. The private life of the Royal pair was on the whole very happy but now and then little differences of personal taste and opinion would arise. On one of these occasions Albert, in a fit of temper, locked himself into his private apartment. There was a knocking at his door.

"Who is there?" he asked.

"The Queen of England!" came the reply.

Albert said no word. Then came a perfect hail of knocks but still there was no response. Then a pause, then gen knocking.

"Who is there?" Albert asked i a relentless tone.

"Your wife, Albert."

And forthwith the door was flung o and a happy reunion took place.

THE FIXING OF CATALOGUE VALUES.

By Charles J. Phillips.

(Talk at Collectors Club, Feb. 21—Part 2.)

I am sure that all of you must be interested in the methods adopted by those men who are entrusted with the fixing of prices year after year, in the great stamp catalogues of the world.

For over thirty years I have had sole control of the pricing of the Stanley Gibbons catalogues, and from 1890, when I purchased that business from Mr. Stanley Gibbons, I recognized that the backbone of the business was the catalogue, and my constant aim was to improve this, enlarge it, and gradually try and make it the recognized price list of the world.

This could not be done without constant work one's self, and from the very beginning I recognized that the catalogue prices, must, to a great extent, depend on the help of the great specialists, and without any exception I can state definitely that our British specialists have, one and all, always been of the greatest use to me in this work.

Among those on whom I depended very largely in the early days were Gordon Smith, Lieut. Napier, Gilbert Lockyer and M. P. Castle. Later on I had great help from E. D. Bacon, Leslie Hausburg, R. B. Yardley, S. Chapman and many others.

Now in pricing a catalogue I very soon recognized that it was a waste of time to depend on other catalogues; it seemed to me that only one basis was of any use, and that was that as a general rule, prices in a catalogue must be based on stock, and the prices quoted by a firm should be those at which that firm was prepared to sell their goods.

In those early days (I am now speaking of over thirty years ago) the Gibbons' stock was contained in many hundreds of drawers, each drawer of about 120 divisions, each one large enough to hold some 200 stamps.

In addition to these drawers we had perhaps one hundred collections, on shelves all about the office; some of these collections were of 20 volumes or more. You can imagine the running about there was when an order came for a stamp that was not in the stock drawers, perhaps 50 or more books had to be looked over before a copy was found.

From this state of chaos I started our system of stock books. We gathered together from all books and drawers, etc., all the stamps of one country, and entrusted these to experts, like Napier, Lockyer, and G. Smith, who arranged the stamps in catalogue order and when there was sufficient in stock there would be a page of unused and a page or more of used, and all these were numbered by the catalogue numbers in the margin.

Well, this was the start of making the catalogue prices, to be based on stamps in stock, but this only was of use for ordinary stamps, of which my firm possessed a stock. We next had to evolve some system of getting at the relative rarity of stamps which were seldom or never in stock. There I found the "Want Lists" of specialists of the greatest use. In England it has been the custom for the larger collectors to send lists of their "wants" in their pet countries to my firm, and the most important of these I used to "abstract," and keep notes about in my own private catalogue.

Let me show you one of these—turn to New Zealand. Against certain stamps there is the letter "F" showing that stamp was missing in Ferrary collection. Then you see "D," that shows that Duveen wanted it. A "P" was for Pack. In a separate catalogue I had a complete want list of Worthington, and in other catalogues want lists of Castle, Hausburg, Yardley, Hawkins and many other noted collectors. Just think how useful all this was when the matter was used intelligently.

If Ferrary missed a stamp it was no common variety, but if that particular stamp was missing in nearly all the great collections, one could price it as a first rate rarity. This system could be worked down and gave a good general idea of the relative rarity of most of the early issues.

Later on as specialism came in, we had to largely extend the scope of our catalogue and these new lists were very largely priced by the help of experts. Let me note here how much my firm was indebted to a well known American collector—Mr. Charles Lathrop Pack—many of our prices on Victoria, New

This snappy little publication is mailed free for nothing—not even postage—once a month unless the editor goes fishing or yachting. This season of the year therefore is a good time to write for a copy. This circular is not mailed to substitutors, kid collectors, send-em-back-unregistered fiends and such like. Postcards also go straight into the waste paper basket. Serious and interested collectors would do well to send for a copy and get on the list free before we close the offer with the ten thousandth name. [H

H. F. COLMAN
2ND NATIONAL BANK BLDG., WASHINGTON, D. C.

Zealand, New South Wales, Brazil, are based upon his original work and his estimate of relative rarity.

Now there is another most important way of estimating the value of old stamps. That is by making a careful abstract of the numbers of each stamp contained in any important specialised collection you may happen to see or to buy. Let me make this clear with a few examples. Take that most interesting country Mexico:—

I think I have handled more fine collections of this country than any other dealer and five years ago published a little list of the issues of 1856 to 1872. I made an analysis of the stamps of the 1868 issue then in our possession. We had 4,405 stamps of the 6c, 12c, 25c, 50c, 100c, of thin and thick figures together. Of the imperf. thin figure there were only eight copies each of the 50c and 100c, surely an absolute proof of the rarity of the rarities when we only had 8 of each in 4,400 stamps of this issue.

To quote M. Coue "Day by Day I am getting wiser as to relative rarity of stamps." Since I have been in New York I have been able to make notes of several important collections, and I should like to quote some examples to make my point clear.

I am indebted to the Scott Stamp & Coin Co. for the loan of a parcel of Mexican stamps of 1868 and 1872. I have sorted these into the different "district numbers" and they work out as follows:—

25c Imperf. 1868, Thick figures:— No. 1, (1), No. 2, (13), No. 3, (13), No. 4, (22), No. 5, (67), No. 6, (91), No. 7, (10), No. 8, (10), No. 10, (8), No. 11, (37), No. 12, (28), No. 13, (51), No. 22, (13), No. 23, (5), No. 30, (4), No. 36, (9), No. 37, (41), No. 39, (10), No. 41, (72).

These are only the commoner numbers but as far as the numbers go they give me some idea of relative rarity. I must warn you not to pin your faith too much on one parcel of stamps. You may get a parcel in which the stamps came from certain towns, but the owners of the correspondence may not have had any customers in other towns that are equally common; so in fixing prices the dealer must base his figures on as large a stock, from as many varied sources, as he can obtain.

At Stanley Gibbons with the huge stocks resulting from the amalgamation of the stocks of other dealers, such as W. H. Peckitt, Hugo Griebert, Hamilton Smith & Co., etc., etc., we had the material to form a pretty good judgment of relative rarity.

A member of this Club allowed me to inspect a remarkable collection of Peru early issues. As usual I made notes of the contents, and the following list is Stanley Gibbons catalogue numbers, and prices:—

Cat. No.	Description.	Stock.
14-17	1858, 1d blue,	249
18-19	1858, 1p red,	28
20-21	1858, ½p yellow,	15
22	1858, ½p red,	4
23-25	1859, 1d blue,	95
26-27	1859, 1p rose	99
28-30	1860, 1d blue,	99
31-32	1860, 1p red,	57
33	1860, Worn plate, 1d blue,	31
34	1860, Worn plate, 1p red,	18

I could largely extend this list but it is sufficient to make my point clear. We can learn a little from the above few figures. Nos. 14-16 are priced too high used, and the same might apply to Nos. 25-27. No. 33 is certainly too high and No. 34 too low. It is seldom such a lot as this is got together and such figures are those the catalogue pricer must use.

Lately I have been arranging an important collection of the "silk thread" stamps of Switzerland. These have been gathered from all available sources for many years and they are the only large lot I have had the chance of working on since I purchased the "Castle" Collection of European stamps some 20 years ago. The numbers below show clearly that many of the catalogue quotations do not reflect relative rarity. Such lists are interesting and I should like to advocate the publication of similar lists by dealers when they have the opportunity of handling large stocks of any particular issue.

Switzerland "silk thread" issue 1854-1862:—

Gibbons No.	Description.	Used.	Unused
25	Munich, thin p., 5r red-brown	28	12
25a	Munich, thin p., 5r wine-red	3	0
26	Munich, thin p., 5r yellow-brown	51	21
27	Munich, thin p., 10r bright blue	54	21

DOES IT EXIST ?

Scott's No. 208a, Used

We begin to wonder if there are any fine, lightly cancelled copies, centered, without thin spots of U. S. 6c re-engraved in the deep brown red, Scott's No. 208a, catalog $2.00. We have plenty of nice copies of No. 208, the 6c rose re-engraved, which we offer at $1.50 each.

For No. 208a We Will Pay $5.00 Each Cash for every really acceptable copy sent us.

Many years ago I was in Leipzig, and spent some time with an old and dear friend, the late Theodore Haas, then Manager of Senf Bros. One day we were discussing catalogue prices and Haas showed me with great pride a monumental work showing German methods of business. They had a series of enormous ledgers, about a yard square, ruled into a large number of parallel columns.

The first column was a description of each stamp, then opposite each of these there was the price of that stamp from the catalogues of Senf, Kohl, Willadt, Maury, Moens, Champion, Belin, Lemaire, Bernichon, Galvez, Stanley Gibbons, Whitfield King, Bright, Scott Stamp & Coin Co., and no doubt many others. The average of these catalogues was struck and that was the general price adopted by Senf.

Years ago Moens told me that he had a general basis for his prices based on an estimate of cost. This plan was to double the price he paid for a stamp, then to add 10% to the result. He reckoned the 10% paid the expenses, and that he made 100% on his turn over. Alas for the good old days—today 10% net is about all one can get in the stamp trade—but there are exceptions, even in New York.

There is one other point that the maker of catalogues must bear in mind and that is "public demand." There are many stamps that are printed in large quantities and which are fairly plentiful which have been driven up to the enormous prices in relation to the number printed.

Take the Great Britain 1d black of 1840. Of these stamps no less than 68,158,080, were printed between April, 1840, and February, 1841. Yet this stamp sells readily at from a dollar to a dollar and a half each. There are eleven plates of this 1d black, each of 240 stamps, and it is no uncommon thing, in England, for a collector to have 2,000 to 4,000 of these stamps, and plating is here responsible for this comparative high price.

Now take the United States 1847, 5c. According to Luff, 3,712,000 of these stamps were issued. This stamp, used, now sells at from five to fifty dollars, each according to the postmark.

Here I give you two examples of the enormous increase in value caused by public demand, and there are equally lots of stamps which are really rare but which bring a very low price at present, because there is no public demand for them.

Later on, if you care for me to do so, I shall be happy to give you my views on stamps and countries that are much undervalued at the present time, but which I think have a great future before them.

I have purposely confined my remarks this evening to old issues. Modern issues are mostly priced on official information as to the numbers printed, and about these I cannot speak with any authority as I have confined my work mostly to the sound and solid "old issues."

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—B. J. Dattner and W. G. Maxwell of Pittsburgh, Pa., have formed the Iron City Stamp & Coin Co., and the firm's advertising will be found in our colmuns, beginning this week. Mr. Dattner has been using space in recent issues.

—To check burglaries in the smaller post-offices the P. O. Department announces its intention to reduce the stocks of stamps in such offices to a minimum. This will be possible by the concentration of large stocks at certain accounting offices in each state which will be centrally located.

—Erich Parche, Cordoba, Mexico, informs us that he can get no reply to letters sent the Oklahoma Stamp Co., Ardmore, Okla.

PHILATELIC NOTES FROM FRANCE.

By LOWELL J. RAGATZ.

Speculation in the new issue Monaco stamps has reached a high point. All values excepting the 1, 5 and 10 franc have been sold out. Reports from the principality are of a varying nature, one post-office clerk reporting that a new printing of the stamps will be issued with a surcharge commemorating the coronation of Prince Louis, and another stating that a complete new series, bearing a portrait of Prince Louis is contemplated and that there will be no commemorative surcharges. Meanwhile odd values of the Albert series and the recent surcharges are on sale with the above mentioned franc values of the palace type at Monaco, La Condamine, and Monte Carlo, the three principality post-offices.

It is announced that the following numbers of the lately issued but now sold out values were printed and placed on sale—of the 25c, 70,000; of the 30c, 90,000; of the 50c, 60,000; of the 60c, 90,000; of the 2fr, 47,500. The stamps are being quoted as follows in Paris—3fr, 1fr 25c, 2fr 50c, 1fr 25c, and 8fr 50c respectively. The 1, 5, and 10fr are selling at 15% over face, like most current issues of the French colonies.

The large 10 franc Luxemburg scenic stamp issued in January is a distinct novelty, coming one stamp to a sheet to date. These sheets are about 2½ inches square, with the single stamp perforated on four sides. The current price for the stamp is 18 francs. The regular form sheets of this value will consist of 25 subjects. They are expected to be placed on sale during February. Meanwhile, Luxemburg will, of course, have turned many a neat 10 francs in sales made to collectors and dealers.

The supply of 26 French colonial surcharges on 15c denominations on sale at the colonial stamp office has been exhausted, and the stamp-shop prices for the series have more than doubled. The current quotations are from 3 to 5 francs the set.

Several thousand parts of cover bearing the Madagascar provisional of 1906, half of 10c used as 5c, covered with the rubber-stamped impression: "0,05 Affranchi ainsi faute de figurines," and cancelled at Vohemar, are being offered at this writing, and will doubtless find a purchaser. The impressions and cancellations are genuine, though the splits were never made to do postal service. In other words, they are philatelically used, but as cancelled to order stamps abound in French dealers' stocks, this will not be held against them. Champion lists the variety at 15 francs.

Several French dealers advertising in American stamp papers at dollar prices, request that remittances be made in any form but money order. The reason is simple, money orders are cashed at the rate of but 12.5 francs to the dollar, while drafts and the like can be cashed at the day's exchange, often 15 to the dollar or more. Uncle Sam pockets the profit in connection with money orders, and the dealers do in connection with drafts. In either event, the price to the purchaser is exactly the same number of dollars.

I ran across the following work at the Bibliotheque Nationale recently—Walter Lee Brown, compiler Descriptive Catalogue of the Revenue Stamps of Italy from 1836 to 1878, New York, 1878. I do not remember having heard of this book before.

It was my privilege one Sunday afternoon recently to inspect one of the finest collections I have ever seen. It is the property of a cousin of Jean Jules Jusserand, French ambassador to America, consists of the stamps of Europe only, and is mounted in five de luxe Maury blank albums. It has been over twenty years in the making, and is practically complete with every specimen in the entire collection in immaculate condition. The imperforate stamps have promenade margins throughout. This will give those who have attempted the feat in connection with the stamps of a single country, some idea of the labour which has been expended in building up the collection. Collector-like, the owner enthusiastically declares the hours he spends on his stamps to be the happiest of his life. He is also the owner of a magnificent collection of French proofs and essays, and of a smaller one of counterfeits of all countries.

The French edition of the prospectus for the International Stamp Exhibition to be held in London from May 24 to 26 has been distributed, and local dealers and collectors are planning extensive exhibits. It is said that an attempt is being made to secure the permission of the government to exhibit certain unsold rarities of the sequestered Ferrari collection.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited, as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—D. R. Heath, formerly a resident of Akron, Ohio, is now located in Plainfield, N. J. He advises us that the following new officers have been elected by the Rubber City Stamp Club:—Pres., O. S. Hart; Vice-Pres., C. W. Stiles; Sec.-Treas., D. L. Gibson; Directors, J. E. Crouch, R. P. Gordon and D. L. Gibson.

—A copyrighted photograph by Underwood & Underwood has been reproduced in a halftone and is going the rounds of the press, showing Hon. E. R. Ackerman holding an envelope to which is attached a strip of stamps thirty-one feet long and six inches wide. Another envelope has stamps representing 9,000,000 rubles. The stamps are artistically draped around Mr. Ackerman and form as it were a background to the picture.

—Major Charles W. Elliott sends us a set of Dutch East Indies stamps consisting of the 1, 2, 2½, 3, 4, 5, 7½, 10, 12½ surcharged on 22½, 17½ and 20c values, surcharged "3de N. I. Jaarbeurs Bandoeng 1922." Major Elliott writes, "The word 'Jaarbeurs' means 'Industrial Exposition' and the stamps were issued to commemorate the great East Indies Industrial Fair held at Bandoeng, in Dutch Borneo. There were 20,000 of each variety surcharged and no more will be issued." On some of the stamps the overprint is in two lines and on others it is in four. Two colors, red and black, were used in the overprinting.

—M. S.—It is true that the professional press occasionally illustrates U. S. stamps, but it is done in ignorance of the law and not as an intentional violation. The metropolitan press can put this thing over occasionally where it would be absolutely impossible for a stamp paper to do it.

—There is a letter at this office for Jerome Milkman.

—Easton, Pennsylvania, now has a stamp club. One was organized Feb. 21, 1923, with a dozen members. Harry Updegrove is president and Thomas H. Hawk secretary-treasurer. Congratulations.

—We have received from Delf Norona, Charleston, W. Va., a wholesale pricelist where stamps are priced per ten. We note many bargain offers and the average dealer can profit by sending for this list.

—An error in address occurred in the ad of M. J. Fenster in our March 3 issue. Instead of 790 Riverside Drive our printer made it 750. Readers will note that former is the correct address.

—C. A.—We note the contents of your letter to the effect that you have written stamp dealers all over the U. S. and some foreign dealers asking if they could supply a triangular Cape of Good Hope.

METROPOLITAN STAMP CO., 7 W. 42ND ST., NEW YORK CITY

A. LEON ADUTT.

A. Leon Adutt of Margate, England, one of the leading British philatelists, takes a very keen interest in all that concerns United States stamps. Quite recently he sent us a collection of photographs of some of the gems of his collection and some thirty-five of our readers were willing to pay the registration fee twice in order to secure the privilege of inspecting the photographs. Since that time another set has been received which show the rarities purchased by Mr. Adutt at the recent Ferrary auctions. We take pleasure in illustrating this article with a picture of Mr. Adutt, who is in the prime of life at fifty-two years of age, having been born in London, May 2, 1871. For many years he has served as a member of the Margate Town Council and many honors of a public nature have been bestowed upon him. He is a Fellow of the Royal Philatelic Society and has been the mainstay of the organization on the Isle of Thanet. He has always taken a keen interest in this society.

His public services have included several lectures on philately and we quote the following from a recent letter:—

"At the special request of our Mayor, William Leach Lewis, Esq., J. P., and his brother, Major Allan Leach Lewis, who are the Principals of Margate College, I paid another visit to the College, on Feb. 12, to give the pupils another lecture on Postage Stamps which was illustrated by some eighty odd slides entitled 'Eighty years of Postage Stamps.' I had a very attentive audience of nearly 400 pupils and Masters which were all very appreciative. At the conclusion of the lecture the Mayor, after thanking me for such an enjoyable visit again, announced that I would be happy to answer any questions — numerous queries were immediately put by different scholars which I answered to the best of my ability, for they certainly gave me one or two 'posers!' However, I survived the ordeal satisfactorily and evidently with due appreciation in view of the three deafening cheers they gave me before departing. I showed the Principals the cutting from your paper in which you kindly referred to my previous lecture at the College and they were interested because they said they had only recently heard from one of their old pupils now living in Vienna saying he had read with interest your report about the old College Lecture."

We quote from the Margate College News of Feb. 17, the following account of Mr. Adutt's lecture "Eighty Years of Postage Stamps."

Mr. A. Leon Adutt, J. P., Fellow of the Royal Philatelic Society and an old boy of the College, was the lecturer, Feb. 12, when the entertainment and instruction he provided exceeded even our expectations, which is saying a very great deal. It would be impossible to give an adequate summary of the wealth of information imparted by Mr. Adutt. It is safe to say, however, that he imbued the members of his youthful audience with much of his own enthusiasm for stamp collecting, and opened their eyes to the possibilities of the pastime. After introductory remarks by the Mayor, Mr. Adutt went straight to his subject. His headings were roughly as follows:—

History, from the ancient days when the Mesopotamians wrote their epistles on bricks, to the introduction of the Penny Postage by Sir Rowland Hill, and up to the present day. The six penny stamps used in England in the last 82 years. Rare English and Foreign Stamps, introducing some of the romance and tragedy associated with the collection of some of the specimens. For example, the Mauritius P. O. two-penny, sold 50 years ago for £24, now fetching £1,500. The pair of British Guiana stamps given to the Church which sold for various sums ranging from £25 to £5,250. The Ferrary collection, now being sold by the French Government as enemy property, for which £319,000 was refused and which is expected to realize half-a-million pounds. The murder of Gaston Leroux in 1892 for a two-cent Hawaiian missionary stamp. These and other items thrilled the audience, and the lecturer passed to curiosities in stamps, all of which had a story attached to them. Missionary stamps; insults; the Panama Canal; an anachronism, a West Indian Stamp showing Columbus with a telescope; various commemoration stamps, some commemorating trivial events; advertising stamps; tourist poster stamps; Queen Victoria's stamps, with the head taken from the coronation portrait by Alfred Chalon, R. A.; beautiful stamps; ugly stamps; historical stamps and sets of the same, showing the development of the countries and their origin, e.g., the South African Commonwealth; the French Republic, etc., etc., to the German Reich; occupied enemy territory stamps, showing the swinging of the pendulum in the fortunes of war; aeroplane postage stamps; war stamps; peace stamps; the Bolshevic rogue's gallery stamps, showing errors; forged stamps; all sorts and conditions; quaint collections and distinguished collectors, which brought us to His Majesty the King, who spends his Sunday afternoons with his beloved hobby.

In conclusion, Mr. Adutt showed us his own specialised American collection, indicating the beauties of the various specimens and the correct method of exhibiting them. A wonderful display, like the rest, admirably shown on excellent slides, which brought the lecture to a close.

Mr. Allan, in thanking Mr. Adutt, referred to his lecture as one of the finest he had ever had the pleasure of hearing. All agreed and cheered the lecturer to the echo.

EDITORIAL.

The philatelic pool has become a maelstrom. The stamp pot is boiling over. In other words, present-day activities in stamps are such that it is dizzying to follow them. New issues impending and stamp changes. Trade rumors and reports of transactions reaching fabulous figures. Sensational news stories hinted at that will soon be ripe for publication. Commercial coups that excite the imagination. It is not easy to keep one's balance but as soon as we let our feet off the foundation of fact, we are lost. The best that we can do is to get the news to our readers quickly when once it is reduced to reality.

Speculative stamps, as celebration or commemorative issues are classified, are the subjects of discussion in Stanley Gibbons Montly Circular; and in the verbal tournament, friends and foes of these stamps are tilting away at each other. The question is always a live one and makes good copy, even though it does not elicit the intense interest that it once did, perhaps. The old society that was to remedy the evil, the Society for the Suppression of Speculative stamps had its day and crystallized a sentiment against the unnecessary and mercenary issues; but even the systematic campaign against the interlopers did not do more than excite a temporary opposition to them. In some respects, the commemorative stamp is a tribute to the growing influence of philately; it is something of a Frankenstein that has been created by collectors themselves. The growth of stamp collecting has developed naturally, a source of possible profit through stamps that nations recognize. Even so, it is not exactly fair to say that all celebration stamps are conceived in crass commercialism and that none of them embodies the true spirit of national pride or power. A line must be drawn to separate the good from the bad in this division and the flagrant offenders must be consigned to oblivion. An indiscriminate campaign against all really unnecessary stamps, past, present and future, cannot succeed. It cannot be gainsaid that a commemorative issue may gracefully record achievement, progress and glory; and to go somewhat further, it is within the bounds of probability that even if stamp collectors did not exist, an enterprising nation, here and there, would use the postage stamp occasionally to embalm a nation's history.

We have been shown a curiosity in the form of a square of thin paper, two by two inches, described as a telegram that had been pinned to the feathers of the carrier pigeon and sent to the London Times, telling of the death of Sultan Mahmud. It bore the following particulars written in a small hand by the Times' correspondent at Paris: "A telegraphic despatch reached Paris on Tuesday announcing the death of Sultan Mahmud. On June 30th, his eldest son, although only 17, had been declared of age and proclaimed. On the 28th, orders were sent to Hafiz Pacha to suspend hostilities. Letters from Egypt, Suria and Turkey to 29th ult. state that no general battle had yet been fought; that none was likely; that the Turkish fleet was still in the Dardanelles; and the Egyptian fleet off Alexandria. Paris tranquil." No date is found on the letter which shows dozens of pin-pricks.

"In your album of old-fashioned collectors of fond recollection, did you have a portrait of the o.f.c., who, when once a stamp was in his album, would be unyielding to bribe or blandishment to remove it? I have been working on one of this genus to make him part with a ten cent green cancellation, on the ten cent 1847 and though he knows nothing of cancellations, he is adamant," is the plaint of a wily correspondent. We are rather glad that the old-timer is true to his convictions. This experience recalls to mind the old boy who numbered each stamp of a country on a page and who would not rearrange or add to the issues that would break the sequence of numbers. He wanted to keep his count correct.

There is glory enough for all in the triumphant finale of the stamp illustration movement. It will never be known, perhaps, how assiduously and ably scores of public-spirited philatelists worked to achieve the happy result. Without doubt, if a poll were taken of philatelic leaders in this country on the question of what consummation they most devoutly wished, the answer overwhelmingly would be embraced in the privilege of illustrating U. S. stamps for the purpose of study. Under the bill that has recently been passed, the picturing of puzzling stamp parts will proceed until what have been mysteries, minor to major, in U. S. stamps, will be an open book. It is safe to say that with the removal of a decided obstacle to a full appreciation of United States stamps by the mass of collectors, the cry for our own stamps will swell louder and louder.

From Mr. R. H. Mower, San Francisco, we have received the following note: "My correspondent in China, in speaking of French Offices in China says in part: 'I figure that about $3,000 catalogue value of these, the 40c on 1 franc and others were destroyed by the carrier of the French P. O. in Hoi How by thumb nail and knife. The merchants tell me that he came and demanded the stamps as a gift and when he was refused, he destroyed the stamps.' This is a good argument as to the desirability of these stamps; or is it a means to force people to buy through the Paris Colonial office? In other words, there are tricks in all trades!"

A photograph of several blocks of Russian stamps has been received from Mr. Frank R. Demmerly of Indianapolis, who writes: "I have noticed in several issues of the statements concerning Russian covers containing a large amount of rubles in postage. I am enclosing a photograph of a cover which I have that consists of two blocks of fifteen each of the 100,000 ruble surcharged on the 250 ruble stamp. This is a total of three million rubles for postage and registration on one letter." Could the prodigious imagination of Baron Munchausen have conceived anything so extreme as a postal letter charge of a million and one-half dollars, as three million rubles amounted to under conditions of the past?

If the chap who made two blades of grass grow where only one grew before deserves well of his fellow-men, what say you of the man who makes it necessary to have a hundred, if not a thousand, of the three cent, of 1851, in the album where, as of yore, one would have sufficed.

We learn that Congressman Ackerman is mentioned as the possible appointee as minister to Turkey. We sincerely hope that the report will develop into reality as if any country needs a restraining philatelic hand to curb its stamp rampages, it is Turkey.

THE STAMP LAW IN THE MAKING.

The 67th Congress with its four sessions, without a parallel in its history, has adjourned sine die.

During its sessions there were 14,474 bills introduced in the House of Representatives and 4,656 in the Senate but only 550 of these bills became laws.

The stamp bill is known as Law No. 479. As there are 531 Senators and Representatives in Congress, the number of bills enacted into law averages a little more than one an individual.

After having been passed by the Senate, Senate Bill 2,703 was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary in the Hous of Representatives on February 18, 192 over a year ago. Hearings were ha upon the bill on March 9, 1922, an there the matter rested until February 1923, when it was reported with amendments allowing portions of the border o United States stamps to be illustrate such illustrations to be at least four time as large as the portion of the original.

A few days after appearing on th House Calendar it was advanced to th Calendar for Unanimous Consent and o February 19, 1923, was taken up an passed by the House.

On the next day it was reported to th Senate and the amendments were ob jected to and conferees appointed on th part of the Senate. Senators Dillingham and Cummings, Republicans, an Senator Shield, Democrat, comprised th conferees.

Important Notice

Our attention has been called to the fact that rumors have been circulated throughout the trade to the effect that our 1923 Postage Stamp Catalogue has been completely sold out and no further orders can be filled.

This statement is untrue. We have an ample stock of both styles to meet the requirements of the trade for some months.

THE METROPOLITAN CONSTERNATION - - $1.02

We wish to prove one point and we defy anyone to deny it. We are putting more new issues of larger value into this assortment than will be found in any other offering on the market. Two weeks ago we listed some of the high denominations it contained. Postal rates are constantly changing and we are putting stamps into The Consternation today which we didn't know existed then. Please understand that every stamp is postally used.

Every Consternation we send out, if mounted on sheets and fairly priced, will net about $4, oft times more! An average of 2c each for the 200 vars., included in "The M—— C——". The best advertisement for this particular "M—— C——" is the fact that orders are pouring in from the buyers of other "M—— C——'s". They have confidence in us and we will keep faith with them. We strive to make each "M—— C——" the best yet!

NEWFOUNDLAND POTPOURRI.

By HARRY E. HUBER.

IMPERFORATE, 12c, CORONATION SERIES, JUNE 19, 1911.

In addition to the 15c lake, Seal of the Colony, of the Coronation series, imperforate (priced by Stanley Gibbons at 10s 1923), a sheet of the 12c deep brown, Duke of Connaught, of the same series, exists in this condition, but it is not listed in any of the catalogues. In December, 1922, it was being offered by a London dealer at 30s each.

Imperforate Coronation Series, June 19, 1911.

12c deep brown, Duke of Connaught.
15c lake, Seal of the Colony.

ESSAY 2c ON 60c BLACK, CABOT SERIES, DECEMBER, 1918.

In December, 1918, just previous to the receipt of the stamps of the Caribou series (issued January 2nd, 1919), there was a shortage of 1c, 2c and 3c stamps, and consideration was given to surcharging some of the Cabot remainder stock to care for the Christmas demand. A sheet of 100 of the 60c black, King Henry VII, was overprinted at the office of the Royal Gazette, St. John's, in three lines, in red, "TWO—2—CENTS," the overall height of the overprint being 10 mm. However, due to the color of the stamp, the poor selection of type, and red ink, the overprint was so indistinct, that the surcharging idea was abandoned. Instead, letters with cash were taken over the post-office counter. Local and inland mail was rubber stamped "Postage Paid—G. P. O.,—St. John's, New-f'l'd.," and on mail for overseas the necessary stamps were attached by the Post Office clerks. These essays were released in March, 1922, by one of the G. P. O. officials. A block of four in possession of the writer, bears a double overprint.

Essay, December, 1918.

2c on 60c black, Henry VII, Cabot series, surcharged in 3 lines in red (TWO—2—CENTS). One sheet of 100. Double overprint.

FAKED "FIRST TRANS-ATLANTIC AIR POST, APRIL, 1918."

There is a faked overprint of the stamp made for the Sopwith air mail, by overprinting the 3c Caribou, brown, in five lines, "First—Trans- —Atlantic—Air Post,—April, 1919." This fake made its appearance in 1922, and is such that it will deceive no one who has ever seen the genuine stamp or even a photograph of it.

The type is entirely different in font, being thinner, wider, and not so tall. The month is given as "APRIL," instead of "April" (upper and lower case), of the genuine, and the figures of "1919" are different. The ink is dull blue black, instead of jet black, and the whole is very lightly impressed.

The stamp is not on cover, but bears a cancellation of wavy lines applied by an electric machine, which is not that of St. John's. No town marking is shown, only five wavy lines of a flag cancellation, which are spaced wider apart than the seven lines of the St. John's cancellation. The only electric cancelling machines in Newfoundland are the two in G. P. O. at St. John's. At the right of the stamp is part of a triangular marking, from a steel stamp.

Fake, April, 1919.

3c brown, Caribou series, overprinted in black in five lines, "First—Trans- —Atlantic — Air Post, — April, 1919." Type different, and month is given in caps (APRIL) instead of initial cap only (April).

ESSAYS, 3c ON 6c RED BROWN, CABOT SERIES, SEPTEMBER, 1920.

In September, 1920, there was a shortage of low value stamps of the Caribou series, and although local and inland mail was cared for by "Postage Paid" rubber stamping, it was necessary to provide 3c stamps for letters destined for other parts of the British Empire, and the U. S. A.

Between September 11th and 14th, 50,000 each of the 15c scarlet, and 35c red, of the Cabot series, were surcharged in black, THREE CENTS, in two lines, with a bar above and below, and later (on September 23rd), 50,000 of the 30c slate, Cabot series, were reduced by surcharging to TWO CENTS.

The first 3,000 of the 15c Cabot stamps were surcharged from a setting of 25 (5 x 5), which had the two bars spaced 11 mm. apart. The spacing was then changed to 14 mm, and the remaining 47,000 of the 15c and the whole of the 50,000 of the 35c Cabot, were overprinted from this setting.

From the first setting of THREE CENTS, with the narrow spacing of bars, one pane of 25 of the 6c Cabot, red brown, was overprinted in red, and one pane in black, to determine which color would show up the better. But as the stock of the 6c Caribou had exhausted in November, 1919, and the corresponding value in the Cabot series was the only 6c stamp available for use on foreign letters, it was decided to use instead the 15c of the Cabot series.

These two panes of 25 each, of the 6c Cabot, were sold at face to a resident of St. John's, in October, 1921, and were later offered for sale in the States. One copy of each passed through the post at the surcharged value. The copy with the red overprint was used in conjunction with a 5c Caribou (making up the postage and registration rate of 8c), on a letter addressed to a dealer in New York State. In addition to the large "R" within an oval, the envelope was rubber stamped in red "Registered—No. 512—Nov. 11, 1921,—St. John's, N. F." The stamps themselves have the regular obliteration of graduated bars forming an oval. The receiving postmark is dated November 18, 1921. The stamps are merely essays, and Stanley Gibbons (1923) so classifies them.

Essays. September, 1920.

3c on 6c red brown, Logging, Cabot series, overprinted in 2 lines in red, (THREE CENTS, with bar above and below). One pane of 25.

3c on 6c red brown, ditto, overprinted in black. (One pane of 25.)

COLOR TRIAL, 2c ON 30c SLATE, CABOT SERIES, SEPTEMBER, 1920.

On September 23, 1920, the 30c slate, Seal of the Colony, of the Cabot series, was issued, surcharged in black, TWO CENTS, in 2 lines, with a bar above. The surcharge was applied to a pane of 25, in red, but as it was not sufficiently distinct, black ink was used for the quantity printing.

Color Trial, September, 1920.

2c on 30c slate, Seal of the Colony, Cabot series, overprinted in red, in 2 lines (TWO CENTS, with bar above). One pane of 25.

ROTARY PRINT — PART PERFORATE
1c and 2c. Scott's No. 440a and No. 441b

The compound 11x10 rotary stamps are from coil waste that has been perforated 10 vertically and then run through the regular machine and perforated the regular gauge 11 horizontally. Some of this waste was inadvertently shipped to the New York Post Office before the horizontal perforation was applied, resulting in the variety imperforated horizontally. A little lot of both the 1c and 2c went through in this way. I can furnish pairs of each at $1 per pair or blocks of four at $2 per block. All superb mint.

When the 2c was first found some months back, it sold at $60 per block.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the address of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—It is with regret that we note that the Hon. Hubert Work has been transferred from the position of Postmaster General to that of Secretary of the Interior. Mr. Work has always been most sympathetic towards anything pertaining to philately and while the forward strides in post-office matters, philatelic, have been mainly fostered by the Third Assistant Postmaster-General, Mr. Warren Irving Glover, and his able assistant, Mr. M. L. Eidsness, Jr., Superintendent of the Division of Stamps, nevertheless their efficient efforts have met with the sanction and approval of the Postmaster General. We sincerely trust that the new Postmaster General, Hon. Harry S. New of Indiana, will continue the good work.

Several of our correspondents have written calling attention to the fact that the new coil stamps are larger than the flat plate stamps, hence must be from a different die. This however does not happen to be the case. The stamps are larger, just as in the case of the previous issue, and that is because of the fact that when the coil plate is curved, two of them forming a cylinder that revolves and prints a continuous roll, the design is naturally stretched, making the difference that is noted.

The Nassau Stamp Company calls attention to the fact that the third stamp of the new 1c green, Franklin, under the top plate number "F 14157" shows a small white "s" sidewise just to the right of the left figure "1." Mr. David H. Burr writes that the 25th stamp of the upper left pane of plate 14129 of the 2c stamp shows a decided double transfer. We have not however seen the variety.

United States prices at the recent Kelton & Sloane auction ruled high showing that choice pieces continue to be in demand. A number of the 5c black New Yorks were sold at prices ranging from $20 for inferior copies to $126 for a choice pair. They averaged around $45 each. Choice copies of the 1847, 5c sold around $10 each while one with a blue "Paid" cancellation changed hands at $21. A superb used 5c of 1851 with boardwalk margins reached $58. A magnificent horizontal pair of the 10c sold for $31 while a pair not so fine of the 12c found a new home at $32.50. Later issues went equally well, some unusually fine item here and there bringing well over catalogue.

We wish to thank Messrs. H. Stave, George B. Newton, Jr., and Walter L. Gates for notes of interest.

Shanghai.—Mr. Eugene Klein has shown me something rather odd, namely a proof impression of the surcharge used for locally overprinting the 1c stamp, 2c. This is printed on onion skin paper and was found packed in with the regular stamps. The impression shows that the work was well done, there being no variations in the type. From an examination of this sheet one is convinced that the surcharge was not type set.

AFGHANISTAN.—We are indebted to Mr. P. N. De Souza of Jhansi, India, for the following particulars concerning the current Afghan stamps (series 1921), of which there are two kinds:—

I. Letters post stamps. Small Arms design. Perf. 11½. Printed in sheets of 16 (4 x 4).
10 paisa=1 sanar, red.
20 paisa=1 abasi, marone.
30 paisa=½ rupee, green.

II. Parcels Post stamps. Large format. Vignette of Ministry of Education, Kabul. Printed in pairs. Perf. 11½.
10 paisa, brown.
15 paisa, purple russet.
30 paisa, mauve.
1 rupee, turquoise.

Our correspondent states that most of the sheets of Parcel Post stamps that he has seen are perforated at the top, bottom or one side only, thus leaving the other edges imperforate. Some sheets of the 10p are, however, perforated all round.

An official stamp, printed in claret, without expressed value, was issued in August, 1922, but is very difficult to obtain unused.—Philatelic Magazine.

BELGIUM.—Mr. Henry Hooreman submits for chronicle the 1fr in the new parcel post series. The color is ultramarine.

BERMUDA.—Mr. R. Roberts reports the appearance of the 1d red, 2½d pale yellow green in the ship type on script watermarked paper.

GERMANY.—Mr. Arthur H. Ude sends us the following information: "I have received the stamps noted below with the Network watermark, Scott's A29, 10m greenish blue, 12m vermilion, 25m brown; Scott's A31, 100m violet on buff, 200m rose on buff, 300m green on buff, 400m bistre brown on buff, 1,000m gray and 2,000m ultramarine.

GIBRALTAR.—Mr. R. Roberts reports the 6d on script watermarked paper.

IRAQ.—"New stamps are now on their way from England with portraits of King Feisal, a picture of Arab river boats floating down the Tigris, and impressions of date palms in the background," writes the Daily Mail correspondent at Baghdad. These are doubtless supplementary to the stamps described in our issue of Dec. 16th, 1922.

The 1 anna carmine "On State Service" has appeared with Script CA. watermark.—Philatelic Magazine.
